WHEN THE TIRED MOTHER GIVES OUT

What Then?—The Family Suffers, the Poor Mothers Suffer—Mrs. Becker Meets This Distressing Situation.

Collinsville, Ill.—"I suffered from a net, just break-down and terrible headaches, and was tired all over, totally worn out and too discouraged to enjoy life, but as I had four in family and sometimes eight or nine boarders, I kept on working despite my suffering.

There are hundreds of nervous, run-down, overworked women in this vicinity who are hardly able to drag around and who are sure would be wonderfully benefited by Vinol as Mrs. Becker was.

You would do the same thing just as soon as you could, if you considered it of value to your business.

Why copy them in the small things and not in the big things?

The greatest business men are the warmest advocates of advertising.

The fact that they practice what they preach is the factor which made them the greatest business men.

Money spent in the Bulletin will be of far more benefit to you than a thousand times the same amount in the bank.

Not in the Orders. Jim's boss sent him up on the roof to paint it. That was early in the morning. Toward nightfall the boss clambered up the ladder to see whether his workman had flown away or been eaten by the birds. There was Jim sitting on the edge of the house, singing.

"Jim, you lazy piece, what you been doing?" "Nuffin."

"Didn't I send you up here to paint the roof?" "Yassir."

"Well, did you do it?" "Yassir."

"What else did you do?" "I want to sleep."

"Why didn't you come down if you had finished?" "Deed, boss, you jes' said paint de roof. You neveh said nuffin' 'bout comin' down."

Old Sunday School. There is many an old collier, agricultural laborer and factory operative still living who owes knowledge of reading, writing and arithmetic to attendance at Sunday school, for down to quite modern times secular as well as religious instruction was given, relates the London Chronicle.

The change came with the enactment of compulsory education in 1870; and an aunt, still happily vigorous, and alert, has told me her embarrassment when as a young girl she had just left Miss Pinkerton's academy, she found among the class allotted to her in the Sunday school the gray-haired old coal dealer of the village, who wished to learn arithmetic. For many years also, Sunday school teachers were regularly paid. Robert Raikes, for instance, gave his assistants 1s 6d per Sunday.

Timely Admonition. The death of a child as a result of its catching fire from an open grate has moved Coroner Jamison to admonish parents that the safety of their loved one is imperiled by the tolerance in homes of unscrupulous grates and gas stoves. Year after year the advent of cold weather has marked the beginning of a long list of the fatalities, probably the most agonizing form of death, and yet, in spite of such warnings, the unscrupulous grate is the exception and not the rule. In the months of January and February of the present year no less than 22 children were burned to death as a result of the use of open coal and gas grates, and during the year many women have met a similar fate.—Pittsburgh Chronicle Telegraph.

Origin of Word "Strike." The earliest use of the word "strike," in the sense of stopping work, occurs in the London Chronicle for September, 1765, in connection with a coal strike. The publication reports a great suspension of labor in the Northumbrian coal fields, and the colliers are stated to have "struck out" for a higher bounty before entering into their usual yearly "bond."

The time-honored illustration of profitless labor, "carrying coals to Newcastle," appears to have received its first slap in the face during this strike. The Chronicle reports that "several pokes of coal were brought from Durham to Newcastle by one of the common carriers, and sold on the sandhills for 3d a poke, by which he cleared 6d a poke."

OLD LONDON AND ITS ALE

Matter That Was Taken Most Seriously in the Past, and Authorities Were Watchful.

The publication of official figures to prove that London is drinking more reminds one how careful the authorities were in the past lest the Londoner should miss his full share of ale.

In the sixteenth century, for instance, the brewer who ceased to brew was faced with the loss of his business. Thus, if the mayor got wind of "any of the said brewers, or their followers and perverse myndes, shall at any time hereafter, sodainly forsake and absteyne from brewing, whereby the king's subjects should be destitute or unprovved of drynke," he knew exactly what to do.

The city council was empowered to take over the business as a going concern, and to take measures to see that it was kept going.

The cry then and for centuries after was all for beer. There is record of a petition of 1673, for instance, praying that tea, coffee and brandy be banned. The petitioners reasoned that the laborers needed "good strong beer and ale," which refreshed their bodies, and neither did them prejudice nor hindered their work.

Besides, it cost little, and was the product of home-grown grain, whereas the new-fangled drink was expensive and destroyed his majesty's subjects, "not agreeing with their constitution."—London Chronicle.

MUCH POWER IN SUGGESTION

Extends to the Curing of Physical Ills If One Will Persevere in Treatment.

By the method known as "suggestion," it is possible (according to a medical writer) not only to perform the simple experiment of waking oneself at a given hour in the morning, but also to banish all minor physical ailments and even to correct faults in the character.

Just as in the first instance the experimenter before going to sleep at night makes a mental request to himself that he shall awake at a certain time on the following morning, so in more important matters he suggests to himself a condition of health or a method of conduct.

To take two instances. Supposing you suffer from insomnia, you focus your whole attention upon the repetition four times a day of a given formula. Thus you may say to yourself that you trouble no more about the matter, merely repeating the statement at intervals. In two or three days at most the effect—according to the authority—will be felt in sound slumbers.

Much the same process is adopted where it is desired to break oneself of a bad habit.

The theory is that the remark or statement is addressed to your unconscious mind, which responds to your desires when expressed in this way.

Tricks of the Badger. So widely do the holes of badgers ramify that Col. Alfrod Lucta, a British sportsman, had a force of eight men digging for ten days and finally abandoned the attempt to come up with the badgers. It is believed that badgers spring traps by rolling over them on their back. The operation has been observed by many credible witnesses, to say nothing of the frequent discovery in traps of hairs from badgers' backs. Among their favorite foods is honey. At the London zoo one may often see a visitor with a pot of honey scraping out the sweet with a walking stick and then giving the end of the stick to badgers to suck. Formerly badger meat was prized in England, the hind quarters being made into hams, which, when cured, were said to be as good as the best bacon. Badger meat is an uncommon article diet in England at present.

Paid for His Interruption. Rodger, the great French tenor, was a sensitive soul, and was prone to take offense at an slight, whether intentional or not.

On one occasion he was engaged to sing at the house of a wealthy financier. Rodger sang his first song magnificently; but no one paid the slightest attention to him, and the guests continued to talk their loudest.

Presently the host thought the time had come for another song, and sent for Rodger. He could not be found. Next day there came a note from him, accompanied by 150 francs. The note ran something like this: "I have the honor to return the twelve hundred francs which I received for singing at your function; and I beg leave to add three hundred francs thereto for having so disturbed the conversation of your guests."

Abraham Lincoln said: "I do not know much about the tariff, but I do know this much: when we buy goods abroad we get the goods and the foreigner gets the money; when we buy goods made at home, we get both the goods and the money."
