MUST HAVE HOSPITAL TRAINING

State Lays Down Rules to Hospitals About Internes

Hospitals of the state have been given notice by the State Bureau of Medical Education and Licensure that they must be prepared to comply with the requirements of the medical education act of 1913 relative to internes for the year beginning May 31, 1915. Under the act every medical graduate desiring to take the state examinations for licensure must serve a year as an interne in an approved hospital. For a hospital to obtain approval it must have 25 beds to each interne, department and anesthesia, adequate clinical and pathological laboratory and arrangement for obstetrical service. It is provided that special hospitals may establish co-operation with a general hospital wherein the interne may receive credit for limited service on the general term. Owing to the time required for hospitals to be prepared the bureau will approve all of the hospitals this year as in the past. The bureau announces examinations in Philadelphia and Pittsburg for drugless therapy and chiropody June 29 and 30.

Seventeen Year Locusts

The plague of seventeen-year locusts, which has fallen on parts of West Virginia, Ohio and western Pennsylvania, has turned out to be a blessing for farmers and fishermen. Until the present time the locusts which are coming out of the ground in great numbers, have been unable to do any damage because of the backwardness of crops and fruits. But they have proved a boon to the turkey-raising farmers.

Young turkeys as well as roosters and hens are fond of the pests, and as a fattening food nothing ever has been found to equal them. A flock of turkeys will devour thousands of them, and the squab turkeys, which are eagerly sought in the big markets, are this year fatter and better than ever, which, according to poultry raisers, is due to the seventeen-year locusts which they have devoured.

Along the Ohio, Kanawha and Big Sandy rivers the insects are being used as bait by fishermen, who are reporting the biggest catches of recent years.

MAN'S LOVE FOR THE DOG

Strong Spirit of Affection That Binds Them Together Has Long Been a Matter of Note.

The day before I reached Chitna I met a trapper carrying five little puppies on his back. He had the mother dog with him in good condition. He had been three days (two of them without any food) making 12 miles rather than sacrifice these dogs and he had frozen his feet and hands so badly as a result that I am afraid he was bound to lose some of his fingers and toes.

I like to think that I finished my 1,000-mile trip in 21 days with the same five dogs with which I started, and that not one of them had even a sore foot during the entire journey. In fact, before I started Pyriak had cut his left hind foot, which made it necessary to mucklock it, but when I finished my journey he was in better condition than at first.

Not once during the whole way did I sit on the sled; I pushed it for at least 500 miles and ran beside it for another 300. Running became such a habit that when I got to Cordova and started to go down the street I found myself unconsciously running. I really had to learn to walk from the beginning all over again.

I hated to part with my dogs, but as our country is too hot for them I decided to give them away. I broke up the team and separated them, so that they would not work together again. I had several chances to sell them, but I could not think of doing so.

When I boarded the boat at Valdez, where I left two of my dogs, my leader, Pyriak, tried to get up the gangplank after me, but when they would not let him he stood there until the boat pulled out, whining, as much as to say, "How can you desert me now?"—Lieut. George F. Vaughn in World's Work.

NEW IDEA NOT IMPRESSIVE

Cabman Tried It, and It Worked, but He Still Prefers the Old Way.

"I was in a county court the other day," said the seedy-looking cabman, "and I heard one of those solicitor chaps say, 'People don't seem to understand that the only thing necessary to keep a horse from kicking when he is down is to get hold of his ear and keep his nose up in the air. A horse cannot kick when his nose is in the air. I have seen a lady keep a horse quiet that way without soiling her gloves.' 'What's good enough for a lady,' says I, 'is good enough for me,' and I tried it experimental-like, instead of sitting on his head."

"Well," remarked the attentive listener, "did the horse kick?" "Not a bit! He seemed so tickled with the idea that he couldn't stir for laffin'! But I think I shall sit on his head next time, all the same."—London Answers.

Not in the Orders.

Jim's boss sent him up on the roof to paint it. That was early in the morning. Toward nightfall the boss clambered up the ladder to see whether his workman had flown away or been eaten by the birds. There was Jim sitting on the edge of the house, singing.

"Jim, you lazy piece, what you been doing?"

"Nuffin'."

"Didn't I send you up here to paint the roof?"

"Yassir."

"Well, did you do it?"

"Yassir."

"What else did you do?"

"I went to sleep."

"Why didn't you come down if you had finished?"

"Deed, boss, you jes' said paint de roof. You never said nuffin' 'bout comin' down."

Old Sunday School.

There is many an old collier, agricultural laborer and factory operative still living who owes knowledge of reading, writing and arithmetic to attendance at Sunday school, for down to quite modern times secular as well as religious instruction was given, relates the London Chronicle. The change came with the enactment of compulsory education in 1870; and an aunt, still happily vigorous, and alert, has told me her embarrassment when, as a young girl who had just left Miss Pinkerton's academy, she found among the class allotted to her in the Sunday school the gray-haired old coal dealer of the village, who wished to learn arithmetic. For many years also Sunday school teachers were regularly paid. Robert Raikes, for instance, gave his assistants 1s 6d per Sunday.

Timely Admonition.

The death of a child as a result of its clothing catching fire from an open grate has moved Coroner Jamison to admonish parents that the safety of their loved one is imperiled by the tolerance in homes of unscreened grates and gas stoves. Year after year the advent of cold weather has marked the beginning of a long list of fire fatalities, probably the most agonizing form of death, and yet, in spite of such warnings, the unscreened grate is the exception and not the rule. In the months of January and February of the present year no less than 22 children were burned to death as a result of the use of open coal and gas grates, and during the year many women have met a similar fate.—Pittsburgh Chronicle Telegraph.

MR. MAN

You certainly have my sympathy when you have tire trouble. I know exactly what that means, as I had my share of it. But now it's

No More Tire Trouble

For mine. My practical experience—nearly 6,000 miles over the roads of Lancaster, Lebanon, Dauphin, Franklin, and Juniata Counties with a heavy touring car and never stopped a second for tire trouble. Doesn't that listen good?

I Use Bettern-Air

This is a filler placed in a tire instead of inner tubes. It rides easier, makes blowouts and punctures impossible and makes your tires wear longer. If interested, write, phone or call on
