Tonic Laughter.
There is no spice like laughter at one's meals, the most salutary of all the bodily movements. It involves both body and soul. A good, hearty laugh stimulates the circulation, promotes digestion, and enlivens every vital organ. It is, in short, a sort of shower bath of the spirit, invigorating the whole man, and it is the cheapest luxury at our command. Moreover, cheerfulness is largely a matter of habit, and there is nothing that yields larger returns for the effort involved.

Book for Baby.
When baby arrives at a taste for books a durable one can be made of brown holland or linen. Buttonhole round the leaves with bright silk or thread, and paste in bright colored pictures cut from magazines. A row of stitching made with an unthreaded needle will mark an even border and serve as a marker for the insertion of the needle when doing the button-holing.

Remedy for Chapped Hands.
Quarter of an ounce of camphor, the juice of sweet oil and white wax, place together in a cup to melt until thoroughly mixed. Well wash the hands in warm water and good soap. Just before going to bed, rub thoroughly dry, then apply the remedy, rubbing it well in; sleep in loose gloves with holes cut in the palms.

RENOWNED POOL OF SIVA

Wond' ful Waters Credited by People of India With All Sorts of Magnetic Attributes.

A remarkable Indian ceremony is the Kumbakonam Mahanavami festival. This feast takes place once a year, in the Hindu gods are supposed to visit the sacred tank on each twelfth anniversary. It is said that the god Brahma once requested Siva to collect the essence of all the waters in the world. It is understood that Siva succeeded in doing this, placing the fluid in a pot, which he hid away on the top of a mountain. During the flood this pot floated away from its position, and when the waters subsided it rested at a spot some distance away, now known as Kumbakonam. Siva, who happened to be hunting in the vicinity, saw the pot and, giving his bow and arrow, shot at it with disastrous results. The water, rushing out, filled a hollow, and this at the present time is the renowned tank. This tank is now a place of pilgrimage, where, during the festival, untold thousands of the faithful dip themselves in the wonderful water, which is credited with all sorts of magical attributes.—Wide World Magazine.

GOAT IS PROFITABLE

Animal Is Less Liable to Tuberculosis Than the Cow.

Toggenburg and Saanen Are Most Popular, Although There Are Great Variety of Breeds—Need Protection Against Rains.

(By MRS. A. JOSEPH.)

The goat because of its hardy nature is less liable to tuberculosis than the cow. It utilizes food better and gives more milk considering its body weight. They prefer hilly ground and do not do so well on low swampy ground. They need protection against cold rains and should be well housed.

Goat's milk is thicker, richer and sweeter than cow's milk and makes an excellent food for invalids and babies, being more like mother's milk than any other.

Although butter is made from the milk it takes longer to make it than from cow's milk because the fat globules are smaller and will not rise quickly.

It makes excellent cheese. The best known goat's milk cheese is the Roquefort. The odor which is so often found in goat's milk is mostly due to outside causes as the milk absorbs flavors quickly, more so even than cow's milk.

A goat should give two quarts of milk a day to be profitable, but the average is three quarts a day. They keep this up for six or seven months. A good milk goat should be milked three times a day.

The two most popular goats are the Toggenburg and Saanen, although there are a great variety of breeds. The Toggenburg is the best milker. The color of its hair is brown with a white stripe down each side with white feet. The Saanen is white.

Both breeds are supposed to be hornless, but occasionally horns are found on some.

When just beginning the business it is best to buy goats four or five years old as they will know how to take care of their kids and will also be broken to milk.

Goats produce milk after their first kid but do not attain their greatest milk capacity until their third year.

Beginners usually breed their goats too young which not only stunts them but reduces their flow of milk.

It is best to breed a goat when she is about a year old. They produce offspring twice a year, but unless one is breeding kids for market it is best to breed but once a year.

Goats need plenty of exercise in some place where they can climb. A fence four feet high will keep goats inside an inclosure which is a better way than staking them out. They can be kept on the pasture much as our dairy cows are kept.

PORTABLE HOUSE FOR SWINE

Building Is Cheap and Often Old Material May Be Used in Erection—Easily Moved.

The Colorado experiment station describes the house shown in the illustration as follows:

It is eight feet wide, eight feet long, and the roof is eight feet in length, making the building seven feet high. The door in front is 2½ feet wide, three feet high, and another at the back, near the top, is 12x18 inches. Heavy muslin, admitting air and light without draught. The frame is made of 2x4's and is covered with drop siding. No floor is used. When it is desired to move the building, it may be tipped over onto a low wagon or stone boat. This is the house we recommend for beginners. It is cheap, and often old material can be used in building it. It is easily moved and easily disinfected and can be changed so frequently that it may be kept on clean ground, free from disease. When a sow farrows in cold weather, a lantern hung to the roof will keep the building sufficiently warm.

Shipping Breeding Pigs. In shipping breeding pigs be sure and write or wire—better wire to be on the safe side—the buyer what train the pig is shipped on, so that he will be looking for him and get him home and uncrated promptly.

Pigs that are about to become chilled when they are shipped should be packed around the necks with straw or the blankets.

May Ward Off Pneumonia. Here is a recipe which a physician gave me several years ago, says a writer, and I have used it in my family ever since. For coughs, colds or any bronchial trouble saturate a flannel cloth and apply to chest: Turpentine liniment—Take a pint bottle, put in white of one egg, shake well, add four tablespoonsfuls turpentine, shake till foamy, then fill with good vinegar; shake well.

BUICK

Would you go to a tailor for a suit of clothes if you knew he bought the goods in Chicago, had the coat made in Lincoln Neb., the vest in St. Louis Mo., and the pants in Springfield, Mass., and that all he had to do was to put in the pockets and sew on the buttons?

The motor car company which is going to be in business five years from now is the concern that builds its own product from the ground up. They can build it cheaper and they can build it better. You want a car don't you, that is backed by a company that won't be quitting business about the time you are needing some mechanical replacements?

What are acknowledged as the best motor cars on the market? Name them over. Aren't we right? Aren't they the cars built by the concerns that sell them?

The Buick Motor Company builds everything from the ground up. We are building a motor car that sells because it is a good car, a powerful car, a durable car, and economical car.

What a Buick has done for others, a Buick will do for you.
