Farmers Column

VERY VALUABLE INFORMATION FOR THE FARMERS

Confinement Essential in the Fattening of Fowls Quickly—The Care of the Mating Hens—Select Pullets Carefully for the Winter Laying

There are entirely too many unprofitable hens kept on the average farm. Too many idlers are allowed to occupy the room and eat feed belonging to the industrious ones. Weed out the drones; it is the only means of success.

The most profitable fixture that can be placed in a hen house is the trap nest. Where this is operated from November 1 to June 1, the early and winter layers can be picked out, and it is that class which can be bred for profit. But it is not alone sufficient to select the good layers. You should go a step farther. These hens should be mated to cockerels bred from heavy laying hens. The male has a wonderful influence on egg production.

After all is said and done, by far the most important single factor in winter egg production is the early hatched, well developed pullet. If we are anxious to get winter eggs it is all-important that we give attention to the early hatched pullet and her development. It will be well to sort out the promising early pullets and place them on free range by them and give them extra care and attention. A good colony coop moved out to the edge of a cornfield makes quarters for them, and if an abundance and a good variety of feeds is constantly before them, with pure water at hand, they will grow much more rapidly than if running with the balance of the flock. Especially is this true if they are otherwise permitted to be pestered by young cockerels or other males. The early pullet will surely pay well for extra care and attention on any farm.

It is to be expected that most of the hens will commence molting during the early part of September. The loss of the old feathers and the growing of a new crop will make something of a drain upon the vital forces but, as it is a purely natural process, it should not be permanently injurious to fowls that are properly fed and sufficiently protected from storms and changes of temperature. By alternating light and heavy feeding and adding condiments to the food and tonics to the drinking water it is possible to hasten the molt. There are exceptional cases in which it is well to take this course, but, as a rule, it is not advisable. While they are changing one coat for another it is not natural for hens to lay many eggs, and it is a great mistake to attempt to force them to lay by giving stimulating foods. They need this period of from ten to fourteen weeks for rest and for the growth of new feathers. During this time they should have good care, with plenty of pure water and clean grit. Animal food of some kind should be given, with a liberal grain ration, together with a small quantity of linseed meal, and it will be of marked advantage to add a pint of sunflower seeds per day for each dozen hens.

The first essential in fattening fowls of any kind is to keep them confined so that they can get as little exercise as possible. For this purpose crates or regular fattening pens are best. These pens should be so arranged that they can be easily cleaned. In many cases the bottom is left slatted so that the soft droppings caused by the fattening ration will drop through and thus not soil the feet and feathers. The following method of fattening, in which milk is used, will give satisfactory results: A mash consisting of four parts of cornmeal, two parts wheat middlings and one part beef scraps should be wetted with skim milk until it is thin enough to run from a spoon, should be fed to the chickens in troughs. They should be allowed to eat as much of this mash as they will. In addition to this they should be given all the water they will drink, and a plentiful supply of green food. This method produces a very fine, soft, sweet meat. In commercial milkfattening plants buttermilk is used in combination with ground feed similar to the above method, but the farmer will generally find it more convenient to use skim milk. In following this method of fattening, on account of the soft mash food's liability to contamination, care should be taken to keep everything clean and sanitary. The troughs and dishes should be scalded after each feeding, and the pens should also be kept well cleaned.

HOME HEALTH CLUB

By Dr. David H. Reeder, Chicago, Ill.

Cancer: In my last article I told you something about Cancer. From the many inquiries regarding a form of treatment that can safely be used it is evident that there are a vast number of people who are afflicted and know it and a still larger number who suspect that they are afflicted and are afraid to go to their doctor for fear he will confirm their suspicions and order a surgical operation. For this latter class it is difficult to find words sufficiently with which to condemn them.

If you have any kind of a diseased condition, by all means go to your family physician and find out just as much in regard to its nature and extent as it is possible for him to discover and then insist that he tell you frankly and fully all about it. Only the silly ostrich thinks it is safe when it hides its head in the sand.

