

A Special Seven-Day Sale of Men's Suits at $12

Every Garment Worth $18.00, $20.00 or $22.00

Begins on Saturday, November 28; Ends December 5th

HERE IS CERTAINLY a Simon Pure Bargain for 268 MEN--for that's exactly the number of Suits in this lot.

Have we been fortunate again. Rather. You shall see.

Just now is "stock-taking" time with Clothing-makers. Your wife generally calls it "Cleaning House." And just like retailers, the manufacturers would sooner COUNT MONEY than COUNT MERCHANDISE--so that when a Buyer with the MONEY and the BUSINESS OUTLET drops in on them they are more willing to let go at a sacrifice of profits--AND THEN SOME.

And this is what happened last Wednesday--we dropped in on the man who makes the most of our high-grade Suits and found him within 268 Suits of a total clean-up in his $18, $20 and $22 lines.

This many Suits at A SPECIAL Purchase are a good bunch for US--they are they are not a "drop in the bucket" for the MAKER. WE count by "tens". He Counts by "hundreds". So it was not long until--with ready money in sight he yielded us the GREATEST Bargain in our history.

Every Suit of these 298, we repeat, is worth $18, $20 or $22. Some have braided edges and quite a few are silk-lined. There are many identical Suits on our racks selling regularly at $18, $20 and $22 and they are going to REMAIN at those prices simply because WE PAID REGULAR PRICES FOR THEM AND THEY ARE THE BEST VALUES IN THE CITY TO-DAY AT THOSE PRICES--BAR NONE.

Yes, we could take these Suits we're going to sell at $12 and put them RIGHT AMONG our regular lines at $18, $20 and $22--because they're worth those prices--but THAT isn't the GROFF & WOLF way of doing things. When we get a bargain YOU get a bargain. We bought them way under price, we're going to sell them way under price, and while they're odds and ends in sizes there's a size for every man if he comes in time.

Why We Have a Seven-Day Limit

There are three reasons: First: In order to put a price of $12 on these 268 Suits and make any profit at all we MUST TURN THEM QUICKLY.

Second: Because this number of Suits is not much more than our weekly output in mid season.

Third: To properly show up these Suits we have had to put some of our regular stocks in the background. We CAN'T keep it there longer than a week.

It must be done in SEVEN DAYS--and we know it WILL be.

Nothing but a BIG store like this could take over as large a bunch of Suits at ANY time of the year, and very few at all at this particular time when, through bad weather and business conditions, a great many stores here and elsewhere still have practically complete stocks.

This is a TIMELY sale for the man who is on SHORT HOURS. He can get the high-grade Suits he is used to at a BIG CUT IN PRICE, but NO CUT IN QUALITY.

You know our reputation for square dealing, honest advertising, and sticking to our word. IT'S ALL UP TO YOU.

These Suits are now being displayed in our windows. Look them over. Inside you will find them arranged in racks according to sizes, with an extra force of sales-people to help you select.

REMEMBER, the Sale starts Saturday, November 28th, and inasmuch as the Suits in this lot number 268, and we want our out-of-town patrons to have an equal show with our city patrons, not a suit will be sold before the morning of that day.

A SELF CONFESSED MURDERER

Victor E. Eshleman, Formerly of Leaman Place, Arrested Saturday

Victor E. Eshleman, a son of the late Milton Eshleman, formerly of Leaman Place, this county, was arrested in West Philadelphia Saturday as the self-confessed murderer of Alber Kraft, a boy. Eshleman is about forty years of age and at one time was a cadet at the West Point Military Academy. Eshleman left Leaman Place about twenty years ago. After leaving West Point he located in Philadelphia.

Eshleman's parents are both dead and he has no brothers and sisters. Eshleman received his education in the public schools of the county. He has been a resident of Philadelphia since leaving West Point, where he was located one year. ### Farmers Column

VERY VALUABLE INFORMATION FOR THE FARMERS

The Care of Brood Sows Before and After Farrowing--Mildy Foods often Kill Animals--The Care of Trees--Pros and Cons of Dairying

Young calves must be given every opportunity for health and growth.

Avoid putting too many cows in one pasture to reduce the feed to the smallest quality for each cow.

