DIMITY FOR GIRLS

Fabric Is Suitable for Graduation and Party Frocks.

May Be Had in Wide Range of Colors. Plaid or Striped; Popularity Assured.

Colored dimity dresses make their bow in the girls' dress sections of many stores. These frocks are much softer looking than organdie, and they are to be had in the same wide range of colors. In addition, they have the charm of a plain dress, formed by the heavier threads which cross them.

One dimity dress was made of pill-box dimity. The short puff sleeves were trimmed with square appliques of white dimity stitched with black thread. The full skirt was decorated in the same way. A bit of the white fabric stitched in black finished the neck, while a black ribbon sash defined the rather high waistline.

At one store a pretty yellow dimity was seen. This was a simple dress, easily slipped on and easily adjusted. It was cut in one piece, on chemise lines. Through a casing at the lowered waistline a late-brown ribbon was drawn, the ends brought out at either side and tied in a drooping bow. The effect of the green ribbon through the yellow transparency was very picturesque. The neck was bound with green ribbon, as were the short sleeves.

A specialty shop showed a child's dress of flesh-colored dimity, with tiny old-fashioned flowers printed in each of the boxes. The round neck was softened by a one-piece collar of cream point d'esprit, plaited with soft blue. A narrow blue grosgrain ribbon was drawn through a slit high at the front of the frock, from that point down to either side placed low at the sides, then around to the back in a small bow which hung loosely yet. The silts were buttoned in blue points.

White dimity dresses are being offered for girls of all ages. They are appropriate for graduation and party frocks, as well as for general summer wear. Dimities are expected to be very active as soon as the weather is warm. It is their popularity that will be greatest among children of from two to six years, rather than older girls.

WIDE SLEEVES ON SWEATERS
 Even the woolen sweaters are adopting the wide sleeves and this original novelty of minerva yarn is extremely interesting in red and white.

THE BRACELETS OF FLOWERS
 Floral Designs Made of Satin for Corsage Bouquets or to Adorn the Wrist.

Among the apparently fanciful accessories are the floral designs made of satin to wear for corsage bouquets or bracelets for the wrist that have hidden under these lovely innocent flowers a tiny purse to hold one's handkerchiefs. Handkerchiefs are a nuisance when one has neither pockets nor handbag, so an ingenious idea has been launched in these floral bracelets and bouquets.

Other charming things that are done with flowers are wearing bunches of tiny silk roses at either ear in true Japanese style, wreaths of buds entwining the wrists and to trim one's sash. Triple hearts of jade joined with pearls, swing from the ears of the smartly-garbed woman, and she carries an umbrella in storms which sports a pendant heart of jade to match her earrings.

NEW NEGLIGEEES OF CHIFFON
 Summery Materials Making Appearance—Narrow Ribbon Appliques in Roman Stripe Effect.

Summery crepe de chimes and chiffons are making their appearance for coat negligees. Narrow ribbon appliques in Roman stripe effect make the trimming for an interesting crepe de chime design. On the chiffon model little soft ruffles with heading of lace insertion fall down the sides and are becomingly used as collars and cuffs. For a slightly more elaborate negligee chiffon is also used, combining contrasting shades and draped with ruffles of varying widths. The crepe negligee of the very young person is an other spring development and has recently appeared as a slipover mode with ruche-like collar of self-blossom faced with a contrasting color.
