A MERRY, MERRY CHRISTMAS TO EVERYBODY

TOBACCO GROWERS MET YESTERDAY

MOUNT JOY HAS ONLY BONDED TOBACCO WAREHOUSE IN THE STATE OF PENNSYLVANIA.

Co-operation was the impulse which yesterday afternoon brought more than two hundred farmers and tobacco growers of Lancaster county to the hall here.

Co-operation was the thought which prevailed the meeting during more than two hours of speech making and questioning on the part of the audience.

Co-operation was the topic upon which representatives of the United States bureau of markets, the Pennsylvania bureau of markets, the banking interests and the local farm bureau addressed the tobacco men.

A Co-operative body, in the opinion of P. R. Taylor, chief of the Pennsylvania bureau of markets, must have three honest reasons for its existence.

They are: (1), a definite job to perform for the community in which they exist; (2), available capital to finance the crop and the business which they undertake to handle; and (3) loyalty and relation of the members to the co-operative management.

The Mount Joy Farm Bureau company under whose direction the co-operative meeting was held, seemed to have these three fundamentals for doing a real job for the farmers in whom they claim to be interested.

Franklin B. Wilkenson, of the United States bureau of markets, explained the significance of a Federal bonded warehouse and remarked that the one at Mount Joy is the only one of its kind in the state of Pennsylvania.

The federal license is significant of the fact that a bond has been filed for the protection of any one dealing at that warehouse. The grower can collect from the bonding company for any damages resulting to the crop while it is in storage.

"A receipt from a bonded warehouse," said Mr. Wilkenson, "shows four things," These follow:

(1) that the product insured owned and deposited; (2) and (4) led to the certificate; (3) approved prevents possible grades in larger lots.

He thought, also, that the buyer will come to the warehouse which has been handling the crop in a satisfactory manner rather than going here and there over the county where the tobacco is handled in a manner less efficient and less satisfactory.

The Mount Joy Farm Products company was presented as a company which is co-operative and working under the United States warehouse act.

Three Classes of Farmers
P. R. Taylor, chief of the Pennsylvania Bureau, divided farmers into three classes. They are:

(1) Those which are satisfied with the prices they are getting for the products and the conditions governing the markets.

(2) Those who are not satisfied with the conditions and the prices but who prefer to blame some other person than themselves for both the prices and the conditions of the market.

(3) Those who believe that they should do at least half of the job. Mr. Taylor assumed that the audience was composed of persons who belong to the last named class.

In order to bring higher prices and do a satisfactory business, the speaker argued that the tobacco grower must have a product that is guaranteed and that he must have a definite article for sale.

"It all comes back to getting a definite grade to place upon the market and that is what this company aims to do," said Mr. Taylor.

Explains The Plan
John G. Reist, president of the company, explained the plan which will advance money to tobacco growers on their 1921 crop. Elmer W. Strickler, of Mount Joy, also spoke on the plan.

Briefly, the plan is as follows: The grower brings his tobacco to the warehouse in Mount Joy and receives a certain sum of money which is agreed upon mutually. In return the grower gives his note for the amount of the money plus two cents per pound for bulking sweating and packing the crop.

LOCAL MAN MENTIONED FOR CO. SUPERINTENDENT

A lively battle looms for the office of superintendent of the public schools of Lancaster county at the election next May. Six applicants are understood to be preparing for the campaign.

Daniel Fleisher, the president incumbent, is said to be aiming to succeed himself in office. Friends of the other possibilities insist that this was to be the last term for Superintendent Fleisher but that they now understand he will run again.

H. O. Ober, former president of Elizabethtown college, but now a graduate student at Columbia university, is being advanced for the position. His name will be formally placed in the field in the near future.

In certain sections of the county, Prof. Ober is very strong. He will undoubtedly have a large following among several religious sects, being an ordained minister of the Brethren church. His lecture work has given him a wide acquaintance.

Arthur Mylin, principal of the Mt. Joy schools, is regarded favorably in a number of townships. He is a graduate of Franklin and Marshall college and has been teaching since 1912.

U. E. Aumiller, Daniel Geist and G. Read Alexander, the assistant county superintendents, are all said to be casting a willing eye toward the chief job in their department. Alexander, it is understood, would be the strongest candidate of the three.

The name of John Simons, the chairman of the Board of Directors of the Agriculture Trust and Saving Company, has been mentioned. Friends of the attorney insist that they can elect him at the county meeting of school directors if he care for the job. Samuel Simons, a brother, is also spoken of in some parts.
