EDITORIAL

The Susquehanna has been acting in a very low manner of late.

People economize so much on the truth, it is no wonder they have to stretch it on some occasions.

If some women took as good care of their husbands as they do their poodles the divorce mills would be shy many a grist.

Yellow streaks have been discovered on the surface of Mars. This confirms the belief that some very queer editing has been done up there.

The reporter who sent out word that Roosevelt was dead did not get a dollar a word for the story, but he should get ten years in the penitentiary.

A new religion has been invented with only seven commandments. If the members of the new church keep the seven they will be pretty well up to the average.

Before the season opened there were all kinds of stories as to how plentiful bunnies were this year. Now there are many gunners that say this is a—well you know.

Hunters who were mistaken for wild turkeys, rabbits and squirrels have been wounded this fall, and soon those who look like deer will have to dodge bullets or keep out of the woods.

The merchant that wants to increase his holiday trade could use no better method than advertise in this paper. It reaches the people and that's just what you want. Try it and note the difference.

Thanksgiving Day

This is the month in which there is a day set apart for national thanksgiving, though a cheerful heart is a good thing, however, for the people to be reminded periodically of the fact that as a nation we have much to be thankful for, and whether we celebrate the day simply or with enough turkey and stuffing to invite indigestion, let us mark it by a resolve to be better farmers and better citizens than ever before. None of us is too humble or obscure to exert a wholesome influence, day by day. If we do nothing more than greet our neighbor with a cheerful face and a kind word we shall shed a benediction over an entire community. Let us therefore give thanks not only upon one day of the year but every day of our lives.

Young People Married

On Thursday morning Edwin Mutz, a well known young farmer of Donegal, and Miss Victoria Metz, of Manheim, were united in marriage by the Rev. Jacob Hostetter at his home near Silver Spring. Following the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Mutz were driven to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Strickler, near Marietta, where a bounteous wedding dinner was served. They are now off on a wedding tour for two weeks. Among other places they will visit in Perry county, the former home of the groom, after which they will go to housekeeping in East Donegal township.

Abandoned Team Stolen

When Samuel C. Will, of near Bainbridge, opened his stable on Saturday morning he found that a horse and buggy had been stolen. The Lancaster police were immediately notified. Late on Saturday afternoon the team was recovered near town, where it had been abandoned.

Summer in November
Here are some facts about the weather on November 13 and it may be many years before this record may be equalled:
Strawberries are being picked in Maryland and some parts of Pennsylvania.
Dandelions, buttercups, violets and straw hats are among the November summer's crop.
Trees are sending out green shoots the grass is springing up once more and butterflies and grasshoppers are once more abroad in the land.
Winter roses are already in full bloom and buds on the fruit trees are sweet as in May.

A Large Tree
One of the largest yellow poplar trees in the country has just been cut down at Levever's mill, along the Pequea. The rings show it to be 140 years old. It was 94 feet high, 64 inches across the stump, and the log of its trunk was 70 feet long. It is being worked up at H. S. Rohrer's saw mill.

Defeated by Steelton
Our foot ball heroes were bumped, battered and beaten on Saturday by the East End team of Steelton by a score of twenty some to get some. The story of the game in short is, we were outclassed and outplayed so there's all there was to it. The local team lacks practice and team work and almost every game, a few new men are found in various positions. We hope the team will get going ere long after which of course there will be nothing to it but MT. JOY.

WOMEN'S WOE
Mount Joy Women Are Finding Relief at Last.
It does seem that women have more than a fair share of the aches and pains that afflict humanity; they must "keep up," must attend to duties in spite of constantly aching backs, or headaches, dizzy spells, bearing-down pains; they must stoop over, when to stoop means torture. They must walk and bend and work with racking pains and many aches from kidney ills. Kidneys cause more suffering than any other organ of the body. Keep the kidneys well and health is easily maintained. Read of a remedy for kidneys only that helps and cures the kidneys and is endorsed by people you know.
Mrs. L. P. Hellig, Main Street, Mt. Joy Pa., says: "I was troubled with kidney complaint for a long time and in spite of the many remedies I used was unable to find relief. I often suffered so severely from a weak back that I was unable to get up or down and added to this were headaches and dizzy spells, during which spots floated before my eyes. I had nearly all the symptoms which accompany kidney trouble and was feeling miserable. I finally saw Doan's Kidney Pills advertised and procured a box. They helped me from the first. The pains became less severe and I was soon better in every way. I consider Doan's Kidney Pills to be a reliable remedy and gladly recommend them to others."
For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn & Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.
Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

ON A CAPITAL OF TWO CENTS.

By LOUISE B. CUMMINGS.
(Copyright, 1909, by American Press Association.)

