5A Horse Blankets

Remember that the double wear and service you get from a 5A Horse Blanket means an actual saving to you of 50c on the dollar.

This is due to the fact that the finest quality yarns and strongest warp are used in their making—all selected, spun and woven by experts in the largest horse blanket factory in the world.

Cheapest in the End

5A "Storm King" is one of our particularly popular styles. Medium priced—only $2.50. It is extra large (84 x 90), weighs 8 lbs., heavy, warm and durable, and has a snug, graceful "hang" to it. This is one of our biggest sellers.

But 5A Horse Blankets are all extra good—bang-up in quality—reasonable in price—sold direct from the factory to first-class retailers everywhere, who will supply you. If you cannot locate the dealer in your town, write us and we will see that you are supplied.

For the Farmer

Take Care of the Foultry in Fall of Year. Regularity in the Feeding of Dairy Cows—Dispose of Male Birds—Interesting Farm Notes.

Don't neglect shedding the farm tools during the winter. Lumber is cheaper than machinery.

This is a good time to build new fences and repair the old ones. Do it this fall while the ground is soft and the weather good.

Remember, cement for flooring is almost as cheap as wood, is easier, cleaner, lasts longer and looks better and won't breed germs.

No matter how still the day, better take down your ladders at night. The wind may come up before morning and spoil a good ladder in no time.

It is all right to let the boys and girls harness the horses, but look to it yourself that everything is all right before they go away to work or for a drive.

Keep the stable where the cows are milked free from cobwebs.

As long as the breeding of a sow is profitable she should be bred. It is not advisable to sell off good brood animals.

When you hob your lambs' tails put a bit of tar on the stub. Flies don't like the tar and it will save the lambs a lot of trouble.

Many of the swellings on the limbs of horses can be prevented by the proper amount of exercise. Do not keep the horse in the barn without exercise and expect it to remain free from swollen limbs.

Don't carry a lot of surplus male birds. As soon as the hatching season is over sell them if they are pure bred or eat them if they are not. Unmated hens lay as well as mated ones and in fertile eggs do not spoil in summer as soon as they get warmed up to 90 degrees, as fertile ones do.

It is very important that cows be not only fully fed, but that they have their feed at regular intervals.

Where cows are driven to and from pasture they should be "turned on" soon after daylight in the morning and not taken off until sundown. It is particularly necessary that they get the grass while it is yet covered with dew. Therefore where the cows are kept and fed in stables the first feed should be given early in the morning, just what they will eat up clean. They should also be fed on returning at night. Salt should also be kept where the cows can get at it well. The best way to do this is to select the poorest or "galled" spots in pastures, build a cheap shed, say twenty feet square, with a clapboard or thatch roof, open all around with troughs through the center. In these troughs place a supply of rock salt. Cows will eat only what they need if they find it easy of access. Irregular feeding of salt is one of the worst possible practices. Salt is a cathartic when given in large doses, and this danger should by all means be avoided.

The fall of the year, with its cold rains and winds, is in reality the most serious time through which the poultryman has to pass, and, worst of all, the hens are in poor condition to withstand any added hardships. The molting season begins about the first or middle of September, and this in itself is a great drain on the system. The old feathers must make room for new ones, and the condition of the fowl will determine whether this is to be easily done or not. The birds of the air, directed, as they are, by nature, molt so gradually and so easily that one can scarcely notice the change, but the domestic fowls seem to lack something. Yet experience has shown that in a measure the much needed elements can be supplied. Food such as will furnish the quickest growth to the feathers and at the same time not produce an over amount of fat should be given. At this time the hens usually stop laying, and heavy feeding will quickly cause them to become fat and only fit for market. They should be kept in a healthy state and be made to take exercise each day from daylight till dark. A little sunflower seed, oilmeal, ground bone and whole oats make a good food and will tide them safely over this season.

The home that possesses a cheerful wife and mother is not only a veritable haven of rest, but the safe harbor whose beacon light will guide her bread winners safely past all rocks and shoals with unfailing certainty. The woman whose cheerful spirit can take that "brave attitude toward life" that enables her to bear courageously the inevitable burdens of her life's environment; that strengthens her determination not to fret or worry those who, for her sake are fighting the hard battles in the world, has reached that altitude that proclaims her price above rubies; and her influence and example are not felt only within the limits of the four walls she has made the unassailable bulwark of state and society, a happy home, but reach to those she knows not of.

