HOME HEALTH CLUB

By Dr. Reeder Chicago Illinois
A Case in Point; A man of somewhat more than middle age lately wrote the Home Health Club the following letter, which has a lesson in it so pertinent and strong, that by his permission, it is given here for the benefit of all the readers of this department. He says:

"About a year ago, business called me to a small city in Indiana where I have been strenuously engaged ever since in writing a series of papers upon subjects associated with agriculture; the construction of farm houses and out-buildings and others closely and remotely associated with these.

"I took board with a family, the head of which I had been acquainted with since his boyhood, as we are about the same age and brought up in the same neighborhood. He was strong and fairly healthy when he grew to manhood and learned to be a carpenter, at which trade he had worked ever since. But, by dint of enterprise and business qualifications a little better than the majority of his fellow workers, he became a contractor, in a small way and thus acquired a comfortable competency, which is well that he did, for he is now unable to follow his calling. He is a healthy looking man in a general way, but his hands are two bunches of knots, made so by rheumatism, and he suffers much in a general way, from that and from indigestion. I have observed the same tendency in his brother who visits him occasionally and the brother of his wife, who was a country girl, brought up just as he was. She has gotiters and occasional touches of rheumatism, and she is her own housekeeper and cook.

I have preferred to live with them for old acquaintance sake. For a time I wondered at this seeming predisposition of them, their kith and kin, to rheumatism and other blood troubles, but lately my eyes have been opened by reading the Home Health Club literature and applying my own experience since I have been boarding in the same family. I have found my own heretofore rugged physical nature, becoming somewhat worsened.

Being very busy and somewhat complacent, I have been eating what was placed before me. That is meat, bread, potatoes, pies, doughnuts, coffee, tea etc in one continual round, varied on high days and holiday's by something extra in the way of a pudding or a dessert.

These people have been living on that sort of stuff all their lives eating and drinking it, without stint and in out season.

I am informed that the human frame undergoes an entire change every few years. If one lives on the same bread and meat and coffee diet from birth to the grave, what change can there be in him except more of the same sort?

I have also observed in this house a window is never opened in cold or chilly weather, except momentarily to throw something out, or if the room becomes super-heated, to cool it off. Sanitation being an unknown quality except in my own room, where during my presence a window is always opened a little, and for which I have often been admonished by the good housewife, that I will shortly ketch my death-a-cold.

Lately I have cut out the tea and coffee, about two thirds of the meat and all of the hot bread and pie, and drink milk, or what my mother used to call "cambric tea" hot water with a little milk and sugar and with my exercise and death-cold window open, I have begun to feel my old healthy self again. But because of my cut outs I am thought to be going into a decline, which has been sollicitously observed by my sympathizing landlady.

What else in the light of Home Health Club literature, could be expected in these rugged and healthy folks under such a regime as that in which they live, but rheumatism, constipation, biliousness, neuralgia, gas, toothache, and all the bad-blood trail and train? Little else, than now and then, a case of typhoid fever, pneumonia, dropsy, gossip concerning the latest funeral in the circle, and making of mourning clothes for the women?

This is to inform you that with strategic care and persistence I am endeavoring to but in the Home Health Club methods with these people, and with the high hope of eliminating the backaches, miseries in the chest, and sorter ailing atmosphere that too much prevails. This because they are my friends and I like them.

Bully for your fresh air, pure water, sanitation, exercises, hygiene and all that. They will yet make old Earth an all-season health resort.

CLUB NOTES

Dear Doctor:
I have been reading with interest your answers in our papers, and would like to know what you can say in regard to my own case. I am 54 years old, father of four children now grown up. My general health has not been good for some years, especially the last two years. I have never been bedfast, but am weak and rather frigl subject to rheumatism and stomach trouble. Have headaches a great deal, easily exhausted and appetite hard to control. What I wish to speak of more particularly is a roaring in my head.
