Common Sense
Hold on to your money when you go buying and don't be afraid to say that a thing does not suit you when you don't like it—And when you come to the store where anyone can see that you get the best for your money—then let go. We're not afraid to tender this advice, for we know that if you act on our suggestion, we are bound to get your trade.
Competition in larger towns or cities than Mount Joy, quote lower prices; but when it comes down to honest every day face to face facts, the truth comes out. Expenses in large cities are higher. Rents and salaries are higher. The merchandise costs the same because we get our goods in the same places as the larger stores in the cities. Now put two and two together, can the city store afford to sell cheaper than the store in the small town? Of course there are tricks in business. For instance: You will find one man advertising a 50c article for 22c and he advertises an article that's really worth 50c. Now that is what is known as a bait or a leader to draw you on to come in the store. Not so with us; we are satisfied with the least profit that will make our business go and you will find that honest values pay the best in the long run, no matter what store you get it at. You are sure to get honest values at — us at —

TOBACCO CULTIVATING MACHINERY
Much More Effective Even Than Hand Hoeing
We have a cultivator that we feel sure will be a great success for cultivating and hoeing corn, potatoes and tobacco as our transplanter has been for setting plants. Cultivates between the plants or hills in the row as well as between the rows. Cultivates between the plants and kills the weeds when plants or hills are not closer than twelve inches. One man does the whole business when the team is well trained. If not well trained, better have a boy to drive.
Best Tool for Cultivating Tobacco Ever Made
Six acres is a day's work in tobacco when the plants are twelve inches apart on the row. This machine is just as valuable to cultivate tobacco, potatoes, cabbage, corn, and fact anything that needs cultivation.
