

Message To Women

Those of Middle Age Especially.

When you have found no remedy for the horrors that oppress you during change of life, when through the long hours of the day it seems as though your back would break, when your head aches constantly, you are nervous, depressed and suffer from those dreadful bearing down pains, do not forget that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the best and surest remedy, and has carried hundreds safely through this critical period.

These three women say:

Mrs. Hornung, Buffalo, N. Y.

"I am writing to let you know how much your Compound has helped me. I failed terribly during the last winter and was marked about my appearance. I suffered from back pains, and always had pains in my back, no matter what I did. One day she thought I needed help. I took it and have gained weight and am feeling better every day. I can now do my work. I recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Compound. I wish this letter if you will see it and write to Mrs. HORNUNG, 91

"I was in a very bad condition, suffering from a female trouble, and I had such pains in my sides I could hardly move. Before I had taken the whole of one bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I felt better, and now I am well and can do a good day's work. I tell everybody what your medicine has done for me." —Mrs. JOHN THOMPSON, Lodi, Wisconsin.

For 30 years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been the standard remedy for female ills. No one sick with woman's ailments does justice to herself if she does not try this famous medicine made from roots and herbs, it has restored so many suffering women to health. Write to LYDIA E. PINKHAM MEDICINE CO. (CONFIDENTIAL) LINN, MASS., for advice. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

What's in a Name? A current newspaper item is as follows: "The wife of a Methodist minister has been married three times. Her maiden name was Partridge, her first husband was named Robins, her second Sparrow, and the present is named Quasyle. There are now two young Robins, one Sparrow and three Quasyles in the family. One grandfather was a Swan and another a Jay, but he's dead now and a bird of Paradise. They live on Hawk avenue, Engle-ville, Canary Islands, and the fellow who wrote this is a lyre bird and a relative of the family."

Large industrial companies have long since learned that educated employes are better than those possessing no education whatever. Taken all in all an educated man has a better chance to earn a livelihood. Men of this type, however, are not plentiful and it is oftentimes necessary for a progressive company to supply what is lacking. In Brooklyn any employe of the electric light company may select any course at any school or college in New York city which will be of assistance in his or her work with the company and have the tuition fee, subject to approval of the company's scholarship committee, paid in advance by the company, the amount being deducted in weekly installments sufficient to pay for the course at its completion. If at the end of the term the employe passes the examinations with a grade of 75 per cent. or better, the amount deducted from the salary list will then be returned to the employe, the company itself defraying the cost of the instruction.—Electrical World.

HUMOR OF A CENTURY AGO

Seems Not Always to Have Been in Best of Taste, But This is a Good Story.

Toole's was a brand of humor that went out with the pun and the practical joke. The things the comedian and his friends did off the stage, as a matter of course and "to raise a laugh," would today bring them within the clutches of the law on many occasions. The pun was less devastating as a rule.

Sims Reeves told the story in his reminiscences how he was playing the part of Tom Tug in company with his friend Toole, who was also a member of the cast. In "The Waterman," he explains, a word or two of a gag was held to be permissible; and, partly to amuse the audience, partly to astonish his fellow-actor, Reeves, in a certain scene, in reply to Toole's question, "What's the meaning of all this?" replied, "The meaning of it is that you've become a tool or, and I'm a happy fellow."

"Johnnie looked very much surprised," Reeves relates, "and as a popular comedian does not, if he can help it, allow himself to be scored off, he, after a moment's reflection—during which he must have suffered the keenest agony—replied, 'So it sim's'."

SEEK TO PRESERVE EAGLE

King of Birds Does Much Damage, but Swiss Authorities Decide to Protect it.

Eagles are gradually disappearing from the peaks of Switzerland, and the grand council has found it necessary to take steps to prevent the complete destruction of these noble birds of prey. Till recently eagles were methodically hunted all the year 'round in the Bernese Oberland, and last year a whole family of eagles was destroyed so ruthlessly at Murren that the cantonal authorities were requested to intervene. Unfortunately, since the measure of protection, a pair of eagles in the Motta Valley have destroyed so many sheep and goats that the inhabitants have requested the authorities of Schwyz to repeal the enactment. The Society for the Protection of the Countryside has endeavored to calm the agitation by giving the damaged proprietors an indemnity of 200 francs. The sum has been considered insufficient and the discontent has increased. The people of the valley demand not only the right to hunt the eagle, but also a reward for each bird killed. Nevertheless, the cantonal authorities have decided to maintain the protection for a year.

