A BAINBRIDGE RESIDENCE WAS LOOTED BY THIEVES

Family savings of years, representing several hundred dollars, were tossed aside as worthless when thieves raided the home of John O'Conner, well-known resident of Bainbridge, early in the evening. Other valuables including jewelry, a gold watch, one revolver and $100 in cash were taken.

Entry to the house was made by means of the front door, the thieves evidently having spent several hours in the house. Mr. O'Conner was absent and the family was attending a moving picture theatre. Discovery of the robbery was not made until their return late at night.

The entrants, evidently familiar with the house, had used a pass-key. During their visit they thoroughly ransacked the house, pulling drawers from furniture and strewn their contents over the floor. Several trunks also were opened and their contents hurled to all portions of the house.

Mr. O'Conner, who has little faith in banks, for years has been placing his extra money in an old cloth. This cloth was found, evidently early in the search, but its general rusty appearance detracted from its real worth and the bundle was tossed aside. A count of the money by members of the family today showed none missing.

It Bears Repeating
A few years ago a certain newspaper publisher made an appeal to his delinquent subscribers in the following manner, which is quite appropriate now:

"Lives of great men often remind us, honest men don't stand a chance. The more we work, the more we grow behind us, bigger patches in our pants. Our pants once new and glossy, now have stripes of different hue. All because subscribers linger and don't pay us what is due. Now let it be up and doing, send your mite, however small, for when the blasts of winter strike us, we may have no pants at all."

The publisher claimed the poetry "drew" like a porous plaster and we hope it does the same thing for us.

MT. GRETTA DESERTER CAPTURED AT MAYTOWN

Maytown had a scare Tuesday and Wednesday caused by the appearance in the town of a soldier who would give no account of himself but only laid around the square in the hot sun. It transpired that he was a deserter from the national guard camp at Mt. Gretna and he was taken back Wednesday night. It was at first thought the man was insane, but many of the townspeople also believed that he was bent on committing burglaries in the absence of the residents who yesterday held their annual picnic at Hershey Park.

The man came to the town after sundown on Monday. To no one would he give his name or tell his mission. Instead he remained mum and loafed in the square, seeking no relief from the sun's rays. This led to the belief that he was insane.

To get some light on the matter Norman F. Arntz, cashier of the Peoples Bank there, telephoned to the officers at Mount Gretna. A man answering the description of the man who had appeared at Maytown being missing the authorities sent an ambulance and two officers to the village that night and took the soldier with them back to Mount Gretna. They said he was a resident of Scranton and had left camp without permission.
