A NEW TROLLEY LINE
Road from Hershey to Elizabethtown Will Divide Many Farms

People along the proposed new trolley road from Hershey to Elizabethtown are naturally more or less excited about the road, as the present survey will cut up a number of fine Cornwago farms. After going thru the farm of Eli Brandt on the Lancaster county side of the Cornwago creek, says the Middletown Journal, it will cross the stream and take a straight cut thru the following farms: John S. Herr, Harry Kennard, H. F. Gingrich, Sam Shelly, John S. Baker, Lin Lehman, S. K. Shenk, John A. Shenk, Amos Hein, Benj. Grubb estate, A. B. Shenk, Frank Shafer, J. S. Farver, Menno Hershey and a few others interesting at the Homestead with the Hershey and Campbelltown road. This road, if built, will drain a rich milk-producing district, and will greatly help the farmers to market their milk and other products. The present survey neither passes Deodote nor Bachmanville. The first place will be about one-fourth mile east of the village.

Prominent people of Bachmanville are trying to have the road pass that place, and have sent a man to interview those interested in the new road to get them to pass that way if possible.

Surveyors are at work daily on the route changing from time to time.

AN INJUNCTION GRANTED

An Erection of Dam Across Tail Race Causes Trouble

In the Court of Common Pleas John M. Groff, attorney for Daniel Drace, has filed a bill in equity against Abram L. Nissley. The bill sets forth that on March 26, 1909, Drace purchased a tract of land in East Hempfield and it joins that of Nissley. On Drace's land there is a grist mill and a portion of the tail race runs through Nissley's land. The race also carries drainage off the Drace premises.

It is claimed by the plaintiff that Nissley is about to erect a dam across the race which will dam back the water and cause Drace's place to become flooded. Judge Hassler granted the preliminary injunction restraining Nissley from building the dam.

A GREAT YEAR 1913

This Land of Ours Promises to Do Better Than Ever Before

If the record for the second half of 1913 keeps pace with the first six months, 1913 will be the greatest year for American industries that this country ever has known, according to a statement issued on Monday by the Department of Commerce.

In the imports of raw materials for use in manufacturing, the figures for 1913 exceed those of the year preceding by $77,000,000, and imports of manufactures for further use in manufacturing exceeded those of last year by $55,000,000 while exports of the products of the factories exceeded those of 1912 by $167,000,000. Cotton, silk, fibres, tobacco, hides, lumber, copper, pig iron and chemicals used in manufacturing all show increases in the quantity imported in 1913 compared with 1912, while in the other principle manufacturing materials such as wool, rubber, tin and iron ore, the figures of 1913 differ but little from those of 1912.

The total value of all imports for the half year was $1,812,978,234 against 600 in the same period of 1912. The $1,653,964,934 in 1912 and of exports, $2,465,884,149, against $2,204,392,469 in 1912.

The general increase in industrial interests seems also judging from the department's figures to be backed up by statistics on the domestic movement of manufactured materials. The westward movement of iron ore through the Soo Canal, from the opening of navigation on the Great Lakes to July 1, 1913, as shown by the monthly reports of the canal superintendent of the canal, aggregated 15,250,000 tons against 13,000,000 in the same period of 1912. The wheat movements through the canal were 53,500,000 bushels, against 47,500,000 in the same period of last year; other grain 33,000,000 bushels against 18,500,000; flour, 2,500,000 barrels, against 2,000,000 and all freights 18,250,000 short tons, against 15,333,000 in the same period of last year; while west bound freights through the canal were 7,000,000 tons against 4,500,000 in the same period last year.

Anthracite coal shipments in the first half of 1913 were 34,852,000 tons against 23,957,000 tons in the first half of 1912.

The exports of iron and steel manufactured in the fiscal year 1913 approximated $304,500,000 against $268,000,000 in 1912 and the total exports of manufactures and other foodstuffs are $1,187,000,000 against $1,020,000,000 in 1912. The copper production in the first six months of 1913 is reported to be 809,194,000 pounds against 735,586,000 pounds in the same period of 1912 and the exports of copper and manufactures thereof (exclusive of ore) approximately $140,000,000 in the year 1913, against $114,000,000 in 1912.
