To Give Timber "a Shot."

The best method of applying preservatives to timber is by the pressure process which is used by practically all large commercial companies, says the American Forestry Magazine of Washington. By this means the oil or mineral salt is forced deeply into the tissues of the wood, thus giving a thoroughness and permanence not otherwise attainable There are various processes, but all use large and expensive apparatus by which vacuums and heavy pressure may be applied in large treating cylinders, which are usually six feet or more in diameter and a hundred feet or more in length.

Much Timber Decay.

It is estimated that eight billion feet of untreated structural timbers decay every year, says the American Forestry Association of Washington. If that whole amount were to be treat ed we would actually billion feet of lumber is to say, it would 1

Webster's Unabridged fails to enlighten him, but the National Lutheran Council, with headquarters at New York City, is spreading the definition far and wide. A deaconess home means a social welfare colony main-On Saturday evening while Messrs. tained by these women church workers. A hospital, clinic, homes for cripples and the aged, schools for the deaf and blind, a day nursery, milk station, and a social service bureau, are the institutions that usually make up one of these welfare centers. In America there are numbers of them patterned after the models in Europe where they have existed by the thousand for many generations. In European cities of any size they serve the neighboring communities and have closer touch with the people than any other organization. Nobody is as busy as these hardy, rosy-cheeked women who give their full time from morning till night, or from night until morning. managing and running their big plants that take care of people. Deaconess homes over there are not retreats in any sense. They are acive, progressive, public places. But even so they are pretty independent of the outside world. They do their own work and have their own food supply. The deaconesses make us of their varied hobbies, so there are bee specialists, poultry experts, garleners, dary farmers, and orchardists who know all about pruning and spray ng, and keeping the children from picking green fruit. Most of them, of ourse, do this work during their recreation hour after finishing a day of nursing, teaching, sewing, or visiting the poor. They are very handy about the place. A carpenters' strike would be a small matter to them because there is always some demureeyed sister who can wield an accurate

This sketches the average deaconess ome in Central Europe in normal imes. Such times are past history to a great degree, antedating 1914. Since then war has crippled the work so hat it is scarcely recognizable. Their were shelled, robbed and burncaptive. But those who were left kept steadily at their posts, and braver harder work at reconstruction is not being done in the world. Communities are so wholly dependent upon them. Nobody else knows how to do anything in times of distress. Relief funds sent by American Lutherans have been largely dispensed through es in each town. By this simple financing they are enabled to handle the emergencies through the channels of their own regular work. Some of the welfare centers have been restored and are doing heavier work than ever before, though with depleted staffs and in bitter poverty.

In the World Service Campaign that the National Lutheran Council is to conduct the last two weeks in October to raise $1,250,000 for European Relief, deaconess homes have a large place in the budget for the coming year. From Petrograd to the South ern Tyrol, and from Cologne to Constantinople, these colonies of mercy are to be reinforced, so that each in its own sphere can be a healing refuge to the sick, afflicted and oppressed in those war and famine-maimed lands.

LONG DIVISION

A New Problem in International Affairs.

If $200.00 is sent by courier 700 miles by rail, steamship, and horse cart, and divided among 100 pastors and their families, how much does each pastor receive? The answer depends altogether upon the geography in-volved. This time the pastors happen to be in and around Moscow, so the answer is 200,000 rubles each. Dr. John A. Morehead, European Commissioner for the National Lutheran Council that operates in 17 countries over there, met a Moscow merchant in Berlin in the summer, who pos sessed one of the rarest scraps of paper in the world--a passport from the Soviets—and who offered his services as confidential messenger to the Bishop of Moscow.

Dr. Morehead checked out $200.00 and by the time the good merchant reached Moscow, by way of the Baltic Sea, through Riga, and a journey by cart and by foot over a distance where the railroad had rusted out, he was weighed down with 4,000,000 rubles. These were the first gifts of word from the cutside that the Lutherans had had in three years. The money bought one meal a day of black bread and rice, for nearly week, for each family, with a little change left over where they were extremely economical, sometimes even enough to buy a candle.

Remarkable Recovery of Signt, Blind for ten years a Northfield Mass., man awoke one Sunday mort ing to find that he had regained his sight during the night and could see as well as when a boy. There was no explanation as to how it happened.
