Another Improvement.

Slowly but steadily is Florin pushing to the front in the way of improvements such as new business enterprises, the annex of thirty building lots, and the home of a local newspaper, all of which took place within the last year. The next slated change is the erection of a fine passenger depot by the Pennsylvania railroad company. We are informed the new structure will be a 'peach' and is to be completed until September 1st. The company purchased a lot of John Dyer and one from Harry Stoll, a short distance west of the present depot which will be a very favorable location for the new building.

Here's Your Chance.

The well-known Progressive Dental Parlors are introducing a new tooth, full sets $4.00, which are equal to any $8.00 sets. Their latest method for extracting teeth is really wonderful. Their patronage is steadily increasing, owing to their reliable work and painless operations, it really pays to visit a concern of this kind, which can be found at 224-226 Woolworth Building, Lancaster.

'Rah for Denver.

Not Denver out the Rockies, but just little, one-horse, Pennsylvania Dutch Denver up among the Coconoes. A silk mill 40x130 foot in base is going up as fast as weather allows, and the new bank of the borough will soon occupy a three-story building that Architect Urban is planting. —Lancaster Inquire.
