VERY VALUABLE INFORMATION FOR THE FARMERS

Keep the Hog Lot in a Sanitary Condition—The Cultivation of the Orchard—The Planting of the Orchard—Live Stock Notes

Keep your pigs inside during a rain storm.
Keep the best ewe lambs to reenflock the flock.
Lambs will begin to eat grain at about two weeks old.
Protect your farm from hog cholera by keeping it clean.
Do not allow any check in the growth of your pigs.
A pig will always keep its bed clean if it has any chance at all.
The 300 pound pig at the eighth month is masterwork of the feeder.
How about an alfalfa pasture with shade and fresh water for your hogs?
The sanitary concrete hog wallow has found a permanent place on many farms.
The essential point in using purebred draft mares on the farm is intelligent management.
It is a good thing to allow all the exercise and fresh air possible to the mares that are with foal.
Relief from attacks by flies may be brought to live stock on the farm by the use of sprays. The following spray is suggested in extension bulletin No. 43 on "Flies and Their Control," by F. L. Washburn, entomologist of the Minnesota college of agriculture. Three parts of fish oil and one part kerosene. The spraying is done with a knapsack sprayer, and it takes only two or three minutes to spray a steer or horse. The spray appears to keep off all flies for two days.
Misinformation is given in certain sections concerning the proper distance between trees in an orchard. It has been recommended by certain uninformed nurserymen that trees be planted about 15 feet apart each way, whereas they should be 35 to 40 feet apart. If planted too close, they cannot be cultivated or sprayed to good advantage. The limbs grow upright, and make picking difficult. Furthermore, shaded portions of the tree will not set a normal crop. The horticultural department of the Nebraska Agricultural college says that the proper distances for the different trees are as follows: Cherries and peaches, 20 feet; and apples, 20 to 40 feet except Whitney crab and Duchess and other upright varieties, which may be planted but 25 feet apart.
Life in fruit trees, as in everything else, comes from within. The tree must draw its vitality from the soil through the roots. The soil must be fed in various ways to produce healthy trees and good fruit, but without cultivation all of this work be like throwing money away, says the Farm Life. "Cultivation unlocks the real treasure vaults of the soil." Many disagree as to when and how to cultivate, but nearly all orchard lists believe in cultivation part of the time at least. Orchard work is about to assume a new prominence in the east, if the signs of the times are not at fault. The application of extensive methods to eastern orchards will produce highly satisfactory and profitable results, as already proven in numerous instances. The secret of all secrets in successful orchard work is thorough cultivation of the soil.
Never wait until your hogs begin getting sick before you begin to clean up and improve the sanitary condition of their quarters. In this matter an ounce of prevention is worth more than a pound of cure. The plan should be to prevent by cleanliness, good sanitation and plenty of pure, fresh water, your hogs from getting sick, and it can be done by the proper kind of treatment. Give your hogs plenty of clean pasture where there are no longer hog disease germs in the soil, and provide clean, wholesome food; scald, disinfect and clean the troughs and swill barrels while the hogs have good health, and don't wait until they are sick to begin it. This should be done frequently during warm weather especially. And above all things, don't compel your hogs to lie in their own filth, or any other filth for that matter, for it breeds disease. Clean quarters, clean food, clean water, pure air are the best preventatives against hog cholera.

GREAT BOXING SHOW

Johnny Howard, who meets Houck at Rocky Springs Thursday night, has had two draws with Jack Dillon and one with Mike Gibbons and has defeated Bob Moha, Sailor Grande, Buck Crouse, Jack Twin Sullivan, Jack Hanlon, Young Farmer, Jack Driscoll, Larry Williams, Billy Grupp, and others. This easily shows his class and he thinks he can whip Houck.
After a lot of trouble, Johnny Greiner and Tim Droney have been matched for their first meeting. Within a short time each has defeated Frank Erne and now they want to decide a vexed problem. This bout is a show in itself and two more will be made.
This is a show of class and no real red-blooded sport can afford to miss it. Ample trolley facilities. Great races at the fair in the afternoon. No advance in prices.

Mt. Joy People Should not Neglect Their Kidneys
