SIXTEEN GRADUATE

Exercises Were Largely Attended—Class A Big One

Thursday evening marked the fifteenth annual commencement of the Elizabethtown High School. The exercises were held in Market hall, which was crowded to its utmost capacity. The class numbered sixteen young people, eight girls and eight boys, who, under the capable and faithful instruction of Principal Au-miller, had spent several years in completing the course. The class motto, "Efficientia magnum opus vitae est," was prominently displayed on a large arch over the centre of the platform. The platform was decorated with flowers, ferns and potted plants, which presented a most beautiful appearance. Suspended from the centre and ends of the platform were the large pennants of the High School for 1914 in the class colors red and blue. The procession, the principal, E. V. Au-miller, First Assistant H. L. Gise, Second Assistant Bernice Eckman, the School Board, Revs. Seldomridge, and Cro-man, Hon. Henry Houck, the graduates. The invocation was given by Rev. I. N. Seldomridge, pastor of St. Paul's United Brethren church.

THE SALUTATORY ORATION

To Webster Eshleman had been awarded the honor of delivering the salutatory oration. After welcoming the audience in a few appropriate words, to the exercises of the evening the young man delivered his oration on the subject, "truth," from which the following abstracts are taken: "Possibly, none of us will ever be great men and women in the eyes of the world, but to the true greatness lies within the reach of all. The world will be richer and better for us having lived in it. Truth be our motto. Truth is considered beyond all wealth, honor or even health. We should show those qualities which are altogether in our power, including aversion to pleasure, endurance of labor, sincerity, truthfulness and be content with our portion. This raises the possessor above revenge, and causes him to delight in telling the truth at all times and in all places and disdain injustice and meanness, and prompts him to personal ease and a final reward in all ways speaking the truth."

THE CLASS ORATION

The class oration on the subject, "Live to Serve," was delivered by Charles Madeira, who rendered his production in an admirable manner. "Live to Serve" has been the inspiration and the power which has unfolded itself in our daily tasks. Never has this motto been of so much importance, of such truth as it is today. Our lives will only be what our serving has made them. We have history of men who have labored into the small hours of the night to serve some important thing and have produced results of success that have startled humanity. Washington, who through self sacrificing labor has won for us the grandest government on the face of the earth, or an Edison, who has achieved wonders so amazing that we can hardly realize what he has given to humanity. And so we might recall name after name in all professions and could bring an array of noble heroes who have won success for themselves and have given to the world the benefit of their wonderful works all because they lived to serve. In our efforts to achieve success let us endeavor to be unselfish. The world is ever with us, but what sort of a world it will be depended greatly upon ourselves. Everybody's first duty is to improve and educate them selves and at the same time help others along. Men are impelled to labor and invent. No idle person ever became great. Labor of some sort is one of the conditions of success. While we are attempting to succeed we must remember that in whatever sphere our duty lies we must mainly rely upon ourselves. Others can help us, but what we desire to be we must make ourselves.

A FINE RECITATION

Miss Maud Lindemuth gave a recitation entitled "Voices of the Dead," which was well received. Her articulation was accurate and her manner of delivery fair and distinct. It ranked among the best that were delivered.

"THANATOPSIS"

This was a fine oration delivered by Miss Frances Ulrich, who proved to be a very pleasing speaker and her oration greatly pleased the large audience.

VALEDICTORY ORATION

The valedictory oration fell to Earl Gish, who chose for his subject "The Price of Success." Without labor we can never expect to accomplish anything for that is the price of success and we should have honesty as our foundation. No matter what we do, we should be honest in all things and success will crown our efforts. All things which we undertake to do should be done well as things done by half are not worth doing at all. Let us realize that the serving life is to live well. We should always bear in mind that our great men of our country endured until they had accomplished that for which they were striving. We should be true to our convictions, wherever it closed.