Don't neglect any broken wires in the barbed wire fence where the dairy herd is pastured. Cut udders are not profitable.

If there is the least idea in your mind that any of your cows are troubled with tuberculosis, use the test at once.

When possible test a cow's milk before buying her, and remember it does not pay to buy a cow whose milk tests much below three percent.

The cow and calf should be gradually weaned from each other, and to that end their quarters, when separated, should be in proximity to each other.

If you had a hired man who was not earning enough to pay his board would you keep him long? Then why do you keep the cow that does not make enough milk to pay for her keep? Many farmers are doing just that thing.

The pros and cons of dairy farming are likely to be discussed for a long time before an agreement is reached; and, in the meantime, the cow is pushing herself to the front in regions where she has not been highly esteemed.

A man can care for trees better if he makes a sharp distinction between pruning and training trees. The operations of pruning have to do with the modification of the vigor and the fruitfulness of the plants, but training, properly speaking, aims to keep the trees in manageable shape. Training high headed or low headed, open centered or close centered, one-storied or two storied, depends largely upon the convenience or the prejudices of the owner.

Moldy feeds occasionally kill lots of hogs. At other times they seem not to injure them; probably it depends on the stage which the ptomaines have reached or passed. Anyway, there is no use in taking chances by feeding moldy, heated feeds to high priced hogs. Rye and corn finely ground make a good slop for hogs on pasture of alfalfa or clover. For hogs in the pen this slop is somewhat too fattening and shorts or middlings with more protein will give better growth unless some tankage is added.

Brood sows should be allowed plenty of room to exercise in, up to about two, days of farrowing time. They should be kept in yards and pens where they will not be obliged to pass through narrow gates, over boards, doorways, or through low doorways where they are obliged to bend their backs to get through. Any one of these is likely to result in dead pigs at birth. It is a good idea to feed whole oats scattered in the feeding floor or ground for a week or two prior to farrowing, so that the sow will be forced to exercise in getting her feed. When about due to farrow, the sow should be put into a pen which has been fitted with wallguards, where the pigs may find safety after birth.

The ordinary pig guard is useless because it is neither high enough from the floor nor far enough from the wall, and the space underneath fills up with straw so that the pig is crushed almost as easily as if the guard were not there. For thin active sows a large pen may be used. For extremely heavy, fat sows, it is best to have a pen space comparatively small, so that the sow cannot turn around, quickly and thus step on her pigs. The sow should not be fed heavily just prior to farrowing nor just after farrowing, but should have a thin slop for a few days so that there may be no tendency to constipation. If there is any such tendency, a dose of epsom salts should be given in the swill. The bedding in the pen should be kept absolutely dry, dampness will very quickly cause death loss among young pigs. Within a week or two the sow and her litter should be moved out to a colony hog house, where they will get more exercise. When the pigs are two or three weeks old, two or three sows may be turned together.

WHY MOUNT JOY MERCHANTS SHOULD ADVERTISE IN THE BULLETIN

If you were looking for an investment and--

John D. Rockefeller gave you his personal assurance that a certain security was absolutely safe, would pay big dividends, was in short, the best investment he knew of--

Would you follow his advice? We will take for granted that you would.

Is it not for the reason that he has made a very large fortune through paying investments and is in position to know?

John Wanamaker has advised you to advertise.
Marshall Field has advised you to advertise.

These two gentlemen built up the largest retail establishments in the world. Each of them made a fortune. Each, attributes his success, very largely, to advertising?
Why not take their advice and use the Bulletin.

WHY MOUNT JOY MERCHANTS SHOULD ADVERTISE IN THE BULLETIN

Let's See, What Was His Name? In 1908 we experienced a very lively contest for the Presidency and Vice Presidency.

No great discovery or catastrophe received more space in the public print than did the utterances, the goings and the comings of the four candidates representing the two great parties.

It would seem impossible for any one to forget the names of these men.

Can you name the candidate for the Vice Presidency on the ticket with Mr. Bryan?

Oblivion is the price of silence. Mr. Bryan's name has been kept before the public. His running mate is forgotten.

Don't let the public forget you. Use the Bulletin.
