

The Bull Was Wearing His Eye

Before the War Prices ON Real Estate

Within the past few days I have listed some "real bargains" in rural real estate, and when I say bargains I mean it.

Here You Are

A 70-acre farm, 50 acres tillable and 20 acres pasture, on state highway adjoining Elizabethtown boro, good house, newly remodeled and very modern barn for 45 head of stock, water in every stall, concrete floors and entries, new silo containing nearly $1,000 worth of feed, new hog sty, shedding for tobacco, wagon shed, large poultry house, slate roofs on nearly all buildings, good water.

THINK OF THIS

In addition to the farm here's what goes with it. Four Head of Horses, from 4 to 8 yrs old. 12 Head of Cows, some registered, 5 Chester White Sows, some with pigs, 1 Boar, 200 Chickens, about 40 Ducks. A large and complete line of farm implements, including 4 wagons, reaper, tobacco planter, harrows, plows, in fact everything. 9,000 tobacco lath. Place will bear closest inspection. If interested get busy as this proposition can't last long.

New Desolation Threatens Land of Constant Turmoil—Near East

Refugee Family Fleeing with Possessions from the Danger Zone.

French evacuation of Cilicia, where for months the military forces of the Republic have been all that has stood between the Armenians and renewed Moslem outbreaks, threatens further misery and desolation in a land which has known little but war and devastation for more than seven years.

Fearing outbreaks similar to those of a little more than a year ago, when more than 20,000 Armenians lost their lives in massacres at Hadlin, Marash, and Urfa, armies of refugees are flocking into Syria and cities on the coast, imploring to be sent to the Island of Cyprus and other asylums of assured security.

American workers of the Near East Relief who have been caring for the survivors of previous massacres report that throughout Cilicia native Christians are in the widest panic of fear. With winter coming on, with the centers to which the refugees are fleeing already overcrowded, and with relief supplies inadequate, a terrible problem is facing the American relief workers in the care of these people, according to Lieut. J. M. Chankalian, a veteran of the French Foreign Legion who has spent four years with the French forces in Cilicia.

"Almost beyond description," he declares, "are the acute sufferings of the fugitives, many of whom have left their homes with little more than the clothes on their backs.

"Their fear is unreasonable, but it is not unreasonable. They are largely the survivors of the massacres of last year and they are only too familiar with Moslem ferocity.

"They know what is going to happen just as soon as the last European soldier is withdrawn across the border into Syria."

From other sources, from relief agents at isolated stations in the interior, from directors of larger relief units in the big cities, and from the stories of refugees themselves comes confirmation of Chankalian's statements.

Reports to relief headquarters in New York tell of almost incredible suffering among the thousands fleeing from their homes, particularly among the children who form a large proportion of their number. Relief agents in the field assert that unless immediate assistance is forthcoming the deaths from starvation and exposure during the winter will run into the thousands.

Major Nicol, head of the Near East Relief in the Cilicia area has cabled to New York asking that the relief funds at his disposal be doubled.
