USEFUL INFORMATION FOR THE FARMER

Pick Your Apples—When Cool and Keep Them Cool—Watch Your Bull—International Laying Contest—The Fertilizer Question—Other Notes

In selecting potatoes for seed purposes it is not only best to get those of desired type and size, but equally important that the seed chosen shall come of prolific stock, that is, from seed that produced as many good sized tubers as possible in the hills. The only way such seed can be selected is by hand digging, which gives time for the inspection of each hill as it is opened. The selection of seed potatoes from the bin promiscuously has just about as much to commend it as selecting seed corn from the bin after the crop is husked.

On a milk company's dairy farm in New Jersey it is said that ten men are today milking regularly thirty five cows each twice daily. They begin work at 2 o'clock in the afternoon and continue milking five hours. They then rest seven hours until 2 a. m. and milk again for a like period, having the period from 7 a. m. to 2 p. m. to use as they like. The fastest milker of the ten milks a cow on the average in every seven and a half minutes, while the average rate is one cow in each eight minutes and a half. The men receive 17 cents an hour for their services, besides room and board.

The state experiment station of Florida is performing a service for the farmers and truck gardeners of the state that other commonwealths might well follow the example of. The service referred to consists in the analyzing of samples of fertilizers for the farmers of the state free of charge. There is no law compelling the state chemists to perform this service, but they seem to have taken the ground that it was perfectly proper to do it so long as no laws of the state prohibited it. In connection with this work the station chemists are endeavoring to give those who sent samples of fertilizers to them some practical instruction in the chemistry of soil and fertilizers and their efforts seem to be bearing good fruit.

At the close of the forty sixth week of the international egg laying contest which is being conducted at Storrs Agricultural college, Connecticut, Mr. F. G. Yost's pen of White Leghorns was in the lead with a score of 985 eggs, while Beulah Farm White Wyandottes ranked second with 945 eggs. The Marwood Farm White Leghorns are third with a score of 941 eggs, while the Tom's Poultry Farm pen of White Leghorns ranks fourth with a production of 934 eggs. The English pen of White Leghorns belonging to Thomas Barron rank fifth with 908 eggs. It is interesting to note that of the eight pens that have made a score of 900 eggs or better seven belong to the White Leghorn class, the one exception being the pen of White Wyandottes mentioned above.

All bulls, no matter how tame they are supposed to be, should be handled at all times with the possibility in mind that they may become mad and hurt some one. An instance tending to show this was related in the hearing of the writer a short time since. A supposedly gentle bull, on whose docility the owner prided himself greatly, was being exhibited to some admiring friends. Wishing the animal to move his position a bit that he might appear to better advantage, the owner struck him lightly with a whip. In an instant the devil in the animal, until that time latent, burst forth, and, turning on his owner, he killed him before the eyes of his friends. It is well to regard these brutes as just what they are treacherous and unreliable. Then if they prove any thing better a fellow is ahead that much. If they do not he is not taken off his guard and does not have his life insurance matured in a jiffy.
