Earth Has Two Atmospheres.

Until recently it has been believed that the temperature of the atmosphere decreased regularly in proportion to height above the earth. But observations made with sounding balloons have proved that this hypothesis is far from being correct. Beyond from seven and a half to nine miles of altitude the lowering of the temperature stops, and at still higher altitudes it begins slowly to increase.

W. J. Humphrey, summing up and interpreting all the results of recent explorations of the upper air, thinks that the earth should be considered as being surrounded by two atmospheres, distinct and superimposed, which mingle scarcely at all with each other. The lower atmosphere is that in which are produced those troubles which cause changes in the weather; in this the temperature decreased rapidly with the altitude; this atmosphere contains almost two-thirds of the total mass of oxygen and azote, a slightly larger fraction of carbonic acid and almost all the water vapor. The higher atmosphere floats above this, almost as if upon water; in it is scarcely any water vapor; the temperature rises with the altitude, first very rapidly, then more slowly.

THE POWER OF SNAILS.

Two Snails Pull A Load of Two Pounds for Investigator. One day, by way of experiment, I harnessed two common garden snails to a toy gun carriage, to see if they could pull it along. Although the gun-carriage was a heavy leaden one, the snails pulled it so easily that I loaded the body of the carriage with more than equal to the task. Anxious to test their powers still further, I attached a top cannon (made of lead and brass) behind the gun-carriage, but the snails and their additional load moved on once again with the same apparent ease. Out of curiosity I decided to weigh the cannon, gun-carriage and shot, and to my great surprise found the total weight to be almost one pound! I venture to think this a very good load for two snails to manage.

In an article of reminiscences written by Emma Calve for the London Standard there is some account of her relations with the people in her native province in France, where she has an estate. On one of her birthdays, the country folk went to call upon her, and she joined them in dancing the bouree. An old woman who heard her sing asked her if her "screaming" hurt her. A peasant once told her that he was sure a proprietor of a local amusement garden would give her five francs a day if she would sing for him.

The Carnegie Observatory on Mount Wilson, in California, is of white canvas, 33' in diameter. You look for telescopes inside, but in vain; a series of mirrors appear instead, and it is the third of these that does the magnifying instead of the usual telescope tube. Visitors are accommodated in chalets, a little house being apportioned to each guest. Observations have been carried on since April, 1904, and every day a photo-heliograph is taken and several other pictures, by no means of the spectro-heliograph.

The Bells of the Bastille. Comparatively few persons have ever heard of the bells of the Bastille. After the destruction of the prison they found their way to the great foundry in Romilly, but the manager of the works destroyed them. Now they are back in Paris, in a private house in the Avenue d'Eylan. On each bell is engraved: "Made by Louis Cheron for the Royal Bastille, in the year 1761," and they are further ornamented with the royal arms and a huge cross.

Smoke Wastes. A competent authority calculates the direct physical loss to this country through the emission of smoky smoke from chimneys at $600,000,000 a year. If so, we must regard that as one of the greatest wastes of all our resources. Of course, there is, in addition, an incalculable but appallingly great indirect loss of a still more serious kind, in the "uncleanliness, poverty, wretchedness, disease and death" which are caused by the lazy, slovenly and wasteful practice.

It has been estimated that the average length of a man's stride is 31 1/2 inches, and that the distance an average traveler can cover at this rate is 7,158 yards an hour, or 119 yards a minute. The number of strides would be 7,500 an hour or 125 a minute. The length of the stride in the various armies is as follows: United States, 30 inches; German, 31 1/2 inches; Austria, 29 1/2 inches; Italian, 29 1/2 inches; French, 29 1/2 inches, and British, 30 inches.

Another bumper crop expected Ground in excellent condition for spring planting and the farmers are busy

With plenty of moisture in the ground, and the surface dry enough for uninterrupted spring plowing, the State Department of Agriculture is looking for another year of unprecedented crops.

"While wheat has fallen of several points because of the dry weather, immediately following freezing temperatures," said Deputy Secretary A. L. Martin on Monday. "It is a little early to say that an excellent crop will be harvested.

"The ground is in the best of shape for spring planting, and the farmers everywhere are busy plowing. There will be a big crop of corn, for the indications are that this will be a year most favorable for corn-growing in Pennsylvania.

"The reports from all parts of the State on fruit are also promising, for from no section has come word that the late frosts have killed any of the buds to any great extent."