A Mammoth Pumpkin.
Mr. Jacob Stoltzfuss, of New Holland raised a pumpkin of gigantic size. It weighs 156 lbs. It is now on exhibition at Foster and Cochran's store and any person desiring seed can obtain same by leaving name and address with Mr. Lau at the main entrance of the Foster & Cochran store.

IS "IT" DIPPY

Is That How a Certain One Taught Mathematics in the Gravel Barricks?

We are indeed surprised that a certain one has the nerve and audacity to try and make people believe that his great grandfather was the progenitor of 39,000. It is only too true that figures don't lie and for the benefit of one certain numskull we will quote them:

First generation, Mr. and Mrs. Progenitor 2
Second generation, their fifteen children 15
Third generation, their grandchildren 225
Fourth generation, their great grandchildren 3,375

Grand total 3,617

If this ignoramus ex-public school tutor would have said great-grandfather, it would have been quite different, and here is another demonstration that he is a "deluded mortal." This wonderful progenitor was his great grandfather, he says, then he follows up and figures how many people there are in five generations. Proves himself a liar.

Above we have allowed him all the doubt in averaging these families at fifteen children, when in fact we should have only allowed one-third as many. For example: This great (?) make-believe is one of a family of 3 children and he is the only one who assisted in increasing the census from time to time. Therefore instead of being one of fifteen children as we averaged he is one of three.

He admits figures don't lie. They won't if you put them down correctly and if this "Ignoramus, deluded mortal and stupid mathematician" will give us the children of those four generations we will think it over but if he tells the truth (which may be a trying ordeal) you'll find there are only about one-tenth of 39,000 in that "Freinshoff."

SHOT IN LEG

John Stump, of Bainbridge, Received Serious Injury

John Stump, of Bainbridge, an eleven year old boy had the bones in his right leg splintered as the result of pulling the trigger on a revolver that he did not know was loaded.

Young Stump met one of his boy companions on the street Thursday morning and his friend showed him a revolver of 32 calibre. Neither knew it was loaded and Stump pulled the trigger. The bullet entered the thigh and proceeded downward into his foot. Dr. Worth, the town physician, was summoned and he had the boy taken to the Lancaster hospital where the bullet, which had lodged in the heel was removed.

Charlie is a Hero

On Saturday evening the Misses Barclay of East Longeval were driving across the Marietta street bridge when their horse frightened at a "rain. The harness tore and the animal began showing the ladies the nails in his shoes. Mr. C. H. Zeller who happened to be passing with a basket of apples, immediately grabbed the horse and soon had him under control and the ladies continued on their journey. Mr. Zeller proved himself a hero and didn't drop an apple during the excitement.

A Fine Crop of Quinces

One of the finest crops of quinces about Elizabethtown was grown by H. L. Gise, Brown street. Nearly four bushels of fine, perfect fruit were gathered from two trees. Five of the largest measured respectively 13, 13, 12, 12, and 12 inches in circumference.

The combined weight of thirteen of the largest was 9 pounds—weighing 14, 13, two 12, four 11, four 10 and one 9 ounces each. A little care and spraying is the whole secret.

A man who has made a happy home for his wife and children, no matter what he has not done in the way of achieving wealth and honor; if he has done that he is a grand success. If he has not done that, and it is his own fault, though he be the highest in the land, he is a most pitiable failure. We wonder how many men in a mad pursuit of gold, which characterizes the age, realize that there is no fortune which can be left to their families as great as the memory of a happy home.

Five Generations

Beatrice Craley, the ten months old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Craley of Mount Joy, is the centre of an interesting five generation family group. Her great grand father John Zink is 92 years old, her great grandmother, Mrs. John Zink, Jr. is 64 years, her grandmother, Mrs. David Zerpey is 41, and her mother Mrs. Clayton Craley 29 years.

There are six secular nights in each week. Out of the six some men spend one at home and five at lodge, while others spend five at home and one at lodge. In which class shall we register your name?
