OUR DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE

"Minor Troubles" of a County Agent

A county agent in one of the Eastern States believes in diversified activities. He reports as follows for one month's work: "Burnt up 90 gallons for one month's work: Burnt up 90 gallons of gasoline, 5 quarts of oil, had 6 punctures and one blow-out. Tires broke away and upset; load; pig fell out of the car and was caught with difficulty, afterwards jumped from sty and was run over by an auto. Buried three pigs with all the system and lost $25 besides. Tore best trousers getting over pasture fence; broke watch crystal; loading corn planter; but outside of a few minor troubles had a very satisfactory month's work."

Department Has New Stallion Farm

A new stallion farm, the only one of its kind in the country, was established by the United States Department of Agriculture in cooperation with the Wyoming Agricultural College, at Buffalo, Wyo., the 1st of July. It is to be known as the United States-Wyoming Horse Breeding Station, where the work that has been done for the past 15 years by the Department in cooperation with the Colorado Agricultural College will be continued. The object of the work at this station will be to produce high-class stallions suitable for the production of utility horses adapted to western range and farm conditions. Stallions at this station are available for use by mare owners in the county. They will be sent for service to different parts of Wyoming and Colorado. Stallions developed for the range weight from 1,200 to 1,400 pounds.

Club Members Make Promises Good

Hundred of thousands of dollars have been lent to club boys and girls on their personal notes by southern bankers, whose confidence has not been betrayed in any known instance. A banking system in Mississippi, through its 15 banks, last year lent between $12,000 and $15,000 to the boy and girl club members of the State. This spring the president of this system told the State boys' club agent that out of these loans, a thousand in number, there had not been a single piece of bad paper. Many of the boys were the sons of men who could not get credit at a bank. The boys and girls in Mississippi borrowed, in all, during the year 1918, $40,000 from the banks to purchase seed corn, pure-bred pigs, calves, and other live stock, and, so far as is known, every loan has been repaid. The banks in Kansas lent the juvenile club members of that State $75,000 last year, which they were ready to loan more if it had been to carry on their club work, and were ready to loan more if it had been needed. The members of the boys' and girls' clubs, which are organized by the Department of Agriculture and the State colleges, are taught by their leaders to look upon these obligations as sacred and binding.

More Home Demonstration Courses

The colleges and universities of the South are realizing the influence as well as the need of the county and home demonstration agents in the various States. The agricultural colleges and women's colleges now directly cooperating in the work give courses for special training of county agricultural and home demonstration agents. The first college in the United States outside of the State of Michigan, to open its doors to the home demonstration agents and to try to supply them with needed instruction was the George Peabody College for Teachers, at Nashville, Tenn. This year many other schools have followed its example, and a number of leading colleges and universities throughout the Southern States are now offering four-year courses especially prepared for the needs of the agents. Other schools have special short courses for the demonstration agents during the periods when they can best be spared from their countries. Short courses as offered by colleges do much to keep the workers in the field in touch with the results of new investigations which will benefit them in their line of work.

Heavy Horses Still Scarce

While there is a surplus of light horses on the farms of the United States, there is still a notable deficiency in heavy, desirable draft horses, say horsemen of the United States. Department of Agriculture. Last year, they say, there was a tremendous decrease in mares bred, but during the spring of 1919 a very large percentage of good mares were bred, which demand for horses of the better type.

Communities Determine Kind of Club Needed

As extension work is developing, the boys' and girls' club work should fit in with the program of the county farm bureau, the extension directors of nine New England and Eastern States decided at a recent conference in Boston. The extension directors who were present seemed to be agreed that the boys' and girls' club work as contemplated in the Smith-Lever act must be conducted primarily as an extension enterprise having in view, in the first instance, the actual improvement of agriculture, home economics and general rural conditions in the counties where it is taken up. The community itself is functioning to an increasing degree in determining what club work should be undertaken, what relations established, and who should act as local leaders of the work.

Changes in the Regulations

The changes in the regulations also eliminate the reference to white-winged doves, because these doves do not migrate between the United States and Canada and hence are not protected by the treaty act. All the changes in the dove-shooting season have been made at the request of the State game commissioners and sportsmen in the State affected. The new dates will be satisfactory to the hunters and yet will serve to give the doves adequate protection.

forward to a county club leader in each county of the State.

