Mrs. J. Pennypacker, North Barbara street, says: "I had a continual bearing-down ache in my back just across my kidneys. Doan's Kidney Pills gave me much help from the first and soon relieved me of that steady ache. I keep Doan's Kidney Pills on hand and use them as I feel their need."

Mrs. Pennypacker is only one of many Mount Joy people who have gratefully endorsed Doan's Kidney Pills. If your back aches, if your kidneys bother you, don't simply ask for a kidney remedy, ask distinctly for DOAN'S KIDNEY PILLS, the same that Mrs. Pennypacker had, the remedy backed by home testimony. 60 cents at all stores. Guinea pigs are fit for any table Guinea pigs are fit for any table and are receiving attention now in connection with the utilization of every means of increasing food supplies. There is another war-time use, however, that perhaps appeals more to the imagination. This is in medical research, especially in besting and standardizing antitoxins and serums. Such medical research work has been much enlarged, and has greatly increased in importance since America's entry into the world war.

The guinea pig, in being made to help in the testing of serums and antitoxins, confers a direct benefit upon the American soldier. Therefore, the guinea pig is doing his bit and persons who enter the industry of raising guinea pigs likewise help

In medical research immature animals weighing 250 grains (nearly 9 ounces) are required. This weight is ounces) are required. This weight is attained in about six weeks. In past years the average price of a guinea pig has been about 75 cents, but reports have been recently received of ports have been recently received of ports have been recently received of laboratories paying from $1.00 to $1.50 because of the scarcity of suitable stock. Persons favorably situated near cities or institutions requiring large numbers of guinea pigs may establish a profitable business in supplying them. They should remember, however, that animals previously ber, however, that animals previously used for serum or antitoxin tests, or the offspring of guinea pigs that have survived such tests, may be unfit for laboratory experiments.

GUINEA PIGS AS FOOD ationship to rabbits and the fact that they are wholly vegetarian in habits may reassure anyone entertaining doubts as to their fitness for the table. The small size of the domestic species is the chief cause for ts neglect as a food animal, yet other nighly esteemed game animals highly esteemed game animals furnish less meat than a guinea pig. The Peruvian method of dressing a pig for cooking is the one generally adopted. The animal is killed by dislocating its neck, after which it goes through about the same process nonly applied to small game.

The constantly increasing demand for them in scientific investigations and medical research insures a ready market for reasonable numbers at prices that should be renumerative to the producer.

Persons considering the raising of guinea pigs may find a detailed discussion of the subject in Farmers Bulletin 525, "Raising Guinea Pigs," issued by the United States Department of Agriculture.

BREEDING OF GUINEA PIGE

BREEDING OF GUINEA PIGE Guinea pigs breed at a very early age, but their capacity for production has been greatly exaggerated and a mistaken notion has become fixed in the minds of many people.

Ordinarily 5 litters may be expected in a year, averaging about 3 young each. The first litter produced by a female usually consists of but 1 or 2. Subsequent ones are commonly larger, but they rarely number more than 5 or 6. A female in her breeding prime may be expected to raise about 12 to 15 young each year.
