PROGRAM FORECASTS FINE CHAUTAUQUA

FOUR DAYS' COURSE WILL BE GIVEN HERE TUESDAY TO SATURDAY
FLOYDS HEAD THE LIST

The Chautauqua at Mount Joy this summer will be one of the best offered in any town in the county this year. It will be held on Wednesday, Thursday, Friday and Saturday, June 21, 22, 23 and 24.

In line with the new spirit of optimism which is constantly gaining throughout the country, the Community Chautauqua management has defined as its contribution to this new and better era, a policy of expansion, greater effort and greater expenditure in behalf of the individual community rather than a policy of even temporary retrenchment. As a result, the management announces with gratification a more comprehensive and higher grade program than it has ever before offered. A glance at this program proves that this is not an idle statement but rather a simple assertion of fact.

With a view to catering to the tastes and interests of all groups and ages of people, the nicely-balanced program has been arranged to distribute through the four days of opportunity a fair proportion of worth while entertainment, music of many varieties, inspiration, information, and good times and training for the Juniors.

Here is a brief summary of the features which Community Chautauqua will bring this year.

The famous wonder-working Floyds appear on the first to carry you off for a few hours into the land of the mysterious and supernatural. Mr. and Mrs. Floyd are probably known as America's foremost Chautauqua attraction. Professor Floyd stands at the pinnacle of magical achievement. He has been the originator, during his twenty years on the platform, of many clever tricks and illusions. Mrs. Floyd, professionally known as Mohala, has no equal in her demonstrations of mind reading, mental telepathy and other mystifying illusions. Albert M. Helman, Jr., a pianist of the first rank, assists the Floyds in their presentation of a program of "mirth, melody and mystery."

On the second day, the Cartwright Quartet offers a musical program of unusual variety and excellence. Cornet, trombone, xylophone, violin, cello, mandolin and piano—the members of this quartet will play all of them with equal skill.

"The Man Worth While"—the subject of the lecture given by Dr. Roland A. Nicholas on the second evening—has delighted, awakened and inspired thousands of men and women, old and young, throughout the country. Dr. Nicholas discusses pertinent questions of heredity and environment and their bearing on the "Man Worth While." His lecture is refreshingly permeated with the spirit of progress, good cheer and common sense.

The program for the third day includes two of the most popular and high grade entertainments which the Chautauqua has ever been able to offer to any community. In the afternoon, The Arion Entertainers will present the Children's Fun Festival full of mysterious surprises, dainty costume numbers and delightful musical features. The Arion Company consists of three accomplished young women of widely diversified talents, who have arranged a program particularly for the children.

Without question, the rendition of the musical play-reading "The Lady of the Decoration" by Miss Hetty Jane Dunaway is one of the most successful and artistic attractions upon the Chautauqua stage. Miss Dunaway presents an especially arranged version of "The Lady of the Decoration" with beautiful scenery and costumes in complete keeping with the charm of the story and its reader.

Dr. Joseph L. Thompson's lecture, "Lifters and Leeners," on the last evening will consider particularly these two types of individuals in respect to their value as citizens. Concerning this inspiration and entertaining address, the Lake City Iowa Tribune says, "Dr. Thompson brought us a vital message in his lecture. His story-telling was one of the best features of the Chautauqua."

It's scarcely fair to say "the last is the best" but certainly there is no better group of negro singers in the country today than is the Harrod Jubilee Quartet which will appear on the last day. The members of the quartet are all college bred and have made for themselves an enviable reputation with their program of plantation, camp meeting, cabin lullabies and old time spirituals sung with the incomparable feeling and beauty of negro voices. This quartet recently had the distinction of singing before President Harding in the White House.

And the Junior good times last not one day, but all the Chautauqua days. This year instead of a pageant there will be on the final day an absolutely new Junior Hippodrome when the Hippodrome elephant will join the Juniors in presenting all kinds of amusing surprises. Each day the games story-telling and folk songs will be under the supervision of a trained play leader and the Juniors will organize their own "Community."
