CATS ON OCEAN

A cat on a ship is a very common sight. In fact, many ships have a cat on board to keep the rats and mice away from the food. A cat is also a very useful animal on a ship. It will catch the mice and rats and eat them. A cat is also a very loyal animal. It will stay with its owner no matter where he goes. A cat is also a very independent animal. It will take care of itself without any help from its owner. A cat is also a very cute animal. It will purr and meow and play with its owner. A cat is also a very smart animal. It will learn to do many things. A cat is also a very long-lived animal. It can live for many years. A cat is also a very beautiful animal. It has many different colors and patterns. A cat is also a very popular animal. Many people love to have a cat. A cat is also a very useful animal on a ship. It will catch the mice and rats and eat them. A cat is also a very loyal animal. Every big liner carries from 15 to 20 cats on a voyage. As a general rule they find plenty of occupation impering after the mice in the hold. Many of them come lurking around only duty they are bound to do, to see that imposed on the stevedores sleeping cabins or the saloon. A game of poker in the smoking cabin is the Germanic. It had eaten some poisonous stuff in the hold and the smoking cabin in convulsion great distress had been caused. A Kentucky shot the cat and the cat was dead. The cat was named FORTNIA'S CHARM. Legislature of Louisiana Called to Devise Means of Destroying the Boll Weevil. A little bug, almost too small for individual notice, is taking up the time of several great states, and has even caused the Indiana legislature to be called into special session. This little boll weevil, says the Baltimore Sun, seems a very small matter to the people of the country at large, but to cotton growers its coming is fraught with prodigious evil. For years it has been the boast of Texas that she could raise cotton enough to supply the world, and she did appear to be satisfied with raising about a third of all the American staple. But this little weevil crawled across the border from Mexico and has swept the cotton fields like a pestilence. Each year the domain of the weevil is spreading, and its kind is multiplying by billions. No effective means has yet been found to check the spread of the pest, and the entire cotton belt is alarmed.

As a matter of interest there is only one species of oyster, ostrea virginica, along the eastern coast of North America, says Good Housekeeping. The western coast has at least five species, but only two of these are of importance, and these do not compare with the eastern shellfish. Thus it is apparent that a blue point, a Providence river and a Chesapeake bay oyster are one and the same thing, so far as species is concerned. The difference is merely a matter of environment, a difference in food supply and conditions in growth.

The noted blue point comes from the Long Island shore, from what was once a natural bed. It gets its name from the little town of Blue Point, off which the beds were discovered. These oysters were of handsome shape and extra appearance, and at once commanded fancy prices. It was only a matter of time when these and neighboring beds would be worked out, and then it was found necessary to resort to "seeding" or "planting"—that is, covering the beds with young oysters from other localities.

Regulates the Market Prices of Perishable Commodities, Especially in the Line of Fruit. Few householders appreciate the debt they owe to the cold storage system now so generally in use throughout the country. It has become a necessary adjunct to the rapidly developing commercial orcharding of the country. It is the reservoir in which the temporary oversupply of fruit is placed and from which it may be uniformly distributed throughout the year. From the earliest times it has been recognized that some provision must be made to store up the temporary surplus and distribute it in time of greater need if an industry is to grow into permanency and stability, and if vicissitudes in supply and demand are to be avoided, says the Chicago Chronicle.

THE CLIMATE OF THE GREAT GLACIER OF THE GRINDELWALD IN THE BERNSE OBERLAND OF SWITZERLAND IS AN EXPERIENCE THAT EVERY SEEKER AFTER NEW SENSATIONS SHOULD TRY, says Kathleen L. Greig, in Four-Track News. He had best prepare himself by resting a few days at Interlaken. Then he may go forth some fine morning with a jaunty Alpine hat on his head, stout boots on his feet, a feeling of ennui in his heart, and come back minus all three. First he will drive along a perfect road through tiny villages, past rainbow-dusted meadows full of wild flowers, and turbulent little streams. Then the road becomes steeper, and the scenery about him grows savage. The valley below begins to look very far away, the monster snow-capped Alps frown above him, and at last he approaches the great glacier of Grindelwald.

Twenty new varieties of fish were discovered last summer in the waters about Alaska by an expedition from the United States fish commission. The boy with the bent pin and the anglerworms got care. To him a fish is a fish, by whatever scientific name it may be called. Rains are paid quarterly in Paris, and every quarter day is marked by a number of suicides, the victims being poor wretches who cannot pay and thus to escape eviction. On the 21st of the month no less than nine persons committed suicide for this reason.
