WE EARNED HIS SALARY.
The Man On the Job Understood His Business Right Thoroughly.

At a time when the public were hearing a great deal of new "industrial combinations" one of the newly arrived captains of industry found himself in a Western city in extreme need of communicating with the New York end of his enterprise.

He had almost completed an arrangement for the consolidation of a number of Western enterprises, but in order to obtain final authority he needed from New York it became necessary to explain, by wire to his partners, all he had done in the West.

The situation permitted of no delay, such as would ensue should he write, and to make matters worse he had no cipher code. For some time the financier racked his brains to evolve some method whereby he might communicate his information to his associates in New York, but in such manner that it would be meaningless to any one else. He could, however, think of no such method, and at last was forced to the conclusion that he must take the chance of sending the message in plain English. According he drew up the message and gave it to his confidential man to send.

About half an hour later, when the confidential man came in, he was asked whether he had forwarded the wire.

"Yes, sir," said the man; "but not exactly in the way you proposed. I rewrote it, the first word on one company's blank, the second word on another company's blank, and so on. In that way I sent half the message by each company, neither half, of course, meaning anything to one not in the secret. Then I sent a second wire by one company reading: "Read messages together, after saying words."

Not long afterward the confidential man was receiving a larger salary.

"This is the Brooder that Requires So Little Coal"

(about 25¢ a week) says W. V. Lancaster, of Lyons, N. Y. "I have no trouble to keep my 'Blue Hen' Brooder at the right temperature. I have over 200 chicks in it now, some four weeks and the others twelve days' old. A happier, more contented lot you never saw."

"Blue Hen" Hot Air Colony Brooders Are Better at $14.50

than most $30 brooders. The grates can't clinker up or smother fire. Their area is 2 1/2 times greater than others; the regulator is automatic and certain. Study the diagram.
