HOOVER'S LATEST PLEA TO FARMERS: "HOGS, MORE HOGS AND STILL MORE HOGS"

Deficiency in Fats Now More Serious War Factor Than Bread Grain Situation—Tells Public Safety Men
Pennsylvania Has the Best Organization in the Country.

To the assembled representatives of the county organizations of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, in session at Philadelphia, Herbert C. Hoover, Federal Food Administrator, gave his latest and most important message to the people and more particularly to the farmers of the United States. "Hogs, more hogs, and still more hogs," is the slogan of his new appeal.

Mr. Hoover's address came in the midst of a food supply conference, arranged by Heinz, chairman of the Department of Food Supply. The attendance of Public Safety Committee chairmen, food supply representatives, and executive secretaries numbered about 250 and came from practically every county in the state. Governor Brumbaugh, Lieutenant Governor McClain, Auditor General Snyder, George Wharton Pepper, E. T. Stotesbury, and many other men of prominence heard Mr. Hoover join in the assertion that in point of organization and accomplishments Pennsylvania's Safety Committee had proved to be the most efficient in the United States.

A striking analysis of the food situation was presented by Mr. Heinz, who is acting as Federal Food Administrator for Pennsylvania. He has a prominent part in the shaping of national food programs. Mr. Heinz pictured the world meat supply as being short 115,000,000 animals, with a shortage of 7,000,000 animals in the United States. The wheat situation is just as bad, he declared. Exemption, he said, may apply to the physical situation, but the wheat problem, but there is no exemption for the food forces. Every one must help in insuring supplies for our own armies abroad and for our allies in the trenches.

Conservation and production are the problems to which Mr. Hoover gave special emphasis. He said: "Early in the month of June, when I was asked to give a special report on our defense, I and the men who assembled around me at the moment made a short survey of the situation. The organization throughout the United States. We came early to the state of Pennsylvania in our wanderings, and after making a short study of the organization of the state we determined that if we could annex the National Food Safety to the Food Administration we would be no further away as to Pennsylvania, and also that we had settled the question for ten years of the people of the United States."

"We were in no uncertain mind as to the organization and the way that it was completed. We were confident that it was sound, sane and would carry the message and carry out the work."

"Our first and most important problem is production. Production and conservation are both impelled by the same cause, by the same food shortage."

"Europe's Diminishing Production. In addition to the maintenance of a normal supply, we have the very disastrous condition of a diminishing production. It is impossible to take forty million men from production labor and devote them to war without cutting into the vitals of food production itself. That deficiency has been contributed to by stoppage of certain cereals on our part. The maize, until on cereals alone this year's production falls below last year's by 25 million bushels. Therefore we have a load of over a billion and a quarter bushels of grain to preserve, the normal food consumption of our allies."

"This is a load that is beyond our capacity, beyond the combined capacity of the United States and Canada. There is no way of meeting that situation except that after we have exported the surplus that we can export, they must reduce the consumption to a point where the two ends meet."

"It is physiologically possible to reduce the food consumption by forty per cent, but on the other hand, soldiers in the trenches, in the shops, working overtime, and millions of women put to physical labor, require more food stuff than in times of peace. The net result is that all privation by the reduction of consumption operates upon the most helpless class in the community, that is the old and the women and the children."

"Farmers Should Right-About-Face. The problem of animals is one that becomes a problem of practical character to us this very day in the United States. Europe's diminishing production of fodder and a shortage of imports has first cut her fodder imports rather than her bread. The result has been the ruthless killing of animals, and out of that has arisen an annual reduction in their animal products. This is burning the candle at both ends."

"It means from the fat point of view that we must increase our fat imports into Europe. We may diminish our meat imports for the moment; but we must have a call upon us or upon our land for enormously increased animal production."

"Europe has practically always produced her animal products. Compared to the total consumption she has imported a comparatively minor amount of fat products. But with diminished animals she will have less demand for fodder and therefore more particularly for the production of bread grains."

"The people will of necessity turn their agriculture from the production of fodder to the production of bread, and we, in the meantime, must be prepared to take a like busy order. In other words, we have exported in the main bread grain, whereas the demand upon us after the war will be for animal products."

"Therefore, we must turn the face of our agriculture as well as the face of our farmer from the production of bread grains to the production of animal products."

GRADUATE NURSE RUSHES TO HER BROTHER'S SIDE

WITH AID OF TANLAC SHE NURSES HIM BACK TO HEALTH

A sister's devotion to her brother prompted Miss Emma L. Gommer, 238 Front street, Nanticoke, Pa., near Wilkes-Barre, a graduate nurse of the Bellevue Hospital, New York City, to rush to his aid in an effort to relieve him of a severe case of stomach trouble which he had suffered from for the past two years. "We tried everything for him, but nothing had got him better than any signs of improvement," said Miss Gommer. "Personally, I was surprised at the way Tanlac took hold of him. His appetite which had fallen away to nothing, began to increase immediately. Before taking Tanlac he was unable to retain any food on his stomach. Food would cause him terrible pains and suffering and vomiting after every meal. He became very weak and was steadily losing weight."

"He was in such terrible shape that it took four bottles of Tanlac to fully straighten him out, but to my happy surprise he has been better than he has in the past two years, and his appearance bears this out. He gets the full food value of what he eats, and he is now back at normal weight and is getting stronger every day. We are very proud of what Tanlac did for him."

Tanlac is now sold here by Dr. W. D. Chandler, Druggist, Mount Joy, Pa.

