What An Agreeable Feeling It Produces to Know That You've Got Good Big Value For the Money You Spend

It's a natural pleasure to most of us. It's that sort of a sense of advantage you get when you buy something for less than its actual worth. You'll experience just that feeling when you buy a pair of the Oxfords we're selling at 85c, $1.15, $1.25, $1.55, $1.85, $2.00 $2.35 or $2.85. You'll take pride in your shoes—the pride we feel in selling them to you during this big sale. You'll be glad to tell your friends there are no other such shoes in town at the price—no other store where service and satisfaction to you mean so much.

Milton Royer, rotary engineer, was taken ill on Thursday evening, having wandered away from the station. He was picked up along the track by the crew of the trolley and conveyed to his home in Mount Joy in a serious condition. Rev. Simon B. Landis, teacher of the Rheems school, for the past two terms, who has been occupying the position of salesman in the Winters store at Elizabethtown, has been selected to teach the school here another term, and he has decided to accept the position. Winfield L. Helsey is the father of remarkable twin boys. They are five years old and in appearance are so near alike that the neighbors who see them frequently cannot distinguish them apart, except by asking their names. One is Jacob, named for his grandfather, Jacob W. Helsey, postmaster of this place, and the other is Winfield, named after his father. These boys almost daily exhibit their familiarity with horsemanship by riding horse-back and driving the many horses on their father's farms. Both are regular attendants at the Donegal Presbyterian Sunday School, to which they usually drive together and alone, a distance of about four miles. The boys are small in stature and in tying the horses are obliged to crawl out on the shafts of the vehicle in order to reach the hitching rein.
