

HOW BLOOD IS MADE.

The liquids and the digested foods in the alimentary canal pass through the wall of the canal into the blood. This process is called absorption and takes place chiefly from the small intestine. After absorption the blood carries the food through the body, and each cell takes from the blood the food it needs. A pure glyceric extract made from bloodroot, mandrake, stone, queen's root and golden seal root, and sold by druggists for the past forty years under the name of gives uniformly excellent results as a tonic to help in the assimilation of the food and in the absorption of the blood of the food it requires. Eradicate the poisons from the blood with this alternative extract which does not shrink the white blood corpuscles, because containing no alcohol or other injurious ingredients. Thus the body can be built up—strong to resist disease. This is a tonic taken from Nature's garden that builds up those weakened by disease. Sold by druggists everywhere. Ma. CHAS. FARRER, JR., of 322 Woodlawn Ave., Philadelphia, Pa., writes: "I was troubled with my stomach for almost three years. Tried several doctors and most everything anybody recommended to me, but kept getting worse and honestly did not care to live as I was never well even though at times, I had no pain. My symptoms were as follows: Abdomen hard, my whole body in a throbbing, itching, and burning and soreness in the stomach, vomiting, constipation, could not eat and would not eat or what would not do me any good. After taking Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery with the 'Pleasant Pellets' it has made me a well man which is something to live for."

CARE OF THE POULTRY HOUSE

Lice and Mites Cause More Losses Than All Other Things Combined—Spray is Urged.

(By J. S. JEFFREY.) It is quite possible to have the best poultry kept in well-built houses, well fed, and still not get any profit or pleasure from them. In too many cases where a good start has been made the house is neglected and infested with mites. It may be said that filth and mites generally go together, for while a house that is kept fairly clean may be infested with mites, it is very seldom that a dirty house will be found to be free from these pests. Lice and mites cause more losses among poultry than all other things combined. Poultry houses should be so arranged inside that the poultryman can keep down the mites without an undue expenditure of time and energy. Mites live in a house and must be killed there. Dusting the hens will never get rid of them.

The best means of getting rid of mites in the houses is to spray thoroughly with kerosene emulsion. This should be done twice with an interval of from five to seven days between the sprayings.

The emulsion is made as follows: Cut up one pound of soap and dissolve it in hot water; while the water is hot, stir in two gallons of kerosene and continue stirring for fifteen to twenty minutes. It is important to have the kerosene, soap and water well mixed, especially if it is not to be used at once. To this mixture add seventeen gallons of water. This makes a 10 per cent. emulsion. Some recommend 15 per cent., but we have found 10 per cent. efficient in killing the mites. Kerosene used on the roost once a week in hot weather will help to keep down both mites and lice. If put on a short time before the hens go to roost, some of it will get on the feathers and will kill and drive away lice. Care must be taken not to get too much on the fowls, or it will blister them and this will stop the hens from laying just as much as the lice will.

KEEP TAB ON AGE OF FOWLS

Enables Poultryman to Cull Out Hens That are Unprofitable—One Method Favored.

It is mere guess work to tell the age of a hen after she has passed the pullet stage. To the poultryman it is important that the exact age of every fowl on his premises be known. Hens that are past the age for profit should be culled out and their places taken by the younger stock. Legbands with numbers may be used when the pullets arrive at maturity, and, if records are kept, the identity of each fowl is easily established. A less elaborate method, and one which no poultryman can afford not to follow, is to punch a hole in one of the four webs of the feet, each web representing a certain year. Special punches for this purpose may be purchased from any poultry supply house, but a small sized leather belt punch can be used to good advantage. The hole is punched very easily when the newly hatched chick is first taken from the nest or incubator. All of one season's chicks may be marked on the same web, although if special hatchings are to be kept separately as high as fifteen combinations can be used. If properly done the hole or traces of the scar will always remain and the identity of the fowl cannot be lost.

Size of Poultry House.

