

To Escape John Bricks.
A man or a woman with funds to invest should make a prima y principle to first consult an experienced banking house of established reputation. The first step in the prudent investment of your money is the selection of your banking house. You should choose a banker not only willing but competent to serve your every need—one with the requisite patience and sympathy to study your investment problem from all angles, to make you understand his problem.
Investors realize that within the past few years there has sprung up a new class in the banking business, bankers whose business runs well over $100,000 annually and whose success is due to the faithful and thorough attention given each serious inquiry and request for advice. If you can save and command $100 or more each year you can command the best brains in America.—Leslie's.

Mrs. J. Willis Freed's Sunday School class and a few guests held a picnic in Snyder's woods on Saturday. Those present were: Kajhray Witmer, Beatrice Pannabecker, Miriam Mummert, Ruth Splitter, Beatrice Shatz, Carrie Nissley, Kathryn Longenecker and Mrs. J. Willis Freed.

Was Arrested Here
John Campbell was arrested on Monday in this place by Constable Titus on the charge of defrauding a landlord out of a board bill. The prosecutrix is Mrs. Emma Shaeffer, of No. 313 West Marion street, Lancaster, who alleges he owes her $25 for board. He has been committed for a hearing before Alderman Rauch.

Ignored the Heart Convention.
"Did you hear that Mrs. Brownhill has adopted some sort of new belief?" "I'm not at all surprised. I saw her playing bridge last night, and when her partner led spades on a doubled no trump she only smiled."

Whence the "Grass Widow."
To give positively the origin of the expression "grass widow" appears to be impossible. The authorities do not agree on this point. One contends that a woman who said to her friends that her husband "had gone to grass" following a separation is entitled to the credit of coining the expression.
Other writers have attempted to find an explanation of it in the French word "grace," signifying a widow by courtesy. In the Scandinavian languages the prefix "grass" being in common use, others have conjectured that it comes from the word "grading," meaning greedy; this signifying a woman who longs for the husband who is gone.
These give a wide enough choice.

Friendly Advice.
"We surprised all our friends by getting married."
"Good enough. Now surprise 'em by staying married."—Kansas City Journal.

TOWER OF ENEMIES' HEADS

Monument of Modern Barbarism Erected by the Turks in 1809 at Nish, Servia.

A strange monument of modern barbarism still survives at Nish in southeast Servia. During the war of Independence in 1809 the Serbian garrison here exploded a powder magazine and perished therein rather than fall into the hands of the Turks.
A battle had previously taken place and the Turks commemorated their victory by erecting a rude tower, ornamented with the heads of their enemies. Old people will tell you that there were once 1,200 heads, but as the tower was never more than 25 feet high, this is probably an exaggeration.
Lamaritne and other travelers relate that they saw hair still clinging to the skulls, which must have formed a gruesome spectacle. During many years visitors were in the habit of carrying off skulls as souvenirs, but when Nish became Serbian the remainder were taken away for decent burial, all save a few that were too deeply imbedded. Recently the remains of the tower have been covered over with a roof to protect them against the elements and they are regarded as a pious object of patriotic pilgrimage.—Wide World Magazine.

POULTRY

ORIGIN OF INDIAN RUNNERS

Came From West Indies and Are Thought by Many People to Be Most Profitable of Duck Family.
(By ANNA GALLGHER, Ohio.)
It is only comparatively a few years since the Indian Runner ducks made their appearance in America. They came originally from the West Indies, where they have been raised for years, chiefly as egg-producers. They derive their name from their native land and carry upright carriage. In color they are fawn and white, with yellow shanks and light-green bill; the latter being sometimes splashed with black.
The body is long and narrow and is carried in an almost upright position. Neck is long and thin, with finely formed head.
The Indian Runner is rather small, fully matured ducks weighing from four to five pounds. Drakes from five to six pounds, live weight.
But they grow very rapidly while young and are easy to raise. What they lack in weight is more than made up for in their other good qualities.
To begin with, they are very prolific layers; beginning when about six months old. Their eggs are pure white and a little larger than those of a Plymouth Rock hen.
They are superior in quality to any duck's eggs that we have ever eaten, and as a rule, they bring higher prices in the market.

Indian Runner Drake and Duck.

The ducklings reach a marketable size when about twelve weeks old. When forced, they will weigh four to five pounds at two months.
The meat of the Runner is of superior quality; fine in the grain, juicy, and excellent flavor. Hotels and restaurants pay fancy prices for ducklings.
The eggs are in good demand, also. In winter when eggs are high the Indian Runner is "on the job." Any enterprising person can work up a trade among hotels and restaurants that should prove highly profitable.
There is no great danger of strong competition, as comparatively few poultry raisers have taken up this branch of the industry, notwithstanding the fact that nearly all kinds of poultry products are bringing unheard-of prices in the open market.
In summer the Indian Runner when given free range will find the greater part of his living in the fields. But of course when being fattened for market, they need some grain. It would be well to say right here that for best results the grain should be either ground or cooked.

PROVIDING GRIT IN WINTER
Hens Should Be Allowed to Take as Much as They Require—Don't Feed It In Their Mash.
(By W. F. PARRISH.)
When winter comes and the ground freezes, or is covered with snow a good deal of the time, grit must be supplied. Gravel or grit should be sharp, so as to both cut and grind. Smooth pieces of gravel will not answer the purpose. Gravel dug from a pit will make one of the best grits.
When pounded into small pieces, broken crockery will make excellent grit, also. A little sand mixed with the other grit is helpful, but it will not answer for exclusive use, not being sharp nor coarse enough.

