HOME BREW CAN HAVE THE KICK

NON-INTOXICATING FRUIT JUICE NEED NOT MEAN HALF OF ONE PER CENT—A NEW INTERPRETATION

Prohibition enforcement officers have set up a little on home-made drinks. They have virtually lifted the ban on cider and other "non-intoxicating beverages" by declaring, in effect, that the definition of one-half of 1 per cent may be disregarded if the stuff manufactured is used at home.

The decision of the Bureau of Internal Revenue interprets the law relating to "cider and fruit juices" as follows:

"Any person, may without permit, and without giving bond, manufacture non-intoxicating cider and fruit juices, and in so doing he may take his apples or fruits to a custom mill and have them made into cider and fruit juices.

"After such non-intoxicating cider and fruit juices are made, they must be used exclusively in the home, and when so used, the phrase "non-intoxicating" means non-intoxicating in fact and not necessarily less than one-half of 1 per cent of alcohol, as provided in section 1 of the said act."

The Kick Is There

In other words it is held that one may buy fruit, have it made into ciders and fruit juices, which he may consume at home until they make him "feel good." A real kick is permitted.

This relaxation on the part of the enforcement officers is said to have been inspired by Congressmen in fear of the wrath of country people who have been accustomed to going as far as they liked in making beverages from anything they produced on the farm.

Up to the time of National prohibition these home drinks included apple brandy, cider, blackberry and grape wines and other softer things.

MARKETING OF TOMATO CROP WORRIES GROWERS

Marketing of the tomato crop which promises to be a banner one around Rheems and Elizabethtown, is worrying growers. The plants are looking fine and are heavy with blossoms but thus far the canners have shown no disposition to buy.

They contend the market is over-stuffed with old stuff and that they will be scarcely able to pack this year. This dumping upon the market of hundreds of thousands cans by the government purchased for the troops during the war is given as a reason for the glutting of the market.

FIRE DESTROYS SEVERAL BUILDINGS AT LOCUST GROVE

Fire late Saturday night destroyed a brick barn and several outbuildings on the farm of B. F. Hoffman, at Locust Grove, entailing a damage of approximately $10,000.

The blaze is believed to have started from spontaneous combustion in the engine of one of two automobiles parked in the wagon shed. Both these machines valued at $1,700 were destroyed by the flames which consumed thousands of dollars' worth of farm implements, corn, wagons, and other valuable contents.

Firemen from Elizabethtown, Columbia and Marietta succeeded in saving live stock and a few buggies. A hastily formed bucket brigade protected the old stone residence, which was scored by the heat.

The blaze was discovered by members of the Hoffman family, in the wagon shed, where Hiram Risser, of Maytown, and George Longenecker, Pottstown, guests of the family, had parked their cars. The blaze quickly consumed the garage and barn and aged and barn which stood close together. The garage and barn were equipped with modern improvements.

FIREMEN SAVE MANY BUILDINGS

Nearly one-fourth of the hay burned out of a mow and the large barn was saved.

One of the hardest fights to prevent flames from consuming farm buildings ever heard of in this section, was on the former Philip Frank farm, in Coney township, now owned by Benjamin Hoffman, last night.

The presumption is that the hay placed in the barn, became overheated and started a blaze which was immediately discovered. Word was sent to Marietta for the chemical outfit there. The Marietta firemen responded immediately and worked heroically from nine o'clock last night until five o'clock this morning, when they succeeded in extinguishing the flames.

The firemen confined the flames to the hay mow but as soon as they were extinguished at one point, they broke out anew at another. One chemical tank after another was emptied on the hay until this morning. About one-fourth the contents of the mow were burned.

This was a very unusual fire. There are two large barns on this farm, one being built against the other, which makes it about the largest barn in the county. In addition there are several large tobacco sheds and other buildings adjoining. Extinguishing the flames in a hay mow is very unusual and Mr. Hoffman told the firemen this morning that they saved about $50,000 worth of property for him.

Another place in this issue it may be seen that the garage on this same farm was destroyed by fire on a few days previous and this same crowd of firemen saved the other buildings from destruction.

This wonderful work was done with a new International chemical truck, which the firemen in that borough contemplate purchasing.
