 The sidewalk adjacent to the Trolley tracks on Locust avenue built by Mr. and Mrs. Jos. W. Kraybill is appreciated by all who board the trolley cars at this point especially during rainy weather, when the clay is as adhesive as mortar.

WILL BE RATHER HIGH
 Apparently Few Turkeys in the County This Year
 Saturday's Lancaster Morning News contained the following:
 It looks now as though poultry for Thanksgiving and the holidays will be expensive luxuries unless they are more plentiful in other sections than they are in this county. There is an especial scarcity in the southern end where generally great flocks of turkeys can be found and geese, geese and ducks usually are numerous.
 Local poultry dealers say there are no Lancaster county turkeys and very few ducks, geese and geese. One dealer said that all the turkeys he expected to have for the Thanksgiving trade would come from Virginia and Perry county, this state. When he was asked about prices he threw up his hands. He has not the slightest idea what the turkey bird will bring, and will not have until agents of his house who are now in the Old Dominion and the upriver county report. Ducks will sell at 16 cents per pound in all probability, and geese at a cent lower. The supply of geese is rather limited and they will bring $1.25 per pair at least.
 It really seems that there has been a gradual falling off in the raising of turkeys and it has been many years since they were so scarce as they are at present. Farmers' wives who are generally proprietors of the poultry yard say that at best they are hard to raise and that this year was a more than ordinary hard one and that a great many of them died when quite young. One lady in the lower end out of a good sized flock raised one, another had three, while one of the most successful raisers who always had a fine flock had twelve when she should have had at least fifty.
 Last year many of the lower end farmers went to York county and bought largely for the Lancaster market and will do so this year as it seems they are having better luck in raising them in that county.
 Years ago geese were really hard to sell in any quantities and they could be bought for from 50 to 75 cents. Now they go off readily at just about three times that price. There are some fine flocks but not as many as usual.
 Ducks were just as plenty this year as usual but they are not kept as they were years ago. When they are two months old raisers begin to sell them and by this time they are almost all gone. Of course a few people still have a few and these, like geese, have gone to high prices.
 When it comes to the guinea fowl which has gotten to be a favorite with epicures, the raising of them has, decidedly increased in the last few years and the prices correspondingly. The old price was thirty-five cents a pair, but now dealers are offering as high as a dollar and fifteen cents for them and for flocks that are little larger than a partridge, they pay ninety cents a pair. And it is hard to say what the city consumer pays, as in the leading restaurants they are served as game. While the shipments for months have been large, there are still many being held to be sold later in the season.
 At the high prices for other fowls it is likely many will fall back on the old reliable chicken, though he is also bringing good prices.

GOVERNMENT WANTS DAIRYMEN
 An Opportunity for Those Seeking Homes in the West
 The establishment of creameries on several irrigation projects of the Government during the past two years has proven so successful that there is widespread interest in dairying among the settlers. Unfortunately many of the settlers are without the necessary capital to purchase good dairy stock and for the time being are forced to continue the uneconomic method of selling all their forage crops. A large number of these settlers are trying to operate more land than their means will permit, and with a view of engaging in dairying are desirous of subdividing their farms in order to get money for the purchase of stock. This has placed on the market a considerable area of land on several projects where nearly all of the Government land has been taken up. The prices and terms offered are more on the basis of the need for money than for experienced dairy men to establish themselves in communities where the success of their enterprise is practically assured. There are numerous sections where good land suited for dairy farming can be had at prices ranging from $25 to $50 per acre, with water ready for irrigation. On all these projects the markets for dairy products, beef and pork, are excellent and there is every indication of a continuance for an indefinite period. It has been demonstrated repeatedly that dairy farming in the West is the safest, surest, and in the long run the most profitable form of agriculture to engage in.
 The Settlement Agent of the U. S. Reclamation Service at Chicago is furnishing information concerning location, prices and terms to all who are seeking homes in the West, but is especially desirous of interesting practical farmers with capital. Many of these projects contain a few Government farms available for homesteading, and literature describing them is also supplied. In view of the very high prices prevailing elsewhere for lands suitable for dairying, the western opportunities are regarded as exceedingly attractive.

QUESTION OF FALL PLOWING
 Especially Desirable in Lancaster County to Destroy Injurious Insects
 The advisability of fall plowing for spring crops is a question which is often asked. There are arguments both for and against this practice, but invariably these arguments must be applied to the particular field in question and such conditions as character of soil, location, and previous crop grown must always be considered.
 It is generally unwise to fall plow a slope or hilly field because the loss of soil bodily removed by spring and winter rains more than counterbalances the gain from turning the land at this time of year. Again in a cultivated field like corn or tobacco in which no cover crop has been sown, fall plowing is not to be recommended. After such cultivated crop is removed an excess of available plant food accumulates especially during such a comparatively warm fall as we have had. In this event, fall plowing would only increase the tendency for such plant food to leach away during winter and spring. The advantages of fall plowing are: (1) to remove the mechanical condition of stiff clayey soils, leaving them loose and friable; (2) to increase the amount of soil moisture; (3) to permit earlier cultivation; (4) to permit earlier cultivation; (5) to destroy a large number of insects injurious to grain and grass crops.
 The latter is perhaps one of the most emphatic arguments for plowing in the fall. Some sections of Lancaster county have experienced severe attacks on their corn crops from the corn root louse, wire worms and white grubs. These insects have been most active in corn following sod one or two years. By turning the land during November or December, the farmer will often break up housekeeping and the winter plans for his bugship or his wormship by exposing these bugs or worms to the frost.

Cassel Homestead Sold
 Marietta, Nov. 18—Today the old Cassel homestead that has for more than a century been in the possession of that family, changed and Roy D. Kaufman was the purchaser. Abraham Cassel was postmaster in the building, corner of Market street and Elbow Lane many years ago, and then Joseph L. Cassel conducted a restaurant there for several years. Mr. Kaufman is making a number of extensive improvements and will reopen on Saturday for business.

May Go to Harrisburg
 Last evening's Harrisburg Telegraph contained the following: "Although no one is in view to take the place of the Rev. John Mills Gilbert as rector of St. Paul's Episcopal Church, the arrangements have been made by the vestry to fill the pulpit during the month of December.
 The Rev. Mr. Gilbert preaches his last sermon on November 30, before taking up his new work at West Chester, and the Rev. William M. Gamble, rector of St. Luke's church, Mt. Joy, will occupy the pulpit thru-out the month of December. Rev. Mr. Gamble has resigned at Mt. Joy, the resignation to take effect Dec. 1. He may be considered for the vacancy."
 Former Resident Robbed
 His many friends here will regret to learn that our former townsman, Richard Hobday, was relieved of $18.33 in cash on Saturday night. A thief entered his residence at Lancaster, thru a window and took the money from a bedside shelf. There is no clue.
