TOLD OF KITCHENER'S DEATH?

Interesting Story That Has Recently Appeared in Book Published by English Author.

Lady Angela Forbes in her book, "Memories and Base Details," says that Lord Kitchener was interested in spiritualism, and that he was undoubtedly not only interested, but a believer in it.

"Count Hamon, better known as Cheiro, told me a story which to the incredulous may only appear as coincidence, but cannot fail to be interesting.

"Count Hamon was a friend of Kitchener's, and in reading his horoscope had, apparently, always told him that his death would be a sudden one, but that he need not anticipate danger in the field of battle. Before Lord K. went abroad, Count H. went to the war office, and K. showed him a little blue vase, which he had once given him as a mascot, and told him that he always kept it on the table. He asked Count H. if there was anything he could do for him before he left the country. The count replied in the negative, but K. told him there was one thing he would do—if anything happened to him he would give him a sign. At the very hour the Hampshire went down, Count Hamon was in the music-room of his house in the country, at one end of which was a large hatchment, securely nailed to the wall. For no reason at all it fell with a crash, and might have been cleft in two by an ax. Count Hamon guessed instantly that something had happened to Lord Kitchener, and that this must be the promised sign."

BUT HE GOT DATES MIXED

And So a Wily, Unscrupulous Russian Bachelor Was Forced to "Kill Off" His Family.

Necessity has sharpened the wits of the Russians and they discover most ingenious devices to profit at the expense of the government.

A shrewd physician in Petrograd who was a bachelor with a hearty appetite and a small income, induced the president of the house committee where he resided to give him a certificate saying he was married. In this way he procured a double ration. Soon his imaginary wife fell ill and he got a milk card on the strength of it. Later a baby came to bless this fictitious union, and he was entitled to additional delicacies as a result. Unfortunately, he got his dates mixed up and announced the arrival of three children inside of six months.

An investigation was started, upon which an epidemic broke out in his family, which carried away, inside of two days, his wife, two daughters and little boy.

It was a dreadful massacre on paper. But it saved the physician, who got off undetected.—J. Kessel in Le Figaro, Paris.

Story of a Famous Old Timer.

An esteemed correspondent recalls two little stories of that eminent Ohioan, Gov. David Tod, who, among his other official distinctions, numbered that of minister to Brazil, appointed by President Polk and holding the office five years.

When it was noted about among the future governor's old friends and acquaintances that he had been made minister to Brazil, one of them drawled: "Wal, all I got to say is that Dave'll make a sheel of a minister!"

When Minister Tod officially interviewed Don Pedro II in Rio Janeiro, he said to his interpreter: "Tell the emperor that if he will hurry up the carrying out of that request I made him I'll send him a car load of the best Briar Hill coal my people can mine."

As coal wasn't used in Rio, the interpreter collapsed.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Grades for British Apples.

The British apple growers have recently been devoting considerable attention to the establishment of grades for their product and much progress has been made in this department. The chief reason for the movement is the desire to place on the large British markets an apple grown in England which will compare favorably in price with the best American and Australasian product. It has often been stated in England that the market advantage of the American apple is entirely due to the fact that it is correctly graded and packed.

There is no large supply of British apples which could be closely graded for market. The British growers generally have not paid much attention to market requirements in the selection of their trees nor to the care and cultivation of orchards.

Starched Cash Like New.

A Detroit woman had what she styled a "consumption fit" recently. She was washing some aprons and forgot that she left some money in the pockets of one. She didn't remember it until she had starched them. "The money was soaked, but when I dried it and ironed it it was pretty stiff and resembled new currency. This caused the grocer to ask me where I'd made them," she said.

Besides, It Is Hard to Get Now.

"That's a bad cold you have, Ma-bel."
"Yes, Dorothy, it is."
"What have you taken for it, dearie?"
"Everything."
"In that case there's no use in me offering you any advice."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Mr. R. C. King Tells a Wonderful Story About Rats. Read It.

"For months my place was alive with rats. Losing chickens, eggs, feed, I finally told me to try RAT-SNAP. I did. Somewhat disappointed at first not seeing many dead rats, but in a few days didn't see a live one. What were not killed are not around my place. RAT-SNAP sure does the trick." ## AND THEY SLEPT 'UPSTAIRS'

Childish Frank Not So Enjoyable as Youngsters Imagined It Was Going to Be.

