Round Table, and asked for expressions. One contention put forth was that "the State has no money just now to spend on a Fair." Another, and this view was held by several, was: "If it can be shown that a State Fair will help rather than hinder the County Fair, it might not be in-advisable." Still another: "If the WOMEN OF RAPHO State is going to spend a half mil-

hon to start the fair and another half million to maintain it, then it were better to postpone action." The majority of farmers present believed that the State Farm Pro-
