

Let's All Help Our Old Vets

A few days ago we got an inkling that our post is very desirous of attending this grand review (and so they should) but we understand they do not have the "wherewithall."

Now, as true and patriotic citizens, are we not duty bound to come to the aid of these deserving vets who made these United States possible? Most assuredly. Now who will volunteer to raise enough money to send the surviving members of this Post to Washington on this occasion?

At Lancaster there is a ladies auxiliary in conjunction with the Post there. Also an order called the Ladies of the G. A. R. Recently these organizations held a festival for a week in order to raise enough money to send their veterans on this trip. We would suggest that our citizens get busy and do something. A festival, we think, would not enough money to do this. We have mentioned the fact to a number of people and all expressed a willingness to assist. If, in the opinion of our people, it would be more preferable to raise the money by subscription, the Bulletin will do all in its power to aid the cause.

Let some one shoulder enough responsibility to call a meeting some time and somewhere and act. We know that it would not require more than about $150 to give the old soldiers the treat of their career and we feel certain the e isn't a man, woman or child in this town that would not give their mite.

Will Lose 4,200 Bushels of Pears

stantly battled with it, cutting out continually where the blight would appear this year, however, it came like an avalanche, and we could do nothing but cut and cut until some trees were reduced to mere stumps.

Without the blight I should have harvested 3,000 bushels of Kieffer pears and 1,200 bushels of Bartlett's, with it practically none at all.

Asked his opinion why the disease should be particularly disastrous this season, Mr. Reist replied:

"The trees that didn't bloom were not affected so badly as the others. When the trees were in full bloom the pestil was just in as good condition to receive the blight as it was to receive the pollen. Fire blight is nothing more than a bacterial germ, discovered about 1835.

In the warm days of April," he went on, "I believe the blight that had over-wintered on the trees let out a sweetish, oozy substance, which was taken up by the bees and carried from blossom to blossom, received by the pistil and carried down to the embryo fruit." As the greater portion of Mr. Reist's pear production goes to the high-grade markets, being carefully packed and handled, it can readily be seen that the loss of an expected yield of 4,200 bushels is very considerable.

SIZE DOES NOT ALWAYS COUNT

There Have Been Many Men of Small Stature Who Have Made Good.

"You can't tell by the look of a frog how far he can jump."

That old and crude philosophy is as applicable to men as to frogs.

A story in the Star recently told of the arrival at the Union Station of four men, three of them alert, well dressed, impressive looking. The fourth wore a battered old gabardine, frayed at the buttonholes. His manner was timid and retiring. In size he was insignificant.

He was a little-great man, Dr. Chas. H. Mayo, one of the greatest surgeons the world has ever known.

John B. Gough, the great platform orator, used to tell a story about himself, how he arrived late at a hall in Glasgow, where he was to speak. The place was packed. He could not get in.

To the crowd wedged into the front entrance he told that he must get in, he was Gough, the speaker. They looked at him, he was an undersized man, and laughed. They imagined that Gough, the great orator, must be a tall man.

He went to a side window, hoping to be able to crowd in there. It was already jammed full, and they, too laughed when he told them he was John B. Gough.

Finally he went to a rear door and told the man on guard there that he was Gough.

"Yes, five or six other men have already told me that," the watchman said. Gough gave him a shilling to pass him in to the stage and after the lecture the doorkeeper went to him and said:

"Well, Gough, you're like a singed cat; better than you look."

Many men who do great things are small in stature and insignificant looking. Nearly all of them would pass unnoticed in a crowd.

Gen. Sir John French, Field Marshal in command of the British forces in France, "the incomparable Ney" of the British Army, is described by Herbert Corey as "short and squat in stature, a ludicrous figure on horseback, and not at all the sort of man in appearance one expects a cavalry leader to be."

And he is "quiet and unassuming." They are all—the men who do great things.

Lloyd-George, British Chancellor of the Exchequer, one of the great men of England, is described as follows in Collier's Weekly:

"A short, stocky man, about the size of LaPollette, there was nothing distinguished in his appearance." He is known as "the little Welsh lawyer."

Lord Roberts, a great general, was known as "Little Bobs."

Grant was short and stocky. Lord Nelson "the greatest sea fighter the world has ever seen," was undersized and delicate. Napoleon was "the Little Corporal."

Stephen A. Douglas was "the little Giant." Harriman and Jay Gould, wizards of railway finance, were undersized. So is John D. Rockefeller.

The list might be extended to columns, disproving the popular belief that for a man to be a genius he must be big; but still the world will keep on believing it—Kansas City Star.

AUTO HORN SAVES HIM FROM MOUNTAIN LIONS

He Thought His Last Hour Had Come, but Luckily He Had the "Honk-Honk" Weapon.

Sacramento, Cal.—Charles Jackson, driver of the mail stage between Markleville, Cal., and Gardnerville, Nev., has found a new use for automobile horns. As a weapon against attacks by mountain lion Jackson says an automobile horn has no equal, and Jackson is in a position to know.

While driving to Gardnerville the other day Jackson was confronted by two mountain lions, made savage by heavy snows and the resultant lack of food. The brutes disputed the right of way with Jackson, who was unarmed. The horses took fright and became almost unmanageable.

"I thought my last moment had come," said Jackson. "The lions were preparing to leap upon me or the horses and that would have seen the end of us both. I yelled, cursed and prayed at the top of my voice, but the lions were not a bit scared. They came creeping toward me and the frightened, shivering team."

"Suddenly I remembered I had a good noise producer in a package under the wagon seat. It was an automobile horn I was bringing in for the postmaster. I grabbed that horn and pressed the bulb as hard as I could. The 'honk-honk' of that horn did more than all my yelling, for the lions turned tail and fled down the hill as though pursued by a thousand demons."

"I'll either carry a gun or an auto horn on the rest of my trips this winter," added Jackson.

Before turning oyster soup into the tureen put into the dish a heaping tablespoonful of finely minced celery and half as much chopped parsley. The flavor of the soup will be much enhanced.

Don't cultivate the potatoes when out in bloom, or coming out, unless you want a lot of stunted little tubers. Cultivate them before they get that big, and hoe them clean of weeds.

Kerosene will soften boots and shoes that have been hardened by water and makes them as pliable as new.
