The Conditions of the Poultry House for the Production of Winter Eggs.—Points in Window Gardening. Market for Capons.

Don't push hens for winter eggs and expect high fertility in the breeding season.

Don't keep the gobbler with the chickens. He will lick them like the dickens.

Don't feed mongrels and expect a profit. A mongrel mut is like a hollow nut.

Don't eat too much duck. You may have to call the quack, and he will present his bill.

Don't be too humble. Humility does not consist in knuckling to another's fist.

Don't sell turkeys to the hucksters when private trade is not half supplied and has money to burn for the choice birds.

Don't believe all you read about big poultry profits. There's something for sale behind a fairy tale. It's a gold brick trick to tell a story slick.

Don't think all the good stock is outside your state. Distance may lend enchantment to the view until some rooster swindler does you.

Don't assume a patronizing air. That's hot air. The man of sense treats all the same without respect to wealth or name. He may be rich, he may be wise, but naught but wrong does he despise. The life he lives is for the good of all the human brotherhood.

There is a market for capons in all large cities, where they find sale at much higher prices than common fowls. The season for them is from the holidays till young broilers come in early summer. The commission men are anxious to get them, because they are ready sale and move quickly. Every farmer and poultryman could add much to his income from poultry each year by caponizing all of the male birds and feeding and holding them for the winter's trade. The same method is always used with hogs and beef cattle, which sell for only five to eight cents a pound, while capons sell at from ten to twenty cents a pound, which is very large profit on even high priced grain.

Here are some points in window gardening that it is well to keep in mind. The amateur will find them of unusual value in guiding him to success until he has learned what to do and how to do it for himself. Keep a nail or an old fork at hand, and stir the soil of your house plants as regularly as you stir that of the garden plant. With no weeds to spur us on, we are apt to forget that the earth must be kept loose and friable to admit air. Pinch the terminal buds from the geraniums when they have reached the proper size and induce them to become thick and robust in growth.

Always keep all decaying leaves and flowers closely cropped. They are a useless drain upon the plant. Never drop them upon the surface of the soil. They are unsightly, and form a hiding place. Some of the cacti, the agave and other subtropical plants require rest during the winter, and should only have water to prevent drying. Very often I hear persons say, "Our hens don't lay in winter because our hen house is not warm enough." I have kept hens, lots of them, for 25 years, and kept them for eggs and I got the eggs too, and I never kept them in a warm house either. I will tell you what I depend upon to keep the hens warm in winter and that is good heavy feathering (I have the Rhode Island Reds and there is no breed that has a better coat of feathers for winter than this one,) says a writer in the Successful Farmer. Rich blood and active exercise keep it in circulation. Yes, I used to try to make my hen houses warm, but only succeeded in introducing a condition which, if followed up, looked to me as though they would be worse off than the cold. I don't wish to have it understood that my houses are open with cracks and knot holes, for they are not; every part is made tight except at the windows where the muslin curtain is in. The question is not how warm you can make your poultry house, but how dry you can make it. There is no danger in having it too dry. When you have built a hen house with two thicknesses of boards and paper between, tight doors and windows and a good roof and lots of glass on the south side, you have what some call a warm house, but you have what I call a damp one, that is if you have very many hens in it, and it will be damp just as long as you keep it tight and close and allow no ventilation. A hen will stand a lot of cold and long, too, if she is in a dry house.

KEEP THE KIDNEYS WELL

Health is Worth Saving, and Some Mount Joy People Know How to Save It.

THE DOMESTIC JUNIOR is a vacuum cleaner that will do more work than many high priced cleaners and much more than any other cleaner of an equal price. It looks like a carpet sweeper—works like a carpet sweeper—but is a vacuum cleaner—a cleaner that cleans your carpets and rugs through and through.

Many Mt. Joy people take their lives in their hands by neglecting the kidneys when they know these organs need help. Sick kidneys are responsible for a vast amount of suffering and ill health, but there is no need to suffer nor to remain in danger. Use Doan's Kidney Pills—a remedy that has cured thousands of kidney sufferers.

The following statement leaves no ground for doubt.

Charles N. Fry, W. Charlotte St., Manheim, Pa., says: "My back obliges me to sit in one position most of the time and my kidneys were weakened in that way. I suffered from severe pains across the small of my back and at times I was hardly able to do my work. I tired easily and felt all run down. Doan's Kidney Pills were highly recommended to me and I began their use. They acted as represented and before I had taken them long, all symptoms of my trouble were driven away."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., New York, sole agents for the United States.
