Donald Cameron, former United States Senator, is a brother and Mrs. Wayne MacVeagh, of Washington, a sister. Mrs. Haldeman had been sick for some time.

Mrs. Haldeman had a number of very warm friends in this county, to whom she was endeared by her fine character and remarkable qualities of mind and heart. One of her distinguishing characteristics was her intense and unswerving loyalty to her friends and to those of her father. Her husband was the son of the late Jacob Haldeman, of Harrisburg, who was a brother of Henry Haldeman, of Locust Grove and Chickies. The latter was the father of Dr. Samuel S. Haldeman, Paris Haldeman and Dr. Edwin Haldeman, of Chickies. Benjamin C. Hatfield
The last descendant of Samuel Hatfield, who established at Wagontown in 1830 what is said to have been the second rolling mill in America (Lukens being the first) died Thursday evening at his home on West Donegal street, in this place. He was Benjamin Hatfield, a grandson of the pioneer rolling mill man. Mr. Hatfield was about 53 years old and had been ill about two weeks, with an attack of pneumonia.

While it has been a great many years since Mr. Hatfield left Wagontown and went to live in Lancaster, he was a frequent visitor to the old homestead, where both his father and grandfather spent the greater portion of their lives. Only this fall he motored to the farm. He had been married only a few years. Prior to his marriage he lived at the Stevens House in Lancaster, but of recent years lived in this place. His untimely death was a severe shock to his host of friends.

On the death of Samuel Hatfield, the old homestead property of almost one hundred acres, inclusive of the rolling mill, fell to two sons, Samuel and Benjamin, who kept the mill in operation for several years. Later they ceased to operate the mill and moved to Coatesville. At their deaths, the Wagontown property was bequeathed to Benjamin Hatfield, who died Thursday.

For a period of several years, the latter Mr. Hatfield took keen delight in preserving the old brick stack of the rolling mill out of which poured the first smoke that marked a new era in the manufacture of iron in America. The brick stack and a portion of the foundation of the mill stood for many years, until a high wind storm razed the stack in 1913.

The Hatfield place, at Wagontown, has been occupied of recent years by John K. Schrack and N. P. Everhart, the latter occupying a flour and feed mill. Funeral services were held at his late home on Donegal street on Sunday afternoon at 5:30 and were conducted by Rev. B. F. Meyer, of the Reformed Church, Elizabethtown, who was at the deceased's bedside when he died. The choir of this church rendered special music at the services. The remains were then taken to Coatesville on Monday morning. Further services were held at the Brandywine Manor Presbyterian Church at 11 o'clock and interment was made in the cemetery adjoining.

Warren Haines
Warren Haines, a well known resident of Harrisburg, died at his home in that city on Sunday, aged 59 years. Deceased, is well known here, having been a frequent visitor. He was married to Miss Anna Stamm, who formerly lived here, the family moving to Harrisburg in 1879. He leaves a wife and two children to mourn his death. The remains were brought here in an auto hearse at noon today and interred in the Mount Joy cemetery.