Sam Calkins was strapped. There was no doubt whatever about his financial condition. It was 2 cents in hand—literally in hand, for he was looking at the copper coin in his hand, remembering at the same time that there was not even a crust of bread in the house for his wife and two little children. He had taken a chair on the porch of the Sandwich hotel because chairs there were free and he didn't belong anywhere. Sam was a miner and had worked in many mines. He had been caught in a labor storm with the result of loss of employment. His savings were all gone, there was no prospect of work where he was, and he had no means of taking himself and his family anywhere else.

Two men were sitting at the other end of the porch talking together excitedly, though in a low tone. Calkins heard the word "strike" and, supposing it referred to labor matters in which he was interested, he pricked up his ears and soon discovered that they referred to a strike of paying ore in some mine the name of which they did not mention. But as the men took a package from his pocket—the wrapper was a piece of newspaper—and, unrolling it, showed his companion specimens of ore. Calkins caught the words "six hundred to the ton." This told him that the specimens mentioned assayed to produce this amount out of a ton of ore. After passing the samples back and forth for awhile, they were rolled again in the bit of newspaper, and the man who had produced them put them again in his pocket. Soon after both men arose and went away.

Calkins would have gone away, too, if he had had any place to go, but he hadn't. Being restless, he got up and walked over to the other end of the porch. In a chair in which one of the men had been sitting he noticed a little dark lump about the size of a hickory nut. Taking it up, he looked at it scrutinizingly.

"If the constant vein hadn't run out," he remarked to himself, "I'd swear the chunk came out of it." It was a lumpy quartz and full of gold. Calkins bit and worked in the Constant mine, which had proved inconstant. While there he had taken out just such ore as this. But he had seen the vein grow narrower and narrower till it was nothing more than a crack. The mine, after a search for a reopening of the vein, had been abandoned, and Calkins had gone to work elsewhere. Personally he believed that if the vein were followed deep enough it might be found to reopen. But the stockholders were discouraged and would not stand assessment. Suddenly it occurred to Calkins that the vein had been followed and paying ore again struck. Then came the quick thought, "Can I, with only 2 cents in the world, profit by what I suspect it is true?"

He went into the hotel, where a printed list of quotations of mining stocks was hanging on the wall, and glanced at sales of Constant. There were sales at 6 cents a share. The stock had recently stood at 4 cents. Then Calkins walked up the street to the office of a man of the name of Fisher, whom he knew held some of the shares.
"I've got some information," said the miner. "Do you want it or shall I take it elsewhere?"
"I'm your man."
"What'll you give?"
"Ten per cent of the profit."
"Make it 20 and I'll out with it."
"All right, 20 it is."
Calkins produced his chunk of ore and told Fisher that it had come out of the Constant mine. Fisher asked how he knew it, but Calkins declined to satisfy him. He felt sure that if his man knew he was guessing the transaction would end then and there. Fisher had that morning sold part of his stock at 6 cents a share. He sent in an order to buy it back at 10,000 shares more at the market price. He got 1,000 at 6, 2,000 at 6 1/2 and the balance at figures rising by fractions till the price paid was 7 1/2 cents. The sales were larger than for many months, but not considerable.

Calkins wished to ask Fisher for a little money in advance to buy a supporter for his family, but did not lest he should lead him to suspect that the whole affair was simply a game to beat him out of a paltry sum. So great was his suspense that he preferred to keep away from home. He was hanging between heaven and hell.
The next morning when he turned out of an outhouse where he had slept he spent his 2 cents for a paper. There in big headlines he saw the announcement that the Constant vein had been recovered richer and broader than before. When the Mining Exchange opened the stock went up to $5 a share and stayed there. Before noon Fisher gave his informant a check for $12,000.

Fortune had favored the man whose capital was but 2 cents. Those in the secret had bought up what stock they wanted at private sale, knowing that if they all went into the exchange together they would advance the price.
When Calkins went home loaded with good things he found his wife crying, his children clamoring for something to eat. His bankbook dropped his wife's tears, and his bundles dried his children's clamor.

The Free Hoosier Special Kitchen Cabinet

Go to Mrs. Charles F. Wolf, 649 West Vine Street.

The drawing was made Monday and the first coupon drawn was the one filled out and deposited by this lucky lady. We are sorry we did not have a free cabinet for every housekeeper who was interested enough in the Hoosier Cabinets to call and see them.

The interest you showed in the Cabinet indicates your desire to have a hoosier—and you never before had such an easy way of getting one. $1.00 a week will buy one on the club plan, and you can have the use of it while you are paying for it. Don't miss this opportunity; come in now and order your cabinet sent home. You'll have it half paid for before Christmas.
