

You Feel the Quality of a Dayton Tube

WE want you to take a Dayton Tube in your hands and feel its smooth, fine surface. To experts this smooth "feel" means strength, long life, quality.

Hold a highly inflated Dayton Tube under a powerful magnifying glass. You will find it free from the impurities and foreign substances that cause ordinary tubes to leak—go down quickly.

Dayton Tubes are scientifically built up layer upon layer of special process cleaned pure gum rubber. You can feel their thickness, ruggedness, resiliency, flexibility and strength.

Dayton Tubes—red or gray—insure greater mileage for the casing. They help bear the burden and shock of service. They hold air longer—require less pumping.

Let us show you these qualities—the difference they will make in your tire bills—what they will save you in money, time and annoyance.

The ideal combination for any car is Dayton Tubes in Dayton Tires.

FIND RELIC OF OLD LONDON

Arch of Bridge Which Must Have Been Built Centuries Ago Just Brought to Life.

A very interesting relic of old London has come to light, according to the London Times, an arch of old London bridge, which was demolished during the construction of the new London bridge, which began in 1825. The arch now discovered is the second from the north side of the old bridge, and is close to St. Magnus' church. It was disclosed during some building operations now in progress.

The first stone bridge over the Thames was built in 1170, but the bridge was constantly repaired and restored, so that there is no evidence of the exact date of this particular arch. It was apparently medieval, and is built of Beigate stone with a very flat trajectory. At the beginning of the Eighteenth century, however, three flat wrought-iron supporting ribs were put in, and the middle one of these is dated 1703. The arch is not yet entirely uncovered, but a springer at each side is just being disclosed, and the span is estimated to be about 80 feet. The under surface of the arch is considerably waterworn between the added ribs. It is one of the arches close to which the mill wheel stood for the raising of water into the watertower that stood alongside the bridge. This arch stood in the river, and is, therefore, an evidence of the limits which, as time has gone on, have been imposed on the Thames, the river being now much narrower than it was in medieval times. It is understood that this relic of old London is to be carefully preserved.

CROWDING THE SEA SERPENT

Old Friend of the Ocean Summer Resorts Makes Way for Pirate Ship From Russia.

We believe but one sea serpent has been sighted so far this season. Perhaps it is still a little early, but the weather has been hot enough to bring our old friend to the surface, and no doubt the frightened and delighted visitors at shore resorts and those who go out to sea in boats for a short distance will soon be rewarded with a sight of his ugly head or face, as he is called, by the swishing of his angry tail. However, it is possible, that the sight more calculated to thrill will be the pirate ship from Russia that is moving in such a mysterious way its wondrous to perform. If this is so, we are certain that for every view of the sea serpent that is recorded on the part of credible witnesses there will be 20 equally credible witnesses who caught a glimpse of the new terror of the deep, long and dark, either just before it submerged or at the moment it came to the surface to cast its eye about for a new ship to capture and sink or to drag away the crew in irons to Bolshevik Russia. To the elderly skeptic who inquired where such a craft secured its necessary fuel the less critical young woman answered that it probably operated by electricity. What could be more probable?—Hartford Courant.

Flower Worth Small Fortune.

Ten thousand dollars is an extraordinary price for a single plant; yet it was paid by English horticulturists for an orchid raised in America, the Cattleya gigas alba.

This Cattleya was flowered in 1910, and exhibited at an orchid show in the United States, where it was awarded a gold medal. The plant was found in 1909 in a lot of other specimens of Cattleya gigas. It was only by chance that the plant was not sold for a dollar or two. The only reason was that after most of its companions had been disposed of this one, with some others that were not in very good condition, was set aside. Finally all the specimens were potted.

To the great surprise of the horticulturists when, next spring, the plant came up it was with pure white flowers. The plant was sold in London for perhaps the highest figure that an orchid ever brought.

Apology Needs an Apology.

"Gentlemen"—it came from the lips of an attorney pleading a case recently before the Supreme court of the state of Idaho. In front of him sat the judges clothed with their judicial dignity, listening intently to the case. The attorney had erred. Judges should be addressed as "Your honors."

"Gentlemen"—repeated the lawyer, and the tiniest hint of a smile flitted across the features of the men in front of him.

Suddenly he stopped, realizing his blunder.

"I apologize for calling you 'gentlemen,'" he blurted out.

Laughter in a courtroom is not deemed exactly proper, but a joke is a joke and Chief Justice Rice replied simply, "I hope you made no mistake."—Idaho Statesman.

British Museum Overcrowded.

The British museum, says a London writer in the New York Post, has reached the end of its rope, so far as space is concerned. By the law of 1850 every English author, whether domiciled at home or in the dominions, is obliged to place two copies of his books with the museum, which in turn guarantees to keep them in good condition and make them accessible to the reading public. The same applies to newspapers. Space for the latter was exhausted some time ago and a special barracks was built to store them. It is now feared that the same plan will have to be adopted for the books.

SODA TANK LEAPS OVER BUILDING

Carbonic Gas Receptacle Does Queer Antics When Driver Treats It Rough.

New York.—Policeman Fred Finger saw a man drive up to the soda water parlor adjoining the station house and start unloading a carbonic gas tank.

"Where you goin' with that?" he asked the driver.

"Inside," was the answer.

"Well, have a care," warned Finger. "You never can tell."

At precisely that moment Policeman Finger's words were drowned in an explosion which shook the station house, the soda parlor and the whole district. Finger felt something heavy strike him on the leg, which he later discovered to be a piece of the carbonic tank. He also saw the remainder of the tank go twisting, whirling and shooting upwards.

Inside the station Policeman Frank Hilbert, who was writing at a desk, was hurled backward from his chair; John Daugherty, detective, was knocked from his comfort on a stoop nearby, and Lieutenant Lenahan was awakened from a deep sleep.

When the policemen and detectives picked themselves up after the blast they found the road in a road to a dazed condition. They started in search of the missing carbonic tank. They found it had traveled seven stories up, knocked a 20-pound ball from a flagpole and, circling over the building in which the station house is situated, had landed three flights down on a rear fire escape.

FINDS SNAKE IN BATHROOM

Reptile Discovered by Seven-year-old Child Had Climbed Tree and Crawled Through Window.

Reading, Pa.—Virginia Funk, seven years old, daughter of Oscar A. Funk, discovered a black snake five feet nine inches long in the bathroom of her home at Estorby. The snake climbed a tree near the house, dropped on a rear porch and then crawled in the bathroom window.

The child closed the bathroom and called her father, Oscar A. Funk, a big game hunter in Canada for several years. He opened the bathroom door, threw a towel over the reptile and carried it to the yard, where his guest, Wesley E. Conklin of Philadelphia shot the snake.

Mrs. Conklin, wife of the Philadelphian, was with the child when she entered the bathroom.

"Stolen" Gems Found Under Mattress.

Wilkes-Barre, Pa.—Mrs. Thomas Lewis, has found the jewels upon the quest of which she had set officers of three cities. Mrs. Lewis left the gems under a mattress in a Philadelphia hotel and forgot all about them until she had returned home. Then she didn't remember having left them at the hotel, and decided she had been robbed.

Surgeons Close Safety Pin in Stomach.
