alve-In-The-Head Motors

we started to sell Buick value-in-the-head automobiles in 1905. Now that quite a few of our competitors are selling valve-in-the-head motors we presume they will still continue to tell you the same story. They must do so or admit they are members of the "Anna-

Although some of the cars they sell have immitations of the Buick valve-in-the-head motor in them and they will tell you they are "just as good" as a Buick yet th y are not a real valve-in-the head motor. If this is correct, why buy an imitation? They nor we at any time ever advised you to buy an imitation valve-in-thehead motor (except since they offer them for sale.) They and ourselves were correct in giving you this advice and we again advise you by all means to accept it as true because consider a man's success in swine growing based upon luck. Good drainage is essential on the hog farm, and no amount of tile or artificial drainage will take the place of good natural drainage. While hills and valleys make an | ideal place for a hog farm, the herd should be kept as near to the source of the water as possible because of the danger if the stock becoming afflicted with cholera and other diseases caused by the stream being contaminated by swine further up stream. A model breeding farm should be provided with a timber lot or large grove. There is no shade like natural shade, and trees soften the cold winds during the winter. Their properly utilized by the swine grow-

The breeding animals of the herd should receive the very best care and attention at all times, but with all of our knowledge of breeding and feeding the science of swine growing is yet in its infancy.

There does not appear to be any more practicable method of grinding Hall Racks hay for hogs than by feeding the hay via a good rack. A few years ago some enthusiast wrote a story about alfalfa tea, which he said was the finest thing on earth; that the the alfalfa and at the same time left the plant food for the soil. By giving the tea to the hogs they would gain their weight, and then you could scatter the stewed alfalfa back on the land. The story found its way into one of the eastern publications and the western experiment stations have been flooded with inquiries ever since.

There is something in the care of birds, from a canary to a goose or it may be even an ostrich—that attracts people. Why, we cannot tell. It is simply inherent and is attractive to all kinds of people, and this is why poultry raising is taken up by the rich man as an agreeable invest money and some of his time, and the business and professional men as an exhilarating change from their respective duties, and after a time a source of profit. The poultry industry is a great proposition today. Some writer declares that our emblem should be "The Industrious Hen," not "The Warlike Eagle." But, after all, be the poultry keeper a wealthy man of leisure or a washerwoman with a back yard scarcely large enough to hold her washtub and her poultry, the keeping of poultry resolves itself at last the ordinary everyday business of keeping aright, buying and sell ing, if there be any progress con nected with it-and there should be.