LAND NOT YET BOUGHT Neither is the Exact Location of the New Chocolate Factory Settled

Last week we quoted Mr. M. L. Bachman, of the Bachman Chocolate Company, that they proposed buying whatever land they needed from the owner Mr. Eli Helman last Thursday. Well as far as we can learn the land has not yet been bought. At least so says Mr. Helman.

As to the location of the factory we are unable to say any more than a week ago and we doubt whether the promoters themselves have fully decided on the exact location.

The people at Florin are anxious to have it located near the J. Y. Kline Concrete Block factory and the residents of our town would like to see it in Mount Joy or as near as possible.

Mr. Bachman is now making an effort to settle the land question at the earliest possible date.

Mr. John Schock Mr. John Schock, a prominent and highly-respected resident of this borough died suddenly at his home, on East Main street, on Thursday evening at 5:15 o'clock, in his ninety-first year. Up to the very last the deceased was able to attend to his personal wants, although he had been failing rapidly recently. On Wednesday, the day before his death, he superintended the planting of his garden. On Thursday morning he was in his garden. About three o'clock that afternoon he fell over from an apoplectic stroke, and expired in two hours without regaining consciousness.

Deceased was for many years, closely identified with the agricultural and commercial interests of Lancaster county in various lines. Mr. Schock was born Jan. 7, 1825, in East Donegal township, three miles west of Marietta, and comes of a family that has been well known in Lancaster county for several generations. His great grandfather, John Schock, a native of Germany, was the pioneer in Lancaster county, where in 1734 he settled for life in Manor township, near Crewell, on land now occupied by one of his great grandsons, John Schock, a farmer. It was included in what is now known as Turkey Hill. John Schock was reared on the old homestead in East Donegal township where he remained until he was sixteen years old, and had obtained his education in the neighboring public schools. For the six years following he was engaged as clerk in a store, the same store in which Barr Spanglef was then employed and now owns, in Marietta, in which town he also engaged in the lumber business for seven years; during the next seven years he carried on milling, on the old homestead, in partnership with his brother Abraham. In 1861 he came to Mount Joy, where he has since resided, and took up the business of his father-in-law, John Patterson, dealing in coal, lumber, flour and grain, and later adding the oil business. Until 1895 he continued in these lines, but since then he has lived retired, his son Clarence now owning and conducting the business.

One woman with her nose turned up can ruin a reputation. The public takes care of many people who are not in the poorest. Don't be too anxious to correct a man when you hear him make a mistake; he may not want to be corrected. What an awful row a little holl can kick up! In spite of its small size it seems to be pulling ligaments out of your body. A man occasionally wants to quit smoking, but a "No Smoking" sign left one of the inducements of his good resolution. What has become of the old-fashioned boy who referred to his knife as a "frog sticker?" And what, by the way, has become of the old-fashioned Barlow knife? When a boy is whipped at school, and his mother sends him out into the yard to get a stick of the size the teacher used, to show visitors, the case against the teacher is pretty bad.

Mr. Schock's career has been one of successful activity in the mercantile world, but he has never given much time to public affairs, although he has served two terms as school director in Mt. Joy borough, with satisfaction to all concerned. His record as a business man is one of which he could be proud, for besides acquiring a substantial competence in his active years, he gained and maintained the highest reputation for integrity and probity, as well as thrifty management. His political support was given to the Republican party.

On Feb. 10, 1852, Mr. Schock was married to Miss Mary Ann Patterson. Mrs. Schock died in 1905. Four children have blessed this union: Percy P., who died in 1903, editor of the Marietta Register of Marietta; Harry C., county treasurer and president of the Union National Bank; Clarence, who resided with his father and carries on his father's oil business; and John L., whose death occurred in 1885, after a brilliant career thru the United States Naval Academy.

The funeral was held from his late home on Monday morning at 10:30 o'clock, with interment in the Mount Joy Cemetery.

Mrs. Margaret Davis Mrs. Margaret Davis, wife of Chas. A. Davis, died Monday morning at her home in Marietta, from a complication of diseases, being ill since last Christmas. Davis of Marietta; two daughters, Mrs. Ruth, wife of W. C. Harris, Pittsburg, and Miss Sarah Jane Davis, Philadelphia. A sister, Mrs. Rebecca Wiley of Drumore, and three brothers survive. The funeral was held this afternoon from her late home and at 2 o'clock from the Bethel Church. Interment in the adjoining cemetery. She was a member of the Bethel Church.