Fine Stallion on Government Farm

A standard-bred stallion, Harvest Aid, 63908, an animal of the very highest breeding type, has recently been purchased by the United States Department of Agriculture and placed at the Government's new horse-breeding station at Buffalo, Wyo. Work at this station is being carried on in cooperation with the State of Wyoming, the object being to develop utility horses especially adapted to western range and farm conditions. Harvest Aid is by the champion trotting stallion The Harvester, and his dam is Santos Maid, a mare which holds the trotting record of 2.08%, and a daughter of Peter the Great, the leading sire of speed in America. Harvest Aid is an animal of great stamina, good size and conformation, and while he was selected for his merits as an individual, the horsemen of the department say they are extremely fortunate in getting such a well-bred animal. It is not the purpose at the horse-breeding station to develop speed animals, but it is well understood that a good stallion from a family noted for its speed is highly desirable for the production of active utility horses.

Department Prepares Sheep Exhibits

Educational exhibits for sheep raisers showing models of equipment, such as barns, sheds, fences, feeding troughs, etc., are being furnished by the Division of Animal Husbandry, United States Department of Agriculture, to cooperative sheep specialists in various States for use at county fairs and at gatherings of farmers. The object of the exhibits is to demonstrate in as practical a way as possible the best methods of managing sheep. Large illustrations are included, showing specimens of the different breeds and types of sheep. Samples of wool, illustrating the different grades, are also included in each exhibit.

Educational Exhibits at Poultry Shows

The educational exhibits at both the Boston and New York poultry shows this year will be under the supervision of Harry M. Lamon, in charge of poultry investigations, United States Department of Agriculture, who is now making up a program that will be an important feature at each of these big annual poultry events. There will be afternoon and evening sessions on each day of the shows, and demonstrations in judging poultry, selecting nonlayers from layers, and other practical work, with addresses by leading poultry breeders and experts. More than 20,000 poultry bulletins issued by the department were distributed at the New York show last year. The Boston show will be held this year from a December 30 to January 3, and the New York show, in Madison Square Garden, January 20 to 25.

Pineapple Growers Organize

It is not generally known that pineapples can be grown in the United States, but in St. Lucie County, Fla., the industry has developed to such a degree that the growers have formed an association. One of the purposes of the organization is to carry on experiments to determine, if possible, the cause of pineapple wilt. At the first meeting of the organization, $500 was subscribed by the members, and it is aimed to raise at least $1,500 for this work.

Endless-Chain Pig Club

Twenty pigs were distributed recently to the members of the boys' and girls' pig club of Whitley County, Ind., to form the second link in their endless-chain pig club. One of the conditions under which a pig club member in the county receives a club pig is that the member shall return two pigs from the original gilt. These pigs are then distributed to new club members and thus the membership increases.

Change Season for Shooting Doves

Recent amendments to the regulations for enforcing the migratory-bird treaty act prohibit the shooting of migratory birds from boats or any floating device towed by sailboats. This change in the law has been made in order to check the activities of sportsmen who, by the use of towed floating devices, have evaded previous requirements which forbade the shooting of migratory birds from motor boats or sailboats. In addition, the open season for shooting doves has been changed in Ohio, Indiana, Arkansas, Kansas, Utah, and Nebraska. However, in some of these latter States the local sportsmen will not be able to derive the benefits of this Federal open season, due to the fact that State laws which are operative in their respective territories prohibit the killing of mourning doves during a part or all of the Federal open season. For example, the Federal law makes the dove-shooting season in Colorado open September 1 and terminating December 15, while the State law prohibits the shooting of doves from September 2 to August 14, inclusive. As a consequence, the only time in which sportsmen can legally shoot doves in Colorado without violating either Federal or State laws is the single day, September 1.

The changes in the regulations also eliminate the reference to white-winged doves, because these doves do not migrate between the United States and Canada and hence are not protected by the treaty act. All the changes in the dove-shooting season have been made at the request of the State game commissioners and sportsmen in the State affected. The new dates will be satisfactory to the hunters and yet will serve to give the doves adequate protection.
