EDITORIALS

Last year was a good one for aviation, but a bad one for aviators.

The successful dairyman endeavors to raise all the food for his cows on his own farm.

The per cent of butter fat in a cow's milk is not a sure index to her capacity as a butter-maker.

Success lies not in the number of cows that a man keeps, but rather the kind of cow he keeps.

Woodrow Wilson finds himself mixed with a bunch of Colonels in his controversy with Harvey.

It may be just a coincidence that Dr. Wilson's troubles date from Mr. Bryan's open indorsement of him.

The planet Saturn is having as much trouble about its rings as a girl who breaks her engagements.

Bread and butter is the ideal food, says a Harvard Professor. They certainly have high ideals at Harvard.

Great Britain proposes to annex the Palmyra Islands, in the Hawaiian group. Don't want the Philippines, too, do you, George?

According to the official prognostication sent out from Washington, February is not going to cut any kittenish capers.

Gov. Stubbs of Kansas was in Washington recently raising the Roosevelt paean, but he cannot stampede the Federal office holders.

A contemporary wants to know why we hear no talk about the vice-presidential timber? Because, perhaps any old political scuffling would serve.

W. Clark Russell, who wrote sea-stories, left a fortune of $1,000,000. His seems to be the only practical way of extracting gold from the ocean waves.

Mr. Underwood is in Washington at work. The other presidential candidates are out begging for votes. It looks as if the voters are hunting Underwood.

The only reason that Rockefeller and Carnegie are both rich men is that they operated in different spheres, neither one left any droppings through their fingers.

Kansas has just figured out that her farm products last year were worth a stack of $20 gold pieces 21 miles high, which looks like the cue for asking that old, familiar question once more.

A Japanese doctor says lean men carry more germs than fat men carry. Still some men are so utterly lean that even a germ wouldn't tackle them, as it would mean starvation for the poor germ.

"And now they say that Robert Louis Stevenson's genius was the result of the bacteria in his blood." If true, what a pity a good many of the present day authors are not similarly infected.

SPORTING HILL

Elsie Bucher is slowly convalescing from a severe attack of pleurisy. Abram L. Behm attended the funeral of his cousin, Jacob Behm near Sinking Springs in Monday.

The members of the Primary school were busily engaged in making valentines for their little friends. Misses Ellen and Sarah Sipling spent Sunday with John Charles and family, near Garber's mill.

On account of a funeral at Fairview church the services of the Brethren were called off on Sunday morning.

Milton Werner and wife and Charles Fissel, of near Hossler's church, spent Sunday in the home of Levi Fissel.

Mrs. Christian Sheets visited H. B. Gibble and wife on Tuesday. Mrs. Frank Kulp spent Wednesday at the same place.

Ed. Weber and family of Mechanicville and Elmer Halsey and family of Upper Rapho, were Sunday visitors of Wm. Gibble and wife.

For Sale.