Educating the Employe.

Large industrial companies have long since learned that educated employes are better than those possessing no education whatever. Taken all in all an educated man has a better chance to earn a livelihood. Men of this type, however, are not plentiful and it is oftentimes necessary for a progressive company to supply what is lacking. If at the end of the term the employe passes the examinations with a grade of 75 per cent. or better, the amount deducted from the salary list will then be returned to the employe, the company itself defraying the cost of the instruction.—Electrical World.

Old Cider Glasses.

One of the latest of the rages of ardent collectors is for old cider glasses, especially those engraved with an apple tree or wreath of apples and leaves, and occasionally the motto "No Excise." In protest against the excise duties on cider and other liquors which caused such a revolt among farmers in 1794, the English sportsman, had a force of eight men digging for ten days and finally abandoned the attempt to come up with the badgers. It is believed that badgers spring traps by rolling over them on their back. The operation has been observed by many credible witnesses, to say nothing of the frequent discovery in traps of hairs from badgers' backs. Among their favorite foods is honey. At the London zoo one may often see a visitor with a pot of honey scraping out the sweet with a walking stick and then giving the end of the stick to badgers to suck. Formerly badger meat was prized in England, the hind quarters being made into hams, which, when cured, were said to be as good as the best bacon. Badger meat is an uncommon article diet in England at present.

Recorded in Egyptian Lore.

In the world's most ancient records—the monuments of Egypt—we find evidence of the existence of the covenant of blood. Even then it seems to have been a custom to covenant by tasting the blood from another's arm. In the "Book of the Dead," the most ancient and most important of the sacred books of the Egyptians, there are several references to blood covenanting and incidental mention of the tasting of blood by gods and by men. An inscription on an ancient Egyptian monument details a legend of the rebellion of mankind against the gods; of an edict of destruction against the human race; of a divine interposition for the rescue of the doomed people. In this legend a prominent part is given to human blood mixed with the juice of mandrakes (love apples) and prepared as a drink to propitiate the offended gods.

Origin of Word "Strike."

The earliest use of the word "strike," in the sense of stopping work, occurs in the London Chronicle for September, 1765, in connection with a coal strike. The publication reports a great suspension of labor in the Northumbrian coal fields, and the colliers are stated to have "struck out" for a higher bounty before entering into their usual yearly "bond." The time-honored illustration of profligate labor, "carrying coals to Newcastle," appears to have received its first slap in the face during this strike. The Chronicle reports that "several pokes of coal were brought from Durham to Newcastle by one of the common carriers, and sold on the sandhills for 3d a poke, by which he cleared 6d a poke."

Patronize Home Institutions.

"Patronize home institutions," cries the country editor from week to week. "That is right," says the merchant, "give it to those who go to some other town to buy goods." Then with his heart filled with kindness to the royal editor, he sends his job to work to Kalamazoo, or utilizes a piece of wrapping paper to write an order on for goods, or send a statement to a customer. Funny, isn't it?

Sale of Blooded Stock.

Mr. John G. Stauffer, of Mount Joy township, on R. D. 3, the well-known farmer and stock raiser, sold sixteen Holstein heifers, Wednesday of last week that were shipped by express to Seattle, Washington, from Lawn. Some of the heifers are less than a year old and the price received for them was $1360, an average of $85 per head. Mr. Stauffer is known as a progressive farmer and his stables are a pleasure to visit. He likes to see fine stock.

OLD LONDON AND ITS ALE

Matter That Was Taken Most Seriously in the Past, and Authorities Were Watchful.

The publication of official figures to prove that London is drinking more ale in the sixteenth century, for instance, the brewer who ceased to brew was faced with the loss of his business. Thus, if the mayor got wind of "any of the said brewers, or their frowards and perverse myndes, shall at any time hereafter sodenly forbear and absteyne from buying, whereby the king's subjects should be destitute or unprovided of drynke," he knew exactly what to do. The city council was empowered to take over the business as a going concern, and to take measures to see that it was kept going.

The cry then and for centuries after was all for beer. There is record of a petition of 1673, for instance, praying that tea, coffee and brandy be banned. The petitioners reasoned that the laborers needed "good strong beer and ale," which refreshed their bodies, and neither did them prejudice nor hindered their work. Besides, it cost little, and was the product of home-grown grain, whereas the new-fangled drink was expensive and destroyed his majesty's subjects, "not agreeing with their constitution."—London Chronicle.

