Farmers Column

VERY VALUABLE INFORMATION FOR THE FARMERS

The Food of the Farm Horse—The Proper Sorting of Eggs—The Marring of the Garden—The Good and the Bad Cow—Charcoal for Hogs

Hogs appreciate kindness and are not so stupid as they look.

Less hay and some grain is more economical and will make a better colt.

Feed the finishing pigs all they will eat. If the appetite is keen, the digestion is good.

A few coals from the wood fire of the kitchen put into the houses now and then, where the hogs can grind them up to charcoal, help to keep the hogs healthy.

One of the commonest blunders the farmer makes is that of keeping what he considers to be good dairy cows when, if he would keep a close record of them he would find that they are barely paying for their feed, to say nothing of their care.

A common practice is to manure the garden every year late in the fall or before planting in the spring, no further attention being given. This practice, however, is not the best.

The manure for the garden should be kept in a large box with a lid or so screened that flies cannot enter it.

Manure heaps are the natural breeding places of these pests, and if they are allowed to remain near the house uncovered will prove a great nuisance.

A good plan is to use a very close wire screen nailed to a frame with hinges for the top. The manure should be spaded often on the top so that the water from the clouds or the sprinkling pot may penetrate to every part of it.

If kept in a box a spout should be placed in one corner at the bottom, so that the water may drain into a sunken barrel. This will supply liquid manure, which can be used at all seasons when vegetables and flowers are growing.

Even buyers at the country store will appreciate your efforts if you will sort your eggs according to size and color. Graded eggs show up a great deal better than those that are piled in promiscuously, and should—and will—command a better price if the dealer's attention is called to the fact, and he is assured that your eggs will be furnished that way all the time.

There are few even of country stores, that would not be able to command a higher price for uniform clean, fresh eggs, attractively packed, and one that produces that kind the year round can secure an advance in the market price. Large shippers will jump at the chance to secure eggs of this class and are always ready to pay a higher price. One firm made the statement recently that strictly first class eggs were worth eight cents a dozen more to their trade than eggs that they could not guarantee. It is the cheapest possible way to increase the poultry income. Try it.

The feed for the farm horse should be of as good quality as that given the higher priced animals used in the cities or on the race track. The question of mode of feeding is an important factor in keeping the farm horse healthy. Most of the hay should be fed at night when the horse has plenty of time to eat. The hay should be of good quality. All mouldy or musty hay should be rejected as unfit for food. By selecting only good hay the danger of heaves is avoided. The most natural grain for the horse is oats. The oats should be well matured and not mouldy. Bran has very little nourishment in it but serves as a bowel regulator. If a quart of bran is fed each animal with the oats the danger of colic is lessened. Whenever possible one should make it a practice to feed the farm horse after it has had 30 minutes or an hour to rest before trying to digest its concentrated food. In other words let the farm horse eat a little hay while warm and after it has entirely dried off, water and grain. During a resting period feed more bran than oats. Then there will be less danger of azoturia after the horse is put back to work. A well-regulated barn of modern type is equipped with watering trough in the barn. If possible all horses should have an opportunity of drinking pure water at any time while in the barn. If the horse is not too warm. Some ranchers find it a paying proposition to set a pail of water in for each horse before retiring. This gives the horse an opportunity to have water when it needs it the most while eating the dry hay.

Farmer Injured While Moving
Clayton Porter, of Lobata, while preparing to move to the farm of M. R. Hoffman, tripped over an iron kettle. He incurred a fractured rib on the right side and was also severely confused. His injuries were dressed by Dr. G. A. Harter, Maytown.

Lay All Night With Broken Leg
James McKenna was looking for a place to sleep in a barn near Harrisburg, when he fell and broke his leg. There he lay until found the next morning. He is 62 years old.

Broke in a Strange Manner
While Mrs. Samuel Cranford Jr. of Columbia, stepped off her porch to the pavement, she broke her knee cap.

GIVE THAT PUNY CHILD

THIS GUARANTEED REMEDY

If your child is under-weight, listless, ailing, liable to get sick easily, it needs a medicine to build its weight and strength. For this purpose there is nothing else we know of that we can so strongly endorse as Rexall Olive Oil Emulsion. The remarkable success of this splendid medicine is due to the fact that it contains ingredients that tone the nerves, enrich the blood and furnish to the entire system the strength, weight and health-building substances it needs. And, it does all this without injuring the stomach. In fact, Rexall Olive Oil Emulsion is not only pleasant to take, but even the most sensitive stomach is benefited by it, and the digestion improved. On the other hand, it contains no alcohol or habit-forming drugs, which most parents object to giving their children. It does its good work by taking hold of the weakness and builds the body up to its natural strength, at the same time making it strong to resist disease.

If Rexall Olive Oil Emulsion doesn't build your child up, feed the stunted, puny muscles, and make the little one lively, strong, well, and full of the animal spirits children are meant by nature to have, come back and tell us and get your money back. We don't want you to lose a cent. We think this is no more than fair, and it leaves you no cause to hesitate.

For old people also for convalescents—for all who are nervous, tired-out, run-down, no matter what the cause—we offer Rexall Olive Oil Emulsion with the same guarantee of entire satisfaction or money back. Sold only at the 7,000 Rexall Stores, and in this town only by us. $1.00—E. W. Garber's Drug Store, Mount Joy, Pa.

BURNS CAUSE HER DEATH

An Eleven-Year-Old Child the Victim of a Distressing Accident

A distressing accident occurred on Friday morning at Billmyer, near Bainbridge, in which a little girl was so badly burned that she died Friday night in the Columbia Hospital.

The victim of the accident was Elizabeth Flicie, eleven years old, daughter of Mrs. Eva Flicie, who conducts a boarding-house at Billmyer. The little girl was standing in front of a stove when her skirt took fire. The flimsy material burned rapidly, and the child was soon enveloped in a mass of flames. Her mother heard her daughter's screams and extinguished the fire, but the little girl was terribly burned from her knees to her head. In some places the flesh was literally roasted. Dr. W. P. Worth, of Bainbridge, was hastily summoned, and advised the removal of the child to the Columbia Hospital. He applied cooling lotions, and the little girl was taken to the institution. Her condition was critical, and she grew worse steadily until 9:30 o'clock, when death relieved her of her sufferings. The body was taken in charge by Undertaker Gleim, and was sent to Billmyer on the morning train.

It was a pathetic case. The mother, who is nearly heartbroken, accompanied her daughter to the hospital, and her grief was almost beyond control. Mrs. Flicie came to this country from Germany with her husband, George Flicie. Shortly after their arrival the husband died, and the widow opened a boarding house at Billmyer. She has one son, George, who resides with her.

FEED GROWING FEED

A chicken grows in proportion to the feed it consumes. Successful poultrymen study in every way to increase their chickens' appetites.

The Park & Pollard Growing Feed increases their appetite. The more they eat of it the more they want.

Whenever your chickens are hatched from January to December feed them this ration until they are six months of age.

Our customers that have used it say it is even better than they claim. Your money back if you don't like it.