An Indianapolis woman is fond of telling a story about her childhood days. There were several children in the family and they went to school with other children, perhaps a trifle better off as to this world's goods than they were. At any rate, the other children were always talking about their upstairs. And there was no upstairs to the cottage where the Indianapolis woman's family lived.

"It was only a cottage. But children-like, they had to be able to say with cool disdain 'other' when they went to school: 'Why, upstairs where we sleep.'"

So when mother went downtown one day these small children laboriously took their little bed apart and carried it up the narrow, steep dark stairs that led to the attic. Then they carried up the bedclothes; then their little chairs. They were indeed, going to sleep upstairs.

When mother came home she found out what had happened. She climbed the attic stairs, and there amid the dust and dirt and whatnots and cobwebs were the two beds.

So just to punish the children for their disobedience mother made them sleep up there a few nights in the hot weather, until they were glad they had no "upstairs."

TO CUT AUSTRALIAN ESTATES

Measures Almost Socialistic in Character Is Approved by Most of the Landholders.

Large Australian estates may have to be subdivided, according to the Sydney correspondent of a London paper.

The new South Wales government is reintroducing a large holding subdivision bill, compelling owners to subdivide for closer settlement any land exceeding $100,000 in value. If, for instance, the owner of land worth $250,000 refuses to subdivide the government will compulsorily acquire $150,000 worth and make it available for closer settlement.

The intention is to pay immediate cash or current rates of interest to the owners. The measure, which is approved by most Australian individual landholders, but bitterly opposed by big land companies with headquarters in England, will have the effect of opening for cultivation large areas now utilized as sheep runs. Thus it will afford an opportunity for an increased agricultural population and scope for immigrants.

It is designed to mitigate the existing serious unrest arising out of the inability to provide Australian agriculturists with land. These people are being driven to the cities to swell the ranks of the unemployed, making dangerous centers of discontent.

Support of Royalty.

At the installation ceremony of King Feisal of Iraq nothing had been left undone in producing the atmosphere necessary for such an occasion in the country of the Caliphs of Baghdad. The throne—or rather the chair of state—was a masterpiece in carved rep, tinsel and gilt. After the ceremony, which it will be remembered, was an open-air affair, the ritual required that the throne should be removed. A stalwart Ethiopian raised it above his head and bore it away past the assembled multitude. The frame beneath the seat was simple deal, and across the boarding was the legend in stencil of a firm that exports Scotch whisky. It shall be nameless, because the most up-to-date advertisement manager could never have hoped for such a display. It was worth a king's ransom and yet it was free and unsolicited.—Manchester Guardian.

Australia's Water Supply.

Australia's wonderful underground water supply, her artesian basin system, might well rank among her greatest assets. But like other assets, the artesian water supply can be wasted, and Australians are noting with concern that in New South Wales there has been a total diminution in the flow of water from 268 selected water bores of something like 21,400,000 gallons a day, or about 23.8 per cent. It is now being recognized that the artesian water must be conserved by the partial closing of the bores, so that only the flow capable of being used will be allowed to issue. The irrigation commission is taking steps to penalize the careless bore owner.—Christian Science Monitor.

Gas Used.

Not counting debate in congress, Americans used 319,888,000,000 cubic feet of artificial gas last year.

This is an achievement, comparing it with a generation ago when mother had to wash the smoked chimneys of the kerosene oil lamps and trim their wicks daily.

In about one more generation the only heating and lighting will be by electricity. A copper mine is a good legacy for grandchildren.

The Flapper Dollar.

Already the critics—call them hypsters, if you like—are knocking our new silver coin. One writer calls it the "flapper dollar" and says the opened tip of her tongue looks as though she might be saying "Line's bizzzy!" or "Say, listen!" Just that sort of girl, you know. If the comment were not so obvious we would say something about money talking—but we refrain.—Boston Transcript.

Two Good Farms

I have two exceptionally good tobacco farms in East Donegal that I can sell right. They contain 81 and 89 acres. The largest can be bought for only $150 per acre. Three-fourths of the money can remain on mortgage. Both these farms are close to markets and are money makers. E. Schroll, Mt. Joy.

A fellow at Lancaster found a new kind of hootch. He drank some and then paraded the streets, yelling that he was John D. Rockefeller. Of course the police thought different.