LUCKY ACCIDENT FOR MINER

What at First Seemed Adverse Stroke of Fate Turned Out a Caprice of Fortune.
Where hundreds of men are "prospecting" one of them is liable, of course, to stumble upon a ledge that "pans out" in paying gold or silver. That lucky "find" gives birth to a dozen stories about millionaires who have become "rich beyond the dreams of avarice" by some fortunate accident. The following story is such a one.
A miner named Adams was prospecting in a northwestern state. While trudging along, one hot day, through a gulch, where the sun had a good chance at his back, he suddenly smelled smoke. He glanced quickly in every direction to ascertain the origin of the smoke, but seeing nothing resumed his journey. A moment later the smell returned stronger than ever. A light wreath of vapor curled about his ears and gave him to understand that his haversack was on fire. Like all miners, he carried a large lens for the purpose of examining the specimens of the sand in his pan and the truth flashed upon him. For want of room he had hung the glass on the outside and the rays of the sun had been concentrated on his haversack, which was thus set on fire. As among its contents were 12 or 15 pounds of powder he lost no time in dropping the burden.
The haversack fell between two huge stones, out of sight. Adams reached a safe distance and watched the smoke rising from his worldly possessions. Suddenly there was a deafening report. The ground trembled and Adams dodged behind a huge stone. Rising, he went to the spot to gather up what he could find, when his eyes almost started out of his head at seeing the quartz that had been blown up fairly glittering with gold. His powder had done better on its own account than it had ever done on his, and had literally blown open a gold mine for his benefit. He was made a rich man and named his mine the "Nick o' Time."

SCOTCH ALARM CLOCK

A tourist in rural Scotland took refuge for the night in the cottage of an old lady. He asked her to wake him up early in the morning, warning her that he was quite deaf. Upon awakening much later than the appointed hour he found that the old lady, with strict regard for the proprietaries, had slipped under the door a slip of paper upon which was written: "Sir, it's half past eight."

PRIZE STEERS NOT GOOD MEAT

The meat of more than one prize steer has proved disappointing in the eating, though fine to look at. In the development of the animal for competition his flesh is sometimes, if not always, seamed with small veins of fat which are diluted by cooking into tough strings. Hence, the rangeland steer, not nursed into prominence, affords the better steak or roast.

MUST HAVE BEEN HER LUCKY DAY

In a lot of old papers and magazines that Mrs. T. G. Payson gave to the Salvation army of Jersey City the other day was an envelope containing $225 in bills that Mrs. Payson had overlooked. After 20 men had searched for hours in the army's waste paper pile, Mrs. Payson looking on, the money was found and restored to her.

WOMEN FOLLOW THE HOUNDS

In No Country is the Sport So Well Beloved by Women as it is in Ireland.

Hunting absorbs keen sportswomen in Ireland, and it is seldom that a frost drives the Irish follower to hounds from the countryside. Irish women are renowned for their fearless prowess in the hunting field, where the terrible obstacles to be negotiated call for nerves of steel, and it is neck or nothing in the distressful country, says the London Daily Graphic.

The fearsome stone walls, sometimes overgrown with turf and masking a brook, appal all but the stoutest hearts, and even the most hard-ened sportswoman is known to quail at the commencement of the hunting season, experiencing the sensation of the heart in the mouth when called upon to face the stiff going. She finds her nerve returning, however, after a day or so in the saddle. The late empress of Austria used to hunt regularly in Ireland, where her reckless and brilliant horsemanship is still spoken of. With the late Bay Middleton to give her a lead, she was always in the first flight and stuck at nothing. The famous happy-go-lucky hospitality that marks the Irish temperament is exemplified in matters sporting, and open house is kept by those having accommodation in a good hunting district. The Irish colleen will dance all night at a hunt ball and turn up at a distant meet as fresh as paint without going to bed at all, full of life and spirit, with wit and repartee bubbling like a font. The Irish country brings out all the dare devil Irish nature, and there is little searching for gaps or gates when the blood of Irish horse and rider is up.

Ireland is not overrepresented in the matter of hunting, and Irish packs are not by any means numerous, and may be reckoned to number a couple of dozen. Some only possess quite a restricted number of couples, and but few hunt four or five days a week, though an occasional day may bring the total up. The Meath hunts five days a week and is one of the famous hunts of the United Kingdom, and the County Galway, the Blazers, has four days a week.

Dickens' Care for His Guests.

If Dickens was particular regarding the equipment of his own bedroom he was equally careful for the comfort of his guests. Charles Dobby, in "Charles Dickens as I Knew Him," says of the bedrooms at Gad's Hill: "Each of these rooms contained the most comfortable of beds, a sofa, an easy chair, cane-bottomed chairs—in which Mr. Dickens himself had a great belief, always preferring to use one himself—a large-sized writing table, profusely supplied with paper and envelopes of every conceivable size and description, and an almost daily change of new quill pens. There was a miniature library of books in each room, a comfortable fire in winter, with a shining copper kettle in each fireplace; and, on a side table, cups, saucers, tea caddy, teapot, sugar and milk."
A peculiarity of the household, adds Mr. Dobby, was the fact that, except at table, no servant was ever seen about.
