HOME HEALTH CLUB

By Dr. David H. Reeder, Chicago, Ill. Facts Concerning Epilepsy: (By Dr. Wm. Held, 7th installment.) It is natural that such results should have given rise to the fond hope of bringing the cure of the same in the treatment of epileptics, but we were soon face to face with the fact that the serum when used in the human subject, proved locally and systematically so irritating that its employment became impractical. It was necessary to weaken, attenuate or do something that would render the serum not only beneficial but also absolutely harmless. It was tedious labor, injecting on animal after another, changing concentrations of solutions, drawing spinal fluid from patients and making various combinations and naturally was very time consuming when the finally produced serum, in the absence of all irritating characteristics, was found to have no curative value.

The description of manipulations which followed this state of affairs appeals only to the trained mind of the laboratory physician for which reason it is omitted. The fundamental principle which led to success was the fact that the specific and responsible ferment was extracted from the serum. The anti-epileptic serum so produced combines absolute harmlessness with proven efficiency to suppress the objectionable bromides and other drugs, so long and so disastrously used by epileptics. Under the serum treatment the mental faculties of epileptics cleared with noticeable promptness as one of the first symptoms of the treatment; it seemed as if a cloud which formerly enveloped the patient, had been lifted.

The steadily increasing evidence of the serum efficiency is a heart cheering message. He who now speaks of the prognosis of epilepsy can no longer pronounce the horrible disease incurable with the same ring of poignancy which formerly characterized his announcement. The present generation witnesses the production of a specific anti-epileptic, the long looked for remedy which the present laboratory of present day workers. Epileptics of the present generation will be able to receive treatment with the same chance of success as is now obtained in the treatment of Syphilis.

and the coming generation will not be in position to realize the great boon placed at its command; they will be less keenly affected, for they will not have as in the case now, harbored epileptics for prolonged periods. They will not have known the pangs imparted by the vain search for relief; they will compel them to leave their epileptic in the care of strangers, in the care of an unsympathetic world; they will not have travelled from one end of the country to the other to accept recovery from epilepsy as a matter of course without having experienced the heartaches of those who now care for epileptics. It is only by such comparison that the supreme importance of present day achievement along epilepsy research can in a measure be realized.

When you are told that a serum has been discovered that will effect epilepsy more beneficially than any other form of treatment and that there are now former patients who after years of affliction and daily having had from many attacks daily to several weekly and monthly, that such patients have actually been free from attacks for months and years following the serum treatment, while others have been enabled to leave the asylum and return to normal and useful occupations, they have regained their normal faculties and that none of the serum patients has received an atom of suppressive drugs, you may wonder why, when there are 175,000 epileptics in this country, why thousands of these epileptics do not rush in to avail themselves of this treatment which has in every respect proven capable to accomplish more good than any other method thus far known. The reason for this is that we have always some people who delight in throwing stumbling blocks into the road of progress. True the efforts of all progress to the real meritorious innovation cannot prevail for ever, but for a while they impede progress. In scanning the pages of history you invariably meet instances where every new discovery was met by antagonism of the discoverer's contemporaries, but which were later generally accepted.

JACOB J. SWANK PRAISES TANLAC MASTER REMEDY

Retired Business Man Feels It a Duty to Make Facts Known Jacob J. Swank, a retired business man, of 625 Napoleon St., Johnstown, Pa., said recently: "I am a conservative man, and have especially been skeptical regarding endorsements of medicines of any character, although I have obtained relief from catarrh of the head and throat and stomach trouble. I believe I had used almost everything imaginable before I took Tanlac. At night, when I slept, which was poorly, I evidently swallowed accumulations of mucus, as I invariably awakened in the morning choked and nauseated. That is the way I judge that my stomach became affected. "My hearing became impaired and the itching in my ears became almost unbearable, and there were roaring noises also. I had a most unpleasant taste in my mouth and scarcely any appetite. "My condition was so distressing that I had almost determined to visit a dry salt climate to gain relief. I watched the introduction of Tanlac carefully and I finally decided, if so many men and women, of evidently sound sense used the medicine and said they were benefited, it would be worth my while to try it, although I really had no faith in it at the time. "I was surprised, however, I began to improve rapidly under the Tanlac treatment. My whole system is now right; the accumulations in my nose and throat have disappeared, my hearing has improved, I eat better, my sleep is restful and I feel better every day. I now consider myself physically able to throw off any other symptoms. "I am a well man and I propose to tell others of the good Tanlac has done me. I feel it is my duty to do so."
