H. S. Newcomer

Abraham Lincoln Loved to Take his Boots off

HE used to remove them frequently to "let his feet breathe," he said. He knew the folly of binding the feet up constantly in narrow, unnatural shoes.

A narrow "fancy" shoe bends the bones of the feet, thereby manufacturing corns, calluses, bunions, ingrowing nails, flat-foot, etc.—foot misery. Such foot troubles affect your whole system, causing a loss of 20% or more of your bodily efficiency.

Why lose this valuable energy? Why—when you can put your feet into Rice & Hutchins Educator Shoes, which do not bend your foot bones—which abolish corns, bunions, etc.

Educators are made scientifically in the shape of a perfect, natural foot. They have plenty of room for all five toes, without looseness. Made for men, women and children. A handsome, correct shoe that is good sense plus good looks. Prices from $1.35 for infants to $5.50 for men's "specials."

Call at the store today and see how good your feet look—and feel—in Educators.

Letter From Cuba

WALTER KELLER, ON THE U. S. S. MONTANA, WRITES INTERESTING LETTERS

The Revolution at Port-au-Prince, Cuba is About Settled and Our Boats Will Leave to Resume the Torpedo Schedule, Says Mr. Keller

In a letter dated Feb. 8, Mr. Walter Keller writes his parents here as follows:

"Well, we have a new president, the erstwhile General Zamor. He came in the city yesterday with his troops and this evening the chamber elected him president.

The town is full of men (of course you know these people are black), in all sorts of uniforms, the prevailing one being a suit of overalls and an old cap, and they all carry a weapon of some kind. They go by in groups, carrying guns that must be a hundred years old, but I have seen some with the modern rifles. I saw one fellow go by with his bayonet on his rifle and a big knife hanging in his belt.

They are now celebrating the new president—firing rockets, firing field pieces having torch light parades. In place of a torch each one carries a stick of green pine which burns freely. They have all sorts of musical instruments and it is all very picturesque, also very noisy. They Zamor! (Long live President Zamor!)

General Zamor was the right hand man of General Theodore, who was the logical candidate, and Zamor crossed him in some way and got here to the capital first and was proclaimed president. General Theodore is marching toward the city now, but it will be four or five days before he can get here.

The minister and I sat up talking all night and he tells me that Theodore is by far the better man, but he thinks Theodore can not get enough money to pay his men and it will quiet down so I will be back on the ship again before long.

I ate something here that is very good. They boil the rice, just calculate the amount of water, so when it is boiled enough they serve it dry, then serve soft-boiled eggs. Take some rice on a plate and open an egg or so on it, mix it around a bit and it's fine. Try a little of it some time when you feel like eating something new.

I expect its cold up there now and you people are around the radiators. The nights here are incomparably cool and breezy. The servant boys wear down the palm garden morning and noon, and I sit there under the palms and keep cool all day.

This would be a fine place to live if they were civilized, but you have to be on the lookout all the time or you get mixed up with a revolution every now and then. There is a Haitian family living next door. They are very black but people who are well educated and have traveled extensively. We were all standing out front this evening and the woman said "I am ashamed for you foreigners to see my country like this; they are only half civilized." I see a lot of Germans and English married to the blacks here, all well-to-do and in the native 400."

A second letter dated Feb. 10, which follows, explains itself: "Well, everything is settled down and the troops were withdrawn last evening. The Cuban minister invited us up to his house for dinner last night after we were called in, but the captain would not let us go. So the minister came down to the American legation himself and asked the captain if he could not take us up with him, but he said it could not be done.

I suppose we will leave for Cuba in a day or so and carry out our torpedo schedule. I have not received mail for 20 days but I think there will be some in tomorrow."

Hager & Bro. Announce the Adoption of a Minimum Wage for their Women Workers

After the closing hour on Saturday evening, W. H. Hager addressed the store workers of THE HAGER STORE as follows:

We are glad to announce this evening, that we have decided to adopt, as an integral part of the business policy of the Hager Store—a Minimum Wage for our Women workers. We have come to this decision, after some investigation and careful thought, and are convinced that this is an important forward step, in line with our constant efforts to make the Hager Store a better, a more efficient store of service among the business institutions of our City.

Further, we recognize the fact, that such action is one of the practical ways of demonstrating our support of, and our betterment of general conditions for the workers in this busy industrial age. We want to emphasize the fact that a minimum wage plan and greater efficiency, must go together, must work together in order to be equitable and successful. While we must concede that underlying the minimum wage idea, is the righteous, the humane and the sound principle of a living wage for a fair day's work, yet we must concede that, it must be also a business proposition, that better wage conditions providing better living conditions, must develop more efficient service. The minimum wage will be Six Dollars and Fifty Cents ($6.50) per week, the plan providing for a year of training for the inexperienced worker. It should be clearly understood that while this minimum wage plan raises the average pay for those with limited experience it does not establish a standard or affect the maximum of wage for our experienced workers. Again, it does not change our established policy of advancement for these earning such advancement through increased efficiency.

The Grain Market Professionals in wheat are in a waiting mood. There is little at the moment on which to put out a big short line or to accumulate large holdings. The claims of crop deterioration so far have been insignificant. There is now a good sized open interest in May wheat and the larger holders refuse to sell out, but are willing to add to their lines on price recessions. There has been a fair business on export account. In order to maintain present prices, however, this demand must increase ten fold. It was expected that with the losses in Argentina and Australia the importing countries would be forced to come to the United States for their supplies. It now transpires that Russia is to offer wheat freely with the opening of navigation and that buyers in a manner will be allowed to name the price. Australia is selling wheat freely which shows that the stories sent out of the big shortage in that country as well as the absorption of the surplus by Japan have been greatly exaggerated.

Those who have taken the bull side of the corn and who have been carrying large lines of that cereal, both cash and futures are doing so in the belief that with the advent of mild weather and the beginning of spring, farm work there will be a complete change in the situation. At the moment there is no business in corn from Chicago, and the importing countries are being furnished with all the grain they desire by the Argentine Republic. Advances received here Saturday say Iowa points were offering corn freely in all directions but were unable to draw out anything like fair bids for their grain.

There is only a light trade in oats and this condition is expected to remain unchanged for a time at least, or until a buying power of less prominence appears.

The provision market is an affair for the packers. This was shown on several occasions during the week just closed. It was an easy matter to control the trade owing to the small speculation. The reason for the high price of hogs is plain, the increasing shortage of beef and hog products will be called upon before the end of the year to meet a wider demand than ever before in the history of the country.

An Unpleasant Experience

While Mr. Wm. Bill was only discovered about two hours thereafter and as Mr. and Mrs. Engle said, "Darn near froze at that." Of course he was not locked up intentionally.
