HOME HEALTH CLUB

By Dr. David Reeder, La Porte, Ind.

PEROXIDE OF HYDROGEN.—Having heretofore given the chemical of this liquid, and the fact that it is always to be found in the Home Health Club books, makes it unnecessary to repeat it here.

Peroxide of Hydrogen is not a medicine or drug, in the ordinary sense, any more than air or water. It is merely the concentrated elements of these and it is the most perfect purifier known. As a disinfectant, it is invaluable and should be in the household all the time. It is not poisonous and is swallowed without harm to a reasonable extent. Anything is poisonous if you take too much of it—even bread and meat.

Infected sores, abscesses, any diseased surface may be treated with it to the best advantage. It purifies and cleanses, instantly, by oxidizing the poisonous substances energetically and rendering infected parts sterile. At the same time it does not injure healthy tissues but cleanses them thoroughly when effectively applied. It destroys the cause of the pus and makes it entirely harmless. When applied it bubbles vigorously, showing that it is making a one-sided and victorious fight. It is a relentless enemy of foul odors.

A solution in proportion of one ounce of the peroxide to a gallon of water is a perfect deodorant and disinfectant in purifying cellars, out-houses, etc., and in this, or even greater solutions it makes a purifying wash after a bath. Where the odor of the perspiration becomes troublesome, it is exceedingly efficacious by sponging the armpits, hips, feet, etcetera, with it. Used as a mouth wash it renders the teeth clean and fresh, besides purifying the teeth and preserving the teeth. It makes an excellent gargle for sore throat, and used in the proportion of one teaspoonful to a pint of water it gives great relief for catarrh and hay fever, as a nasal treatment. For bites of animals, insects and reptiles it should be applied at once. It destroys the powers of contagion, and armed with it, one may be brought in contact with infectious disease with impunity—using before and after exposure—the latter, if brought in contact with contagion unwittingly. It is fine for sunburn, tan, pimples, paratitic growths, and often facial blemishes are removed by its use. It bleaches the hair and dark cloth, and must therefore be kept away from these. Cuts, bruises, burns and all such injuries should be treated with it at once.

Peroxide of Hydrogen is not a patent medicine but is as free from ownership in the secret of its manufacture as air and water. It is very inexpensive and may be produced in any drug store. Hence, this is not an advertisement for its sale.

There is probably no single article for healing purposes that has so many healthful uses as Peroxide of Hydrogen. Get a bottle of it and try it at the first demand and you will be thankful to the Home Health Club for sending you this advice.

Dear Doctor:—Have had what the doctors pronounce hives for more than a year. They break out in lumps, like large welts mostly alone in the evening or in the night, but there is usually some on my body. They come on limbs and body and my lips swell and get very thick. They are very annoying. The doctors blame it to my stomach or what I eat, but my stomach seldom bothers me.

L. G. This difficulty is very annoying and is most frequent among children, though not often to adults also will be troubled with it. It is usually caused by eating certain classes of food which may be especially unacceptable to some stomachs. Honey and strawberries, cucumbers and shell fish are often regarded as causes for hives.

The necessary treatment consists in keeping the bowels open and aiding the digestion by some such remedy as Golden Seal or Compound Gentian. With Hazel applied externally allays the itching. There is a possibility of the trouble being something else, the above only refers to a case of hives.

Dear Doctor:—Can you tell me how to thin off and not leave the skin wrinkled and flabby?

F. R. The best and safest home treatment of overcoming fleshiness is by drinking an abundance of fresh pure buttermilk, a method which I have fully explained in these columns on more than one occasion. It is also fully described in the Club books. An average person can easily take 4 quarts a day, which should be well masticated. These two substances would not only sustain life but keep up strength. Such a treatment can be continued almost indefinitely until the desired results will be accomplished.

All readers of this publication are at liberty to write for information pertaining to the subject of health at any time. Address all communications to the Home Health Club, La Porte, Indiana, U. S. A., with name and address in full and at least four cents in postage.

USEFUL INFORMATION FOR THE FARMER

The Care of Young Peach Trees.—The Paragon Chestnut is a Vigorous Grown—How to Raise Early Rhubarb—Difference in Milk.

Discover and destroy brown tail and gypsy moth nests.

Cut down all dead trees, as well as decaying branches of live trees. If leaves show the lawn do not remove them. They protect the grass. Paint all wounds made in pruning with pure white lead and pure linseed oil.

The fungicidal value of lime-sulphur is increased by the addition of arsenate of lead.

In setting out strawberries pinch off most of the leaves and the plants will take hold better.

When spraying, if showers come and wash off the poison, spray those trees a second time.

Healthy foliage held late in the season enables the trees to build stronger buds for the next crop.

Peach trees should be planted 14 feet apart each way, 270 trees per acre, and on sandy soil.

Strain all spray materials thru a good, fine strainer. It avoids clogged nozzles and wasted time.

If in doubt as to what variety of strawberry to plant this spring let us say a word for Senator Dunlap.

The selling of fruit is business; therefore, to do it most successfully, business principles must be followed.

On cold days one thinks of the windbreak. Why not plan to set out a grove the spring that will make a wind-break?

Spray your trees whether they have a crop or not. Spraying in off years is just as important as in the years of heavy crops.

In a discussion at the meeting of the Illinois State Horticultural Society Prof. J. C. Blair stated that the practice of orchard heating is as yet of doubtful value, and no definite facts can be given. The practice, however, is proving good in some regions, but in Illinois where extremes of temperature are experienced, accompanied by winds, it requires methods beyond the means of the average orchardist.

Every person who never milked cows, as well as some who have only witnessed this interesting process at a very safe distance, realize that there is not much variation in the quantity of milk from certain cows in the herd, and on the same feed, but to most people "milk is milk," very few having any correct ideas as to what is commonly called the "richness of it."

Early rhubarb can be grown in an ordinary cellar thus: When a thaw comes dig up one or more rhubarb clumps from the garden, with considerable soil clinging to the roots, and put them on the cellar floor; the warmer the cellar, the sooner growth will begin. Give them a little water occasionally and await results. Light does not seem to be necessary for the stalks grow all right in even a dark place.

The Paragon chestnut tree is a vigorous grower and an early and abundant bearer. It makes unusually thick buds, containing generally three large nuts. While on the tree the buds do not fully open, and the nuts usually remain in the buds until they drop to the ground. This characteristic gives it an advantage over all others on rough and rocky ground, and saves the loss and difficulty occasioned by picking the nuts from the grass beneath the tree. Paragon seedlings grafted on native sprouts make very rapid growth, and usually begin to bear when four years old.

It is very essential to take the very best possible care of the young tree. They should be kept thrifty and healthy and all necessary care given them to conserve the moisture and plant food in the soil. Early in the spring, as soon as the soil will permit, it should be stirred six to eight inches deep; thus, if the trees have been planted as deeply as they should, plowing this depth will cause them to produce a deep root system which will not be injured as quickly by freezing. After this plowing the fertilizer should be applied and worked with a disk harrow or cultivator. Frequent cultivations should be given with the cultivator or disk harrow, running deep enough to form a good soil, and prevent subsequent baking or crusting of the surface and prevent loss of soil by evaporation. Thorough culture kills all the weeds which are a constant drain on the soil moisture and plant food, and also assists in decomposing and liberating any plant food which may have been turned under.