As to the proportionate size of the house to the number of fowls kept, only he who remembers that "there is more profit in a house half full than in a house twice full," is safe from blundering at this point. The most level-headed practical poultrymen insist upon ten square feet per fowl. Contrast this with the room afforded 100 fowls in a 12x20 house, less than 2 1/3 feet of space to each (which is a common sight) and judge as to the chances for eggs in the latter case and take warning.

Some time ago a magazine writer asked pertinent questions. "Should Smith go to Church?" The returns from New Jersey primary indicate that he should.

"Beek is going up again" in the face of a plentiful corn crop with the same persistency that characterizes its rise when the crop is short.

Are Even More Beautiful Than Their Circassian Sisters.

But Beware of These Beauties, As They Also Have a Violent Temper and May Place a Yataghan Between Your Shoulders.

Tizi-Ouzou, Kabylia.—Though the Mauresques of Algeria and the fair-haired beauties of Circassia combine a remarkable loveliness of features and complexion with a certain voluptuous elegance, they compare with the dignified, graceful, insolent Kabyle women very much as the show girls of a light opera chorus compare with the star. Even the humblest peasant girl, grinding the family flour between the upper and the nether stone in the doorway of a mud hovel, possesses a distinction of form and feature which would attract attention in any assemblage. With all her dignity, however, the Kabyle woman does not rise superior to the African's fondness for personal adornment, being so laden with bracelets, anklets and necklaces of gold, silver, turquoise and coral that when she moves she sounds like an approaching four-in-hand. Her approach is likewise heralded by the peck of an exotic and almost overpowering perfume, which, like the celebrated perfume de Bey of Tunis, is composed of nearly a score of blended scents, the odor changing from carnation to belladonna, to rose, to violet, and so on, every few minutes.

Lest this glowing description of their charms should start you post-haste for Kabylia, let me warn you that these insolent, eyed beauties are headstrong and hot of temper, and that if you happened to say the wrong thing to them it is more than probable that you would find the double-bladed yataghan, which every Kabyle maiden wears very much as an American girl wears a bunch of violets, planted between your shoulders.

They are fond of cold steel, are these Kabyles, for at the conclusion of a wedding ceremony the bridegroom, walking backward, holds aloft a naked dagger, and the bride, following him, keeps the point of it between her teeth. Another marriage custom of Kabylia, even more barbaric, consists in the part martyrdom of the bride, who, clad in her wedding finery, stands through an entire morning against a pillar in the village square, her eyes closed, her arms pressed to her sides and with only the narrow base of the column for a foothold, the while a ring of villagers criticise and comment on her appearance. I might add that, despite the stern stuff of which the Kabyle women are made, the bride usually faints during the ordeal. If, after learning of these quaint whims and customs, you wish to see the Kabyle women with your own eyes, you have only to take passage to Algiers and a train thence, for some twenty-odd hours, over a railway which appears to be suffering from convulsions, to its terminus at Tizi-Ouzou. Thence, on horseback, astride of a donkey or afoot, but always with your Arab guide in front of you and with your hand in your jacket pocket, and in that hand a service revolver, you can penetrate with greater or less safety into those wild fastnesses of the Atlas range, where one can buy a dozen beauties outright for the price of a limousine motor car.—Metropolitan.

AUTO ROUTS HORSESHOER

Chicago Blacksmith Goes Into Bankruptcy, Asserting Decline of Horse Was His Undoing.

Chicago.—Because the automobile has gradually encroached upon the usefulness of the horse, Thomas F. D. Folan, who has spent his life as a horseshoer on the West Side, filed a petition in bankruptcy in the federal court. For more than ten years he has conducted a horseshoeing shop at 466 Milwaukee avenue. His liabilities are $3,889.96 and his assets $3,732.75. He is fifty-six years old. "Folan once had a prosperous horseshoeing business," said Attorney Joseph E. O'Donnell, his counsel. "He has watched his business decline in such rapid strides lately that he quit discouraged. The automobile was the cause."
