"This false economy resulted in the utter loss of much treasure and of that more priceless than all treasures—the lives of American patriots; American patriots sent unprepared against the greatest war machine the world has ever known, and laying down their lives in atonement for the folly of those who cried 'economy' before the war began."

General Shannon outlined the policies briefly as standing for the smaller army and navy commensurate with the needs of the national defense; the organizing and training of National Guard and Reserve Units; and the drafting of all persons capable of military and industrial service, together with the universal draft of land plants suitable for the prosecution of military operations, and the fixing of the salary of men employed at $30 a month. "The Legion does not want to see a war wherein the man who fights pays the price of the war as well," he said in closing.

TO HAVE AN INDOOR GARDEN Nearly every cottage, as well as the larger houses and the city bungalows, are equipped with large basements. Many of these basements have space that is not utilized and many of them have excellent southern and eastern exposures whereby the sun has a chance to play through the windows a large portion of the day. Make the basement work for you. It is an easy matter to have a miniature greenhouse in most any basement where there is sufficient heat to keep the soil and the plants from freezing. At least, plants for setting out when the danger of frost is past can be easily raised in the basement and small vegetables such as radishes, onions and lettuce can be raised and eaten by the owner long before it is time to plant such things outside. If the window space in the basement is sufficient a long tray arrangement such as used in greenhouses may be used for the indoor garden. Such a tray will be sufficient to produce a good quantity of small vegetables until time to plant outside and at the same time the tomato, pepper, cabbage, and other plants may be started, later to be transplanted to individual boxes for more extensive cultivation, and to be ready to transplant in the open with large, healthy plants. WEATHER BUREAU TO FURNISH LECTURE COURSE TO AIRMEN The Weather Bureau of the United States Department of Agriculture, upon request by the United States Air Service, has begun a course of lectures on meteorology to pilots at certain aviation fields in California. Such a course, it was felt, should be adaptable to the region in which pilots do most of their flying. The lectures would be necessarily few in number, brief, well illustrated with lantern slides, and mainly devoted to those phases of general meteorology which are of most concern in actual flying. An outline meeting with these requirements is being followed, supplemented with suitable lantern slides. It covers, in 10 lectures, general meteorology, instruments and methods of observation at the surface and in the upper levels, physical properties of the atmosphere, including its constituents, its vertical structure, the decrease of pressure with altitude, the change of temperature with altitude, and the change of humidity with altitude. The direction and velocity of winds is to be studied, thunderstorms, fogs and clouds, cyclones and anticyclones, forecasting, and features of meteorology especially relating to aviation, stressing the importance of knowing winds and weather along a flying route before a flight is begun. The course of lectures will end with a discussion of weather conditions and climate in California, in the region in which the flying is to be done, and their relation to aviation.

CLEAN UP ASPARAGUS BEDS If you want to get best results from the asparagus bed, clean off the dead vegetation and trash from the bed before the new shoots begin to grow, says C. V. Holsinger, of Iowa State College. After this apply a good dose of barnyard manure to start growth rapidly. Asparagus beds should be a year old before they are cut. If your business gets slack, advertise in the Bulletin. It pays.
