Texas Fishermen Bring in Queer Stories of Encounters With Reptiles.

Austin, Tex.—Stories of battles with rattlesnakes and stump-tail moccasins are brought to Austin by nearly every fishing party which has been on outings to the many fishing streams in the mountains west of Austin. But the most unusual tale is told by an aggregation of anglers who have just returned from a camp on the Peder-nales river, 35 miles west of this city. In this party were several men who have been up against many rattlesnakes, but this is the first time that any of them made the discovery that a rattlesnake fed on fish.

According to the story a throw line baited with small perch had been put out into the river. One of the party, fishing with rod and reel, later had pulled the throw line partly in to get it out of the way, and in doing this one hook, still baited with perch, was left hanging above the water. The next morning a huge rattlesnake was found on the exposed hook. It is stated that the snake was as large around as the arm of the average man. The snake was killed and the perch, which had attracted it to the hook, was found in the reptile's mouth.

The crop of snakes, especially the rattlesnake species, is larger this year than in years. This is attributed to the past mild winter. Moccasins swarm the smaller creeks and there are moccasins in the larger streams. The Colorado river has a good sized quota. While many of the snakes seen in the streams are the harmless water snakes, there is an abundance of the rusty and poisonous species of the moccasin.

"NO PLACE FOR HOMELY GIRL"

Wall of Girl Who Tries Suicide After Fiance Rejects Her for Prettier One.

Baltimore.—Men only look for beauty; they don't care about the real homemaker any longer." Virginia Hicks, twenty, a patient at the Maryland General hospital, who tried to commit suicide by swallowing poison, explained that there was no place in the world for the homely girl.

"I don't want to get well," she continued, pushing back her short red hair. "Men don't care what you do for them—they are for the girl who spends everything on clothes and makes a big show. They don't care if a girl is good, self-respecting and a real homemaker; all they want is a big display of their money."

Refusing to give her lover's name, she admitted that they had both been very happy and expected to get married shortly, until one evening at a dance he met a prettier girl, and after that she didn't have a chance.

"Classical features and a conspicuous lack of freckles are essential features for happiness," Virginia declared, weeping.

Chicago.—Miss Gail McDermut, criminal court stenographer, is hailed as a heroine by her co-workers. As Frank Legregni, under death sentence for murdering his wife, attempted to jump from a window sill to liberty, Miss McDermut grabbed his coat tail and held on until police had beaten the prisoner into submission.

Paris.—An animal born on a farm at Grandchamps, near Paris, two weeks ago, died yesterday while being transported to Paris for exhibition at the Academy of Science. The creature had the body of a calf, the head of a rabbit, eyes like a pig, ears like a fox and hair like a St. Bernard dog. It weighed twelve pounds at birth and cried like a baby.

THE GOOD OLD HYMNS.

There's lots of music in 'em—the hymns of long ago. And when some gray-haired brooder sings the ones I used to know, I sorter want to take a hold, I think of days gone by.

"On Jordan's stormy banks I stand and cast a wistful eye;"

There's lots of music in 'em—those dear, sweet hymns of old, With visions bright of lands of light, and shining streets of gold.

And I hear 'em ringing—singing, where men're dreaming, stanzas, "From Greenland's icy mountains to India's coral strands."

They seem to sing forever of holier, sweeter days. When the lilies of the love of God bloomed white in all the ways.

And I want to hear their music from the oldtime meetin' rise, Till "I can read my little clear to trans-verse in the skies."

We never needed singin' books in them old days—we knew The words, the tunes of every one—the dear old hymnbook through!

We didn't have no trumpets then, no organs built for show, We only sang to praise the Lord, "from whom all blessings flow."

An' so I love the good old hymns, and when my time shall come— Before the light has left me, and my singing lips are dumb— If I can hear 'em sing them then, I'll pass without a sigh To "Canaan's fair and happy land where my possessions lie."

EASY TO BUILD FIRE ON ICE

With the Understanding of the Properties of Gas, It is Not Hard to Create Illusion.

Carbide or more properly, calcium carbide, is a wonderful substance made in the electric furnace by heating lime and coke, writes H. Gernsbach in Science and Invention. It is a hard gray stone-like material and no doubt familiar to you as the gas-generating medium employed in some kinds of bicycle lamps. When brought in contact with water it instantly liberates gas, acetylene, which gives a brilliant light when properly burned.

This property can be strikingly demonstrated in the following manner: Place a few lumps of carbide on a block of ice. Above the freezing point of water (32 degrees F.) ice is always covered with a film of water sufficient to start some action with the carbide. The heat generated by the chemical reaction melts more ice, making more heat and generating more gas, so that in a moment the lumps will have begun to bore little holes in the ice. If a match is applied, the escaping acetylene gas ignites and burns with bright but smoky flames so that to the observer the ice appears to be burning. Since acetylene gas contains much carbon, when it is burned in the air without special burners, it gets insufficient oxygen to burn up all this carbon. As a consequence of this richness in carbon, or insufficient oxygen, a veritable "black snowstorm" results in a few minutes.—Detroit Free Press.

Confirmed Superstitious Belief.

An instance of the coastal belief that a horse always goes back to its old home after death is reported by a British Columbia reader. A contractor lost a horse by drowning on the west coast of Vancouver Island. It was towed out to sea; next day it floated back in again. The carcass was again towed out, only to return to the beach four days after. On both occasions it was towed several miles before being cast adrift; also a strong ebb tide was running at the time.

Remarkable Work of Art.

A remarkable medal was exhibited on Lincoln's birthday by Anton Erickson of Minneapolis, a metal engraver. The medal, of gold, is only the size of a 1-cent piece yet it contains on one side, in beautiful detail, a medalion of the head of Lincoln and on the other the entire Gettysburg address, totaling 1,200 words. The address cannot be read by the naked eye, but under a magnifying glass it becomes perfectly distinct.

Snake Hypnotized Hen.

An Alberta (Canada) reader says that a farmer and his wife noticed a hen in the yard standing very still but squeaking in a terrified manner. They watched it a few moments but could see no cause for her fear. They went out and found a snake looking at the hen. The hen didn't move until the snake was driven away, so they supposed the hen had been hypnotized.

Peculiar Relationship.

In a well-known town in New Brunswick a man and his son were courting a woman and her daughter. The father married the daughter and the son the mother. The daughter thus become the mother-in-law to her mother and the son father-in-law to his father.

Fordson

$625 f. o. b. Detroit

The Fordson saves from thirty to fifty per cent of the farmer's time.

The Fordson plows, harrows, drills as much ground in the same time as from four to six horses. Many farmers say it does the work of eight horses.

The Fordson does for the farmer just what machine power does for the manufacturer—it enables him to manufacture his product at less cost. And that is what the farmer wants to do; grow his crops more cheaply and make his margin of profit greater. And the Fordson will help him do it.

Let us prove this to you by a demonstration on your own farm. Just phone us or drop us a card.