HOME HEALTH CLUB

By Dr. David H. Reeder, Chicago, Ill.
Helping Uncle Sam's Doctors: A large percentage of the medical profession has responded to the call of patriotism than of any other class or profession and in a vast majority of the cases it means the sacrifice of years of hard struggle to win a place in the world's worth while work. The reliable up-to-date family physician is hard to spare and there are many that will suffer in silence and wait for his return rather than go to some one that they do not know or that they think may not understand their case.

This is a serious mistake. Conditions may arise in which just a little careful treatment of the right kind and at the right time may prevent a great deal of needless suffering and expense.

Most of all these doctors will return with a glad heart to acknowledge that could be acquired in no other way, some will lay down their lives for you and for me, for your boy or my boy.

Now, right here is one of the big lessons that is going to be learned by all of the people and a tremendous advance is going to be made in natural therapeutic, just as all real advances have been made through suffering and privation. Already I can see an improvement in the general health of the people through the forced observance of some of the natural laws of health that have been teaching through the Home Health Club lectures for the past quarter of a century.

Nature is always exceedingly kind to those who know and respect her laws and so many of these laws are made plain and of easy application through the Home Health Club books that there should be organized many local clubs for study and practice so that each neighborhood could be well equipped to combat any condition of sickness that may arise without exhausting the doctors that remain at home.

The paper club is always ready to answer all questions pertaining to the health of any reader of this paper or any question regarding neighborhood or community health. In response to requests will gladly give information through these columns regarding changes in diet, meat substitutes, lard substitutes, food combinations and any other information regarding food and nutrition along practical lines that will make for better health and safety from disease from malnutrition.

I have noticed a number of cases in which sufferers from gas in the stomach and bowels could not account for the condition as they had been advised to eat certain foods from the gardens and cut down the meat diet. In one case I found that a delicious meal had been prepared and eaten in which the principal dish was a well cooked pan of baked beans with a side dish of Hubbard squash, an abundance of potatoes followed by a salad with sharp French dressing. In the salad was slices of radishes, cucumber, oranges, tart apples, bits of onion and nut meats. The food was all good but the combination was all wrong and every member of the family suffered with abdominal pains, gas in the stomach and bowels followed by very free bowel movements.

Now, baked squash is a good and wholesome food but it should not have been eaten with the beans. The salad was good and wholesome, but with the nut meats it was unnecessary with the beans and the sharp acid French dressing. The radishes were decidedly antagonistic to the starch food in the potatoes. Fermentation instead of digestion was promptly started and the gas that followed fermentation caused the pain. The onions and beans helped matters by increasing peristaltic action and the bad combination was emptied out without supplying the nutrient that should have been derived from such food. That, however, was the best thing to do, the food was spoiled in the stomach and nature knows what to do with spoiled food.

"There are many of us, I know, who wish to God that we could exchange our present day duties with the more active service on the line; but if we can't, if they won't have us on any terms at least let us constitute ourselves an effective support to those that do go to the front, and be the guardians and custodians of the lives that will be waiting for them when they come back."

"I speak with a degree of intensity which may fairly indicate the way I feel about the matter. My convictions about it are so deep and so burning, and I seem to see the situation so clearly, that I tremble when I find so many of my fellow-citizens, even in this commonwealth, who do not seem to be aware of the predicament in which the world finds itself, and who are unwilling to make even slight sacrifices to the end that American ideals in the end may be supreme."

"My friends, of the Committee of Public Safety of the commonwealth of Pennsylvania and its affiliated organizations through the state—if you do not busy yourselves with the effective organization of this commonwealth so that we may adequately support the men that go, and preserve the homes for those of them that will come back, then we do not deserve to be called Americans and we do not fit to be the representative of the Keystone state."

teacher whenever there is any matter that causes anxiety. The needs of the teachers are studied and a cheerful readiness is shown to supply needed material. The buildings of the district are old and do not meet the present day demands, but they are kept in good condition. The visits of the directors are regular and systematic. The entire board always accompanies the superintendent and suggestions are accepted and followed. The board consists of Ephraim G. Bard, Elias F. Nolt, J. C. Shellenberger, William Bongart and Daniel H. Bream."

Use ATLANTIC Rayolight OIL

It will give you more satisfaction per gallon, better light per lamp and greater heat per stove. The impurities that cause smoke, smell and charred walls are removed. All the qualities that give a clear, new light and a steady, even heat are retained.

Perhaps you've thought that kerosene, kerosene and that's all there was to it. There's a lot more to it. You should see our expert chemists testing and experimenting to produce the highest refined kerosene in the world. And they have succeeded. That's why it is called Rayolight Oil—to distinguish it from ordinary kerosenes.

Besides heat and light, Rayolight Oil has many other uses in every home, such as cleaning bathtubs and windows, polishing furniture, etc. Hundreds of thrifty housewives have put us their experiences with Rayolight Oil and we have put all these helpful suggestions in an attractive, illustrated booklet for the use of our customers. A copy will gladly be sent upon request.

The next time you need kerosene look for the store with the sign: "Atlantic Rayolight Oil for Sale Here." Then ask for it by name. The dealer won't charge you a cent more than for the inferior, nameless kinds.

PERFECTION Smokes Oil Heaters

Never smoke, soot or cause unpleasant odors. Keep any room in the house warm and comfortable with its cheerful radiating heat. Ask your dealer. Price, $4.50 to $5.50.

Old Shoes Made New

Don't discard that pair of old shoes until you first see whether they can't be repaired at a nominal cost. Bring them here and you'll be surprised how reasonable I can make them look like new. That isn't the only surprise you'll get either. My clothes are very reasonable. OPEN EVENINGS.
