Excellent Home Talent Entertainment Given Here Last Week

No entertainment by local talent has ever enjoyed such patronage as was given on both occasions last week when about seventy-five citizens constituting both sexes, gave a very creditable performance in the hall for the benefit of the Lancaster General Hospital and under the auspices of the Ladies' Auxiliary of this place.

As many were unable to gain admission at Thursday night's performance, it was repeated on Saturday evening to a large audience. The sale of reserved seats for the first entertainment, surpassed anything on record here, as every seat in the house was sold the day the chart opened.

The orchestra, composed of Messrs. Haverstick, Nentwig, Walters and Givens and Miss Haverstick, more than pleased the audience by the rendition of Golden Gate Overture, Pride of My Heart, Field Cornet March and other popular airs whenever the occasion required.

The tableaux, Columbus at the Spanish Court and John Alden and Priscilla surpassed expectations. Miss Mary Schock's recitation, What Wm. Henry Did, was excellent. She told of how Henry created a big disturbance by displaying a small-pox card, etc. The recitation was very ably rendered.

The doll drill, given by thirty little girls under the supervision of Mrs. R. J. Myers, astonished the audiences by giving a perfect drill and chorus. Each one was dressed in white and carried a doll.

Aunt Jerusha's Quilting Party was very entertaining. Of all the characters, all played their parts well. C. A. Greider made a good squire as did H. Mumma a deacon. S. B. Bernhart was an ideal "seed" and other characters equally as good were Miss Newpher, an ardent admirer of preacher Lovejoy; Miss Haines, who was ever instructing ladies how husbands should be dealt with; Miss Schock with her endless chain of proverbs; Miss Manning with nervous troubles; Miss Brubaker, the quakeress; Miss Longenecker as widow Haines; Miss Bernhart, an old maid; Miss Shookers, who was "hard of hearing"; Mr. Shank, the reverend gentleman; Miss Spera as Mrs. Pride, Miss Brown as Mrs. Simpkins and Miss Myers as Mrs. Stubbs, while Miss Keller personated Aunt Jerusha to perfection. All the characters were clothed as in days of old, bustles being quite conspicuous.

The Gros-Quat minstrels composed of Messrs. Brandt, Schock and Root, headed by Prof. Hamaker were excellent entertainers. One of Dr. E. W. Garber's famous Net-zow pianos was used in the rendition of many popular songs such as Nobody, I'm So Hungry, and others. The three made good counts, their "get ups" were rich while the original jokes on the trolley situation took the house by storm.

The Ladies' Auxiliary of the General Hospital return their sincere thanks to everybody who so ably assisted in making the recent entertainments a success. The sum of $105.50 was cleared from the proceeds.

Not This Mount Joy

Some weeks ago the Mount Joy Herald published a communication from a subscriber in Washington in which it was alleged that General Wayne, during the Revolutionary War, had camped near this place one Winter. Under the above caption, the following week the BULLETIN stated that the Mount Joy where Wayne had camped, was near Valley Forge. Since that time the BULLETIN has published a communication concerning the matter, the most of which was copied from an article prepared by the late Dr. Sheller, which led the New Era to deny, in an editorial of over a column, that any part of Wayne's army was ever encamped in Lancaster county, or that Washington ever visited Big Chiques Tavern.

While legend may be rather silent as to where Wayne's army camped, it was quite the thing when the old hotel was standing, if a stranger remarked on its age or quaintness, for the landlord or some loungeer to tell him that Washington once stopped there and later about the papers having been discovered in the partition. At the time these papers were found, the hotel property was owned by Martin Grube, late of Huntingdon, but there must be many old residents around Big Chiques who know about this matter, and if the Lancaster Historical Society or the New Era are interested, the perusal of these papers which were "sent to a Masonic Lodge at Lancaster," may shed some new light on this clouded matter.

It may not be generally known that there was a Wayne family in the vicinity of Mount Joy, that claimed to be connectors of Gen. Wayne. The late Conrad Hoster, once a resident here, was married to a lady whose maiden name was Wayne, and who claimed to be a connection of the General's. The late Henry W. Kraybill was descended from this same strain, as well as 50 other people in this vicinity. Adam Wayne Hoster of Harrisburg, is a descendant of these Waynes.

This vicinity was a great admirer of "Mad Anthony" and one mile southwest of this place for many years the General Wayne hotel did business, and an old-fashioned swinging sign with a large portrait of the general hung in the breeze and proclaimed the fact. Twenty-five years ago this hotel was turned into a private residence

$10 Fine and Costs

The case against John Smeltzer, charge with aggravated assault and battery, was heard by the Court on Thursday. The prosecutor was Herman Miller, who claimed that on the evening of February 3 last when he was at the Red Lion Hotel the defendant entered and invited him to go outside. Miller complied and when he was in the act of shutting the door Smeltzer hit him on the head with a stone, the assault being without provocation. The defense was a denial of the charge and an allegation that Miller was the aggressor. The jury rendered a verdict of guilty of simple assault and battery. Smeltzer was sentenced to pay a $10 fine and costs of prosecution.

An Extensive Advertiser

The opening of the National Cigar Stand in E. W. Garber's drug store recently, was an event of unusual interest to smokers. It was the first opportunity for the smokers of Mount Joy and vicinity, to test the benefits derived from the great union of 2000 cigar stands under the National Cigar Stand Company's emblem. The stand itself will prove as much a revelation to smokers and dealers as will the price reducing methods of this great concern. For beauty and utility in presenting cigars, the stand in Garber's drug store is indeed unique.

The National Cigar Stand Company was formed by some 2,000 American druggists who wished to combine the purchasing power of their cigar stands into one powerful market-controlling concern. Through the company, these druggists can buy in such vast quantities that they control their own factories, produce their own brands and bring cigars direct from factory to the smoker at prices closer to the actual cost of production than has ever been known. By delivering cigars direct from producer to smoker the National Cigar Stand Company eliminates from their cigar prices four profits that ordinarily go to middlemen and jobbers. This saving is given to the smoker in the form of lower prices on equal cigars or in better values for the same price.

By producing in enormous quantities, eliminating the jobber's profits and selling direct, with little expense for rent and no expense for extra clerk hire, it is not surprising that National Cigar Stand is able to give to smokers cigars of the usual 3-for-25c quality for 5c, ten-cent cigars at 6c, and so on, up to the very finest class of Imported Havanas. Read carefully the large ad on another page and keep your eye on it from week to week. It's interesting.