I am fully convinced regarding the power of the mind in the treatment of disease and known of its practical value in effecting many cures, but as I have told you in a previous article, fear itself can and does cause disease and the thing which you fear the doctor may tell you is Cancer, may not be such but you are establishing a mental cancer, so to speak, by your fear and cowardice. It is best to know and then much may be done before it is too late.

I once saw a man aged 85 years who had a Cancer and he told me that the diagnosis had been made 30 years previously and he was given only a year or two to live. By a careful regulation of his diet and habits of life he had lived in comparative comfort and the Cancer had remained stationary. He was past ninety when he died but his death was not due to Cancer.

I have been asked how one is to know when they have an internal Cancer and again I say, go to your doctor. One of the latest methods of diagnosis of internal Cancer, that is safe, simple and will tell the story quickly in many cases is by the use of catheteresis. A certain liquid is placed upon a pad and attached to the positive pole of a galvanic battery, the negative pole is attached to another pad that is saturated with warm water. The pad connected with the positive pole is placed over the seat of the supposed Cancer, directly on the body, supposedly on the stomach, while the pad attached to the negative pole is placed at an opposite point at the back. About 20 to 40 milli-amperes is then turned on for 15 minutes. If there is a certain kind of Cancer within the body, its characteristic odor will be found in the pad attached to the negative pole and this odor will be so strong and positive that anyone who has ever been so unfortunate as to come frequently in contact with the Cancer odor will be able to make a positive diagnosis.

I have seen this method tested in a number of cases and in one of them, a man was so positive that he had Cancer of the stomach, that in spite of the fact that the test showed no signs of it, he went to a hospital for surgical proof. After two weeks nursing through the surgical test, was informed that there was no Cancer.

The safest and most successful method of treatment that I have ever heard of or seen used is now being adopted by a number of physicians. It has been used by the discoverer for about 30 years and I have seen cases in which the cure was completed over 8 years ago. The principle of the discovery was like many others of importance, accidental and made by a layman. If I have the story right, this man conceived the idea of smoking the salt for his hams instead of smoking the hams and then liquifying the salt and injecting it into the hams. It worked and liquid smoke, as it is now called, can now be bought by the gallon, it preserves meat, that is the meat does not decay.

When the doctor saw this method of stopping the process of decay he thought of a score on the breast of one of his patients, Cancer, the flesh was rotting away. He invested a retort, liquified and combined the smoke from a derivative of carbolic acid and chlorine with smoke from a rum iodine, hydrargerym and beechwood. All of these remedies are considered powerful antiseptics and the liquid smoke as we might call it, is injected into and around the Cancer and also the venous blood. The result is markedly beneficial from the first as it appears to eliminate the proplasma from the blood and the patient improves at once.

A dressing is made of the material in the form of an ointment or paste which gradually destroys the Cancer sore and it heals without leaving much if any scar. I believe that in time, as this form of treatment comes to the general knowledge of the profession, most Cancers will be cured if the sufferers do not too long postpone the diagnosis.

WHAT MOUNT JOY WANTS TO KNOW

The Answer is Found in the Statement of a Mount Joy Resident

From week to week from year to year, there have been appearing in these columns statements made by neighbors, which we have all read with great interest, and many of us with great profit. But what we want to know is, do they stand the greatest test of all—the test of time? Here is conclusive evidence on this point from a Mount Joy woman:

Mrs. Henry Krall, Mount Joy St., Mount Joy, says: "I had always been very nervous, and when my kidneys got disordered, my health ran down. My back ached constantly and I had headaches every day. I was often dizzy and had chills. I was unable to do any housework. I finally got Doan's Kidney Pills at Garber's Drug Store and soon after using them I felt better than I had in a long time. (Statement given Oct. 26, 1907.)"

A Permanent Cure

On March 17, 1914, Mrs. Krall said: "I value Doan's Kidney Pills as highly now as ever. The cure this remedy made for me has been permanent."
