HERE'S AN EGG RECORD DIFFICULT TO SURPASS

We occasionally hear or read of people owning a hen that lays two eggs a day but as a rule, accept the assertion with a doubt, but right here in Mount Joy we have an actual occurrence. Mr. Christ Heilig, who resides on Columbia Avenue, has a pen of five Single Combed Rhode Island Red pullets and one cockerel. On Thursday, Feb. 24, the five hens laid six eggs, one of them being a double yolked egg. The following day, Friday, Feb. 25, this same pen laid six eggs, one of them also being a double yolked one, same as the day previous. From Feb. 16 to the 23rd, just seven days, this pen produced twenty-three eggs. During the month of January one of these hens laid seven double yolked eggs. The pullets are Penna. Poultry Farms strain. We would like to hear of any one that can come near this record.

SCHOOL DISTRICTS SHORT IN STATE APPROPRIATION

Lancaster county school districts are short of funds which the State appropriates semi-annually, to the amount of $5,000. This amount was payable on January 1, but due to a deficiency, at the State Department of Public Instruction, which is estimated to be more than $1,000,000, the money was not forthcoming.

The shortage affects 650 school teachers throughout the county. There are about 300 teachers at the $10 rate, 100 at the $12.50 rate and 250 at the $20 rate, so that the amount due to the Lancaster district each year is $10,000. Half of this money is payable in January and the other half in May.

Failure of the various school districts to receive the money has caused some embarrassment financially. At the present session of the Legislature, however, the deficiency will be covered, and an appropriation made. This will probably not be effective until October of this year.
