A. K. Baer Electrocuted

WAS INSTANTLY KILLED WHEN 11,000 VOLTS PASSED THRU HIS BODY

Found Yesterday Morning On Floor of Transformer Building, Near the Salunga Rotary Station—No Witnesses to the Accident

Andrew K. Baer, of Rohrerstown, who had charge of the Salunga rotary station of the Conestoga Traction Company for the past three years, was found dead on the floor of the building near the rotary building in which is transformed the current that furnishes light to Salunga, Landisville and Mount Joy. He had been electrocuted, 11,000 volts having passed thru his body.

The body was found by Mrs. J. L. Minnich, who chanced to look into the place. She saw Mr. Baer lying on the floor, and, realizing that something had happened, gave the alarm. Dr. J. S. Kendig of Salunga, was summoned, but the man was beyond human aid. Undertaker F. F. Groff of Lancaster, took charge of the body, removing it to the home of the deceased.

The deadly current left its mark on a thumb and a heel of the victim, whose death was undoubtedly instantaneous. It is supposed that Mr. Baer received the deadly current while at one of the switches.