MUCH POWER IN SUGGESTION

Extends to the Curing of Physical Ills if One Will Persevere in Treatment.

By the method known as "suggestion," it is possible (according to a medical writer) not only to perform the simple experiment of waking oneself at a given hour in the morning, but also to banish all minor physical ailments and even to correct faults in the character.

Just as in the first instance the experimenter before going to sleep at night makes a mental request to himself that he shall awake at a certain time on the following morning, so in more important matters he suggests to himself a condition of health or a method of conduct.

To take two instances. Supposing you suffer from insomnia, you focus your whole attention upon the repetition four times a day of a given formula. Thus you may say to yourself that you trouble no more about the matter, merely repeating the statement at intervals. In two or three days at most the effect—according to the authority—will be felt to sound slumbers.

Much the same process is adopted where it is desired to break oneself of a bad habit.

The theory is that the remark or statement is addressed to your unconscious mind, which responds to your desires when expressed in this way.

Triks of the Badger.

So widely do the holes of badgers ramify that Col. Alfred Locket, a British sportsman, had a force of eight men digging for ten days and finally abandoned the attempt to come up with the badgers. It is believed that badgers spring traps by rolling over them on their back. The operation has been observed by many credible witnesses, to say nothing of the frequent discovery in traps of hairs from badgers' backs. Among their favorite foods is honey. At the London zoo one may often see a visitor with a pot of honey scraping out the sweet with a walking stick and then giving the end of the stick to badgers to suck. Formerly badger meat was prized in England, the hind quarters being made into hams, which, when cured, were said to be as good as the best bacon. Badger meat is an uncommon article diet in England at present.

Paid for His Interruption.

Rodger, the great French tenor, was a sensitive soul, and was prone to take offense at any slight, whether intentional or not.

On one occasion he was engaged to sing at the house of a wealthy financier. Rodger sang his first song magnificently; but no one paid the slightest attention to him, and the guests continued to talk their loudest.

Presently the host thought the time had come for another song, and sent for Rodger. He could not be found. Next day there came a note from him, accompanied by 1,500 francs. The note ran something like this:

"I have the honor to return the twelve hundred francs which I received for singing at your function; and I beg leave to add three hundred francs thereto for having so disturbed the conversation of your guests."

Clever Styles In Women's Spring Suits

At $18.75

Several stunning models are shown at this price, one of which comes in a fancy weave resembling crepe, with a very decidedly short Bolero effect in the coat front, while across the back extends a wide band of neat messaline in a loose belt effect, finished with a bow, although a few have the belt effect in self material.

As a rule, the skirts are cut straight, overhung with a double tier, and the miniature drape is also in evidence.

Other models are shown in broadcloth, and for the stout figure are conservative models in navy and black men's wear serge.

Among the higher priced suits are the stunning models at $21.75, $25 up to $37.50 and more.

Parcel Post Special

A lot of stylish spring waists at $1.00—made of white voile and batiste with low neck and short sleeves. The waists are cut full, after the present fashion, and are finished in about a dozen different styles. You will like any of the styles. Sent free by Parcel Post. When ordering, be sure to mention size. Free exchange if not satisfactory.

$3.00 Weekly Will Pay For A Genuine Pianola Piano From The Hager Store

The cheapest Player-Piano sold in Lancaster will cost about $2 weekly. Such an instrument cannot, of course, compare with the Pianola, which is endorsed by the rulers of fifty ylands, by thousands of great Americans and by more than two hundred famous musicians.

We mention this fact only because cheapness appeals to many persons. In selling a $550 instrument on terms of $3 weekly, we are affording a far better bargain than in the case of a $356 Player-Piano for $2 weekly.

There are many player-pianos, but only one Pianola—and it is on sale at The Hager Store only, in Lancaster.

STYLISH SPRING SUITS FOR MEN $18.00 to $25.00

HART Schaffner & Marx Suits are known for their style and quality merits. If you want the latest snappy, extreme cuts, or a model along conservative lines, there is something that will please you. Excellent suits are also shown at $15 and $16.50.

We wish to call your attention to the assortment of spring hats, shoes and furnishings, also. Young's hats feature the nobby shapes and styles; priced at $3. Other hats are $2 to $3.50. A complete line of shoes will be found ranging in price from $4 to $6. Shirts, ties, hosiery, gloves and the like are here in splendid assortments. Our salesmen are well versed in the latest fashions and are always willing to give you helpful suggestions.
