

I see you to my neighbor, he, by the way, this am glad to be able to re- ffectable improvement in his chbeck—Indeed! Is he able to do anything yet? Doctor—Yes, indeed. He was able to pay his bill yesterday, and that's a marked improvement as compared to the bulk of my patients.—Richmond Dispatch.

No Consideration. Husband—Where is the hammer? Wife—You had it yesterday. "I'm not asking where it was yesterday." "You had it yesterday, and no one else since." Well, if you had the least bit consideration for my feelings you should have used that hammer for something or other after I got through with it, and then you would know where it is.—N. Y. Weekly.

Her Successful Scheme. "It seems to me," he remarked, casually, "that you have succeeded in cutting down the household expenses a little recently." "Yes," she replied, "I am saving something on the wages of the servant. You see, I made a rule that the value of everything she broke should be deducted from her wages, and, as matters now stand, she will have to work four weeks for nothing to clear up her indebtedness."—Chicago Post.

What He Was Fitted For. Editor—Who sent in this item about that last hailstorm? Subeditor—Young Jenkins, of Poudunk. Why? Editor—Why, he says some of the hailstones were as large as canary birds' eggs. That chap is too honest to be a reporter—just drop him a line and offer him the position of cashier in this establishment.—Puck.

Then She Forgave Him. "It's all your fault," he pleaded, after he had stolen the kiss. "Mine!" she cried, indignantly. "Have I done anything to invite such liberties?" "Not directly," he answered, "but you shouldn't be so irresistibly attractive." Thus we learn the value of diplomacy, for he got another.—Chicago Post.

Thin Excuse. He—I know I'm late, but I couldn't help it. You see, I was detained a couple of hours by an old friend who had just got back to town after a long absence. I had to tell him all I knew. She (snappishly)—I don't see why that should have kept you so long.—Tit-Bits.

Hash's Only Rival. "In your vermiform appendix," the surgeon told him, after the operation was over, "we found, strange to say, a small brass tack." "That proves I was right," feebly answered the sick man, "when I said it was something I had eaten in mince pie."—Chicago Tribune.

Hoop, Mon. "Gracious!" exclaimed the fair tourist, as she caught the first glimpse of a Scotchman in kilts, "don't you think he is barefaced to appear in public in such a garb?" "No," smiled her escort, "I think he is bare-kneed."—Chicago Daily News.

Its Value to Her. "I don't see why Miss Oldern sues him for breach of promise. She knows he isn't worth anything." "No; but it's worth a good deal to her, no doubt, to have a chance to let people know that she has really had a proposal."—Philadelphia Bulletin.

A Winter Song. "I am a wandering minstrel blithe and gay." The north wind chants; The forest is my harp and when I play The snowflakes dance."—Philadelphia Press.

Floor Walker—I'm sorry, madam, but I can't exchange this hat for you. Mrs. Smithson—But my husband doesn't like it. Floor Walker—Then I'd advise you to get a divorce.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Reckless Waste. Cayuse Charley—It's bin diskivered that feller we hung fer a hoss these last night hain't guilty. Mariat Luke—That's another good an' a lot of enthusiasm wasted. —Ohio State Journal.

Two Points of View. When the beautiful flowers soon faded and fade," said the pessimist. "Such is a fortunate thing for the pessimist," rejoined the optimist.—Chicago Daily News.

Money No Obstacle. "I am worth a million in my own right!" faltered she, sadly, for she had that many men abhor the thought of marrying rich women. "I am worth a million in my own right," he cried, "I am worth a million in my own right."—Town Topics.

CAN'T DO ANYTHING ELSE.

"Mamie," asked Mrs. Benham, "why do so many men reform and give up their bad habits at New Year's?" "Because," interrupted Mr. Benham, "they can't help themselves. They're 'broke' after Christmas."

His Roar. McGorry (carpingly)—Thim makers av almanacs hov got us be die t'ronts, bedad! Mrs. McGorry—How d'yez make that out? McGorry—Make ut out? Here, now: We hov cowld weather New Year's, phwin we don't nade ut; an' do they give us aven a brith av frost on dhe Fourt av July, phwin our tongues are hangin' out wid dhe heat? Not so's yea cud notice ut, bedad!—Judge.

Not a Procrastinator. "I shall not wait till New Year's to turn over a new leaf," said young Hooper. "My grandmother sent me a Bible for a Christmas present, and I shrewdly suspect that the dear old lady has hidden a few banknotes in it."—Judge.

Go Slow. Make new resolves mildly, or else, I protest, When the time comes to keep them you'll run short of zeat. —Chicago Record.

30 Building Lots For Sale!

The undersigned offers for sale, Thirty Choice Building Lots in the village of Florin, Lancaster Co. Pa., at very reasonable prices.

Any person who intends to build should not by any means select a location until they have consulted H. B. Nissley. All the lots have a high elevation, good location, convenient to schools, post office, churches, stores, P. R. R. depot and only 1/2 mile from Mount Joy. These lots would also be very suitable for an industry of some kind, the P. R. R. siding bordering them on the southwest, thereby saving the purchaser the additional cost of laying a siding which any manufacturing establishment should have.

Remember these lots will all be sold and if you want first choice come a running. Call on or address