preciation and farewell to the school directors, expressing gratitude for their helpfulness, and assuring all that the earnest work of the principal and assistants was not in vain, and with tender words of farewell bid them all goodbye. We shall in the future, I hope, meet again many times at the reunions, but true inclination dictates as a means of receiving and keeping green the feeling to which I have alluded. A new world opens before us to-night, but at the same time a new aspect of that which we are to-night leaving behind us is vouchsafed to us. We each of us, step forward to-night as one that goes on his armor for the battle. We hear the sound of trumpets and we rejoice in the promise of the conflict. Let us so bear ourselves that all wounds may be honorable ones and gained in a good cause, so that in after years we may truly exclaim, "I have fought the good fight." However elated we may be the fact that we are now full-fledged graduates entitled to the dignities of Alumni, yet our elation has its dash of bitterness in the thought that we are ending our active connection with the dear old High School and with those who preside over its affairs. Let us resolve to be a credit to our training and our school. The race is not always to the swift, nor the battle to the strong. Let us take as our motto "plain living and high thinking." I adjure you, my fellow students, not merely to remember our class motto, but to live up to it with an honest love for truth and manhood. "Whatever thy might," To-night we are in the present, and that present is more or less shadowed by the remembrance of what is past. Let us then cherish, as one of the holiest of our remembrances, the memory of that feeling of unity, and of mutual respect, which has so far with us endured.

PRESENTATION OF DIPLOMAS

J. H. Eshleman, president of the School Board, after a few well chosen words of appreciation and congratulation of honest efforts and wishing all the graduates a prosperous future presented the diplomas to them.

ADDRESS TO CLASS

Hon. Henry Houck in his address to the class congratulated them for the good work they had done. This is only the beginning of a useful life and the best preparation that you can make is at the beginning. The Lord gave us talents, which we are to improve in the best possible way. If you are not willing to give your life to your work it will not succeed. Watch well the little things and the larger ones will take care of themselves. It is not the awful difference now, but the difference it will make later on. Do not be slovenly in your work. Neatness is always a jewel. It marks character. The address was replete with earnest, sober thought, couched in beautiful language and was well received by the large audience.

HOME HEALTH CLUB

By Dr. David H. Reeder, Chicago, Ill.

Hopeless cases: In the many years service that the Home Health Club has rendered, I have never had but one really hopeless case presented. That was a patient in the last stage of consumption. Many cases have been presented in which I have refused to even consider or allow the Home Health Club in any way to be connected, but they were either criminal cases or these in which there was specific infection of the vilest kind in which the patient made no effort toward self relief or a promise of better future conduct.

I will remember a dear old lady who came to the club for help many years ago. Her family physician said she could not live more than a few months. On account of that I submitted her to a careful council of three eminent surgeons and three able medical partitioners. They spent over two hours on the case and agreed on the diagnosis which I had already made. They also agreed upon the course of treatment which they said should be followed, saying that it rigidly adhered to she would possibly live comfortably for six months. The treatment, however, was unpleasant, distressing and expensive, the woman and her family were poor. I told her of the proper diet and other simple, natural means of improving the health and of some special herbs and fruits which she must use. Her daughter took her home and I heard nothing concerning her for over a year and a half when I received a bright, cheerful letter from her telling how she had the simple diet and

Herff-Brooks $1375

THE CAR ITSELF

The Herff-Brooks Six for $1,375 is the sensation of the automobile field this year. Read the specifications: We will answer you fully and completely, telling you just wherein the Herff-Brooks differs from the car you thought was best. So confident are we of your opinion of the Herff-Brooks Six for $1,375 that we urge comparison with your favorite car regardless of whether it cost $500 or $5,000. In the entire make-up of the Herff-Brooks car there is not an untired theory or experiment. We do our own experimenting; we do not leave our inspection department in the hands of our customers. The Herff-Brooks cars are manufactured in a plant that has been producing high-grade machinery for over forty years, and high-grade automobiles since 1902. Both the Herff-Brooks 6-48 and the 4-38 are regular giants on the hills. They have force enough to pull a train of cars; they can make the easiest grade with perfect ease, yet they are as easy to control as a broken horse. Remember, this is the lowest-priced Six ever made and you must now know the reason. Also recall that we guarantee it to be better than any other car at $1,750 and equal to any car of $2,000 made.

Distribution

We now make a further guarantee, and say "We guarantee that we are ready right now to deliver the Herff-Brooks Six in large shipments to say point in the United States." By this you can see that the Herff-Brooks is not an experiment; not an untried car that exists only in the minds of engineers. We are ready right now to deliver as many as you can sell. So you see we really have one of the most attractive propositions for an automobile dealer that you will find anywhere in the country. And so far as the consumer is concerned, he gets a better car than he can receive for the money elsewhere; he gets the backing of a tried and proven organization, one that will stand back of their products as long as it bears their name.
